Some Did This, Some That Good in Evil
Persia Goes Kidnaper
Men Will Parade

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ANOTHER LABOR DAY gone, may there never be another with so much political talk, so little action, so few jobs and such low payrolls. Some played golf. Some, to quote "Bugs" Baer, spent five hours sitting on baseball bleachers, "watching a doubleheader."

Some swam, some motored, some idled or planned stock speculations for next day. Ten millions without work worried, and their families worried with them.

"There is good in all evil," and good will come from this depression.

Even the dullest exploiters of their fellowmen begin to realize that human working hours and days must diminish, as machine efficiency increases.

The shorter working week and day will be one of the depression's products. And many that have crowded into hot, unnatural cities will escape to the country before the depression ends and always stay there, which will be a blessing for their children.

In one New York county 45 farms were taken over by a trust company, because mortgages were not paid. The farms lay idle, with good houses and stables, orchards, fields for crops, pasture and hay.

Governor Roosevelt asked the trust company what it would charge to let the state welfare board put 45 needy city families on the 45 empty farms, and the company replied: "Let them pay the taxes, no other charge."

Forty-five families are on the farms now. Governor Roosevelt asked the mortgage title holding company: "What will you charge for those farms, if the present occupants want to buy on the installment plan?" The answer was: "The face of the mortgage, with 33 years to pay, in installments."

More than 30 of the 45 families have made contracts to buy their farms on the liberal terms. That means a decent life for the families if they succeed and more good American children. What about the original owners, that lost their farms? They represent 45 of ten million sad stories in this richest country.

Persian bandits kidnaped three Americans, and after three days Persian authorities rescued them. Persian kidnapers should come here to take some lessons, and we might send some police experts to take lessons in Persia. It will be interesting to know that the new Shah of Persia, formerly an employe of the British Legation, has established a special court to punish all cases of graft. What a business such a court would do in this country, if, by chance, the grafters failed to "pick the judge."

You wonder what makes our queer justice act with such remarkable consistency, where crime is concerned. For instance, two criminals, according to New York police report, attempted to kill a policeman. The policeman, Patrolman John Meenan, killed one of them, sent the other to the hospital. One of these murderous criminals had been arrested nine times accused of crime, never convicted. The other had been arrested and set free ten times. If you had a mouse trap that worked so poorly you would get rid of it. Our criminal trap needs improvement.

France is disturbed by a parade of 195,000 "steel helmets" in Berlin. The steel hatted army was made up of war veterans and young men trained by them. Parading and fighting are in the blood. Not pious wishing, only long education of many generations can get it out.

There were two "steel helmet parades" yesterday in Kingston, N. Y., where this was filed for telegraphing. In one, 10 small boys had one drum, one real steel war helmet, which covered the proud owners ears, and one cardboard imitation helmet. In the other parade there was no real helmet and no drum, but there was an impoverished flag and military marching.

Germany will march and plan for the next 30 or 40 years, as France marched, planned and dreamed from 1870 to 1914. Then there will be another war, and for that France must keep prepared, especially in the air and under water. Size of population, luckily for France, will make little difference in the next war, but in that war there will be no Britain, Russia, Italy or United States to join an anti-Kaiser war. It will be one republic against the other, outside nations cheerfully selling goods to both.

While Germany's steel helmets and Kingston's little boys were parading, Stalin, Russian ruler, reviewed a parade of 200,000 young men on the Red square in Moscow.

These young men, told all their lives that any government except Bolshevist government is a crime against the people and that all religions are merely "so much opium to put the people to sleep," seemed to delight Stalin's smiling eyes.

CURTIS AND MRS. GANN HOME FOR FUNERAL

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 6 (AP)—Vice-President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, arrived here today to attend funeral services for their brother-in-law, Jerome A. Colvin, who died Saturday after an attack of indigestion.

TOWN TO SUE LANCASTER MILLS FOR $23,000 TAXES

Clinton, Sept. 6 (AP)—Town Treasurer O'Connell today notified Solicitor O'Malley to take immediate steps for the collection of $23,438.40 due in 1930 unpaid taxes from the Lancaster Mills. This includes $12,000 personal property.

PAULINE STARKE SUES EX-HUSBAND FOR HOME

Los Angeles, Sept. 6 (INS)—Pauline Starke, film actress, sought title to the palatial Beverly Hills home in which she has resided for several years, in a suit filed today against her former husband, Jack White, actor.

STOCKS HEAVY AT CLOSE

New York, Sept. 6—The stock market wearied in late trading in Wall St. today and closed with a heavy tone after a burst of bullish enthusiasm had sent leading shares up $1 to $3 a share in the forenoon. Coppers were a strong spot with Anaconda retaining most of a $2 rise. Wheat and cotton closed higher.

United Aircraft after touching 33, for a gain of over 3 points, closed at 29¾ for a net gain of ¼. U. S. Steel ended the session down $1.50 a share from its previous close.

Western Union was down over 3 points at its closing price of 34½. American Telephone was down $3.25 a share at its closing price of $115.75. Case, up $2 at one time, slipped back to show a loss of more than $3.

Vast Wall of Spray Streams Along Florida Coast

Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 6 (AP)—Father Neptune, aroused by the tropical storm, brought a phenomenon of rare beauty to the Florida east coast today and thousands of people flocked to the beaches to watch.

Churned up by the hurrican far at sea, a high wall of water rolled toward shore and a stiff west wind met it near land. The result was a cloud of spray that streamed eastward in an unbroken cloud as far as the eye could reach.

Sailor Accused of Knifing Shipmate

Charged with stabbing a shipmate in a quarrel in a house in Park st., Charlestown, John Dulza, 39, mess attendant on the U. S. S. Oceanographer, now at the navy yard, was held in $1000 bail in Charlestown court today.

He is alleged to have knifed Amicto Arroila, 23, in a row over ashes dropped on the rug in the house. Arroila is at Haymarket relief hospital.

OFFICER JAILED IN BRIBE CASE

A sentence of six months in the House of Correction was imposed today in Suffolk court on Charles N. Phillips, Jr., former motorcycle officer of the Back Bay station, who was discharged last May for accepting a bribe.

Phillips was first reported by Richard P. Wesley, a Harvard student, who charged Phillips accepted $25 to fix a "drunken driving" case.

The alleged payment was made at Cottage Farm bridge more than a year ago.

Phillips was discharged from the police department in May, 1931, and was indicted by the Suffolk grand jury in July of that year, on complaint of Police Lieut. Stephen Gillis, confidential aid of Police Commissioner Hultman.

HITCH-HIKER IS ROBBED BY 3

Groton, Ct., Sept. 6 (INS)—Three young men who picked up C. Irving Smith of Pelham, N. Y., a hitch-hiker, today held him up at gunpoint near East Lyme, took $5 and a suitcase containing $200 worth of clothing, and left him bound by the roadside.

Within a few hours the three youths were arrested in their automobile bearing New Jersey tags, near Mystic. They confessed, state police said.

May Merrick, Old Stage Star, Dead

Harvard, Sept. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Merrick Ball, 64, who under the name of May Merrick amused Boston theater goers a generation ago, died at her home here today. She had been ill several months.

Mrs. Ball played for several seasons with the old Boston Museum company and with the Boston Theater company. She played her best known roles in "The World," "Michael Strogoff" and "Run of Luck."

Council Set to Pardon Lifer

ELY AND AIDS ARE AGREED ON LIBERTY

Steenburgh Expected to Walk Out of Prison Tomorrow; Drive on for Job

James Steenburgh, alias Frank Howard, will probably be a free man again tomorrow afternoon.

The way appeared to be cleared today for a full pardon for the Medford man who was returned to State prison "for life" last week, at the age of 72, because he violated an 18-year parole by stealing a pair of shoes to aid a wife and daughter who never knew he had a criminal record.

A canvass of members of the Governor's Council made by the Boston Evening American, which first disclosed the tragic plight of the aged man buried alive for a misdemeanor, showed them to be solidly behind Gov. Ely in his sympathetic attitude toward Steenburgh and his family.

The governor, who remained at his Westfield home today, will be at the State House tomorrow to place Steenburgh's case before the council for immediate action.

BARRY AIDS FIGHT

Many letters urging that Steenburgh be given his liberty were forwarded to the governor by the Boston Evening American. He has received several others direct, including one from former Lieut.-Gov. Barry, who signed Steenburgh's original pardon from a life sentence imposed for robbery and who expressed himself as convinced of the old man's innocence and prepared to plead for him.

All of the council members said their attitude would be one of sympathy and that they would be prepared to act in accordance with the governor's recommendation

MAN HELD IN U. S. GIRL'S KILLING

Ware, Sept. 6—The mother of Jerane Ibershoff, 18-year-old Smith College girl, who was assaulted and beaten to death in Switzerland last week, arrived here today from Cleveland to confer with her brother, Atty. George D. Storrs.

At the Storrs home it was announced plans would be made for further investigation of the crime.

The family was advised by the United States consul at Geneva that an Austrian had been arrested as a vagrant near the spot where the girl was murdered while on a bicycle trip.

The man was released after brief questioning but was later rearrested.

Coast Fliers Seek Endurance Recrod

Los Angeles, Sept. 6 (AP)—The endurance flight plane, "Spirit of '76," still was in the air today. Its pilots, Fred Murillo and John Sheasey, took off Sunday afternoon in an effort to break the present 647-hour endurance flight record. Four refuelings had been made.

Platinum Blonde Beauty Too Hysterical to Be Questioned on Bern's Suicide Motive

Hollywood, Sept. 6—Beautiful blonde Jean Harlow, screen siren, today was in a state of collapse as authorities [illegible] the motive which caused her husband of two months, Paul Bern, 42, studio executive, to commit suicide.

[illegible] them, police admittedly were baffled. Miss Harlow, youthful actress, was unable to make any coherent comment on her husband's death.

"Oh, God, how awful," she exclaimed over and over again at her mother's home.

"This is terrible, terrible!"

She became hysterical as the news of her husband's death reached her and at times her sobs and cries were so loud they could be heard on the street outside the home of her mother, Mrs. Marino Bello.

A physician was summoned and it was early today before he and a nurse managed to calm her with the administration of sedatives. Her mother was also placed under medical care.

CROWDS COLLECT

A crowd of curious collected outside the house and police were summoned to keep them moving.

In an effort to uncover a motive for the suicide, Inspector of Detectives David A. Davidson announced today he would question Miss Harlow.

"So far as determining whether the death of Mr. Bern was suicide or not," Davidson said, "the police investigation is closed.

"However, I will take a state-

Walker's Unjustifiable Attack on Roosevelt

EX-MAYOR WALKER has certainly not strengthened himself in the public estimation by his bitter and wholly unjustifiable attack upon Governor Roosevelt.

The Hearst papers have maintained consistently that the accusations of malfeasance against Mayor Walker were not sufficiently established in the hearings of the Seabury investigation.

Furthermore, certain incidents like the Paul Block incident where Mr. Block made some money for his friend the mayor in Wall Street speculation were exaggerated beyond all reason in the attempt to make an entirely innocent act of friendship assume an unwarranted sinister character.

And finally the whole investigation developed the unfortunate partisan political aspect of a Republican Legislature endeavoring on rather flimsy pretext to put a Democratic governor and candidate for the presidency "on the spot" by creating schism between the New York city Democratic organization and the Democratic governor.

* * *

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT is more honest than shrewd or he never would have allowed himself to be precipitated into this conflict.

There was no crying necessity for such a serious political complication engineered by a Republican Legislature and involving two of the leading Democratic figures of the country and their Democratic followers.

Mayor Walker, according to the best belief, is not an evil person. He is merely an irresponsible one.

If you want to know why an irresponsible person should be mayor of New York city, the great metropolis of the nation, you must ask the voters of New York city who have twice elected him mayor and by a greater majority the second time than the first.

After all, he is not so irresponsible but that he has fought consistently and successfully to maintain the five-cent fare on the New York subways, to give New York a greatly improved school system, and to protect conscientiously the interests of the public in all matters of prime importance to the public and to the city.

He is irresponsible in his personal behaviour, which is deplorable, but apparently not unforgivable in the eyes of his fellow citizens.

A Dorchester woman was killed and her husband injured in an auto accident at Cranston, R. I., today as they were returning from a vacation trip to New York.

The victim, Mrs. Katherine Amundsen, 28, of 25 Upham ave., Dorchester, died at Rhode Island Hospital a few hours after her husband's car had left the state highway and struck a tree.

Suffering from numerous injuries, Robert Amundsen, 32, was at his wife's bedside when she died.

He told police he had been forced off the road.

DOLE CHIEFS, POLICE IN NEW WAR

Hultman's Men Beg in Vain for Records; Charge Truce Is Myth and Frauds Hidden

The truce between wefare and police officials was shattered today when the latter claimed that the promised co-operation of the welfare department with the police investigation of city aid frauds was only a myth.

Despite the promise to supply within 48 hours all records requested by the police, it was learned that the welfare officials have failed to produce a single record out of 640 requested.

While Police Commissioner Hultman and other officials refused to make any statement, it was learned on unquestionable authority that the two departments were again at odds over welfare fraud exposures, to which the Boston Evening American originally called attention.

Furthermore, it was revealed that the police suspect a renewal of an attempt made early in the investigation by welfare attaches to prevent exposure of the whole situation, with its mass of waste and fake claims.

HUGE SUMS TO ALIENS

Since the promise by the welfare heads to supply police with records was made in Mayor Curley's office last Wednesday, the police had asked for 600 pay-cards and relief applications—at the rate of 200 a day.

Forty requests made by Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode, prior to the mayor's conference, have also gone unheeded, it was learned.

Another disclosure today was that despite the attack made by welfare officials on Commissioner Hultman's report of 182 aliens re-

WALKER HURRIES BACK TO TALK RE-ELECTION PLANS

NORMAN'S PLAN SCOFFED IN U. S.

London, Sept 6 (AP)—Speculation as to what Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, may have done or attempted to do during his visit to the United States continued here today in spite of renewed protestations from him, aboard a steamer in mid-Atlantic, that his visit was entirely personal.

The suggestion was made in some quarters that he felt the coming international economic conference should be held in Washington and that he might have expressed this view while in the United States.

Comments in official quarters indicated, however, that if such a view was expressed it carried little weight. It was pointed out that the United States is an invited, and not an inviting, nation and that if London should be chosen as the location for the conference it would be in deference to America's wishes that neither Lausanne nor Geneva be considered.

French Ban on Mr. Hearst Scored by Paris Article

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.

Paris, Sept. 6 (US)—The French foreign office should take action to undo what was done when William Randolph Hearst was expelled from France, Jean Michel Renaitour, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, declared today.

Renaitour's declaration was made in an article appearing in the newspaper L'Oeuvre. Renaitour accompanied the French Olympic team to America and was among the dinner guests of Mr. Hearst in California.

BANNED BY TARDIEU

Mr. Hearst was travelling in Europe two years ago when he was suddenly notified by the French government, then dominated by former Premier Andre Tardieu, to leave French soil on September 1, 1930.

The French government communique covering Mr. Hearst's expulsion gave as the reason Mr. Hearst's "hostility" to France, although world-wide comment had been caused by the Hearst newspapers' publication of a secret document relative to Franco-English naval negotiations.

Deputy Renaitour counselled that French government action i "flatering the vanity which is found in every human being wou. make Mr. Hearst come under obligations to us, and prevent perpetuation in his newspapers of injuries to us which, little by little and stone by stone, dim our reputation and destroy our prestige."

ACCUSED IN CAMPAIGN

Renaitour accuses the Hearst newspapers of carrying on a campaign against France which he attributes largely to the feeling engendered by the Premier Tardieu's unwise expulsion order.

Renaitour describes his efforts to discuss the matter with Mr. Hearst, who "only smiled and changed the subject, although he once remarked with a melancholy sigh, 'Paris! What a delightful city!'"

20 YEARS AT FILENE'S

Being an informal report of progress of the Filene business since it moved across the street to its present site, twenty years ago this week

TWENTY YEARS ago today, more than 250,000 persons attended the opening of the new Filene store, in the handsome building at Washington and Summer streets, now known as the Filene Main Building.

Since that auspicious day, in September, 1912, this business which you know so well has——acquired, one by one, seven additional pieces of property until it now occupies the entire square block bounded by Washington, Summer, Hawley, and Franklin Streets

—purchased the old established business of the R. H. White Company and the Continental Clothing Stores which it now operates under their original names,

—built a large warehouse, shipping and fur storage building on Memorial Drive, Cambridge,

—opened branch shops in the following New England communities, Worcester, Providence, Portland, Wellesley, Magnolia, Northampton, South Hadley, Hyannis, Falmouth, and York Harbor,

—increased its annual business from $4,810,900 to a high point of $47,422,265 (including subsidiaries) for the year ending January 31, 1930, though this year's total will be much less,

—increased the number of employees from 1047 to 4425 (including subsidiaries) at this present writing,

—and maintained, without weakening, its policy of intensive specialization, leadership in style and values, and ready cooperation with manufacturers, customers, and employees.

IN retrospect, this progress of 20 years is extremely gratifying to us. We hope it may be interesting to you. Now, with the same hands at the helm, with spirit undimmed despite temporary depressions, and with high purpose unchanged, this Filene business looks forward with optimism to many more decades of development providing even greater opportunities for service to YOU.

CONFERS WITH TAMMANY LEADERS

Four of Five County Chairmen Believed to Favor Ex-Mayor Running Again

New York, Sept. 6—Disturbed by the widespread criticism of his attack on Gov. Roosevelt, former Mayor Walker suddenly decided to return to the city today and consult with his Tammany advisers on his plan to seek vindication by re-election

Strong opposition has developed to a Walker candidacy aimed at injurying Roosevelt's chances of carrying the state in the presidential campaign, and party leaders have scheduled a series of conferences for this week in the hope of amicably solving the tangled situation.

The first of these meetings was expected to take place today, with the return of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic chieftain, Walker's chief sponsors.

In Democratic circles there was general belief that John Theofel, Queens leader, and David S. Rendt, Richmon County chairman, would stand with Curry and McCooey in backing Walker's nomination. This would leave Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx County chairman and Roosevelt supporter, as the only one of the five county leaders to oppose Walker.

James E. Finnegan, whose charges of waste and inefficiency in the New oYrk City administration were before Gov. Roosevelt when Walker resigned, declared today Walker "ran away, not to save his own face, but to save his wasting, misgoverning organization's face."

"Had Tammany not been threatened, it would have been vastly better for Walker to take his medicine than to subject himself to charges of being 'yellow,'" said Finnegan.

He predicted "Walker will be kept from running again for the same reason that he resigned."

Republican Legislature, and even by a Democratic governor who leaned backward in his endeavor to be impartial and judicial.

Mayor Walker might therefore have felt himself justly entitled to a "change of venue," and could rightly have referred his case to the people of New York city, who are after all the ones most intimately concerned with the character and qualifications of their mayor.

But a defendant asking even justifiably for a change of venue has no right to abuse the judge when that judge is an honorable and well-intentioned one, though perhaps not as shrewd a politician nor as judicious a referee as the complicated situation required.

Mayor Walker's diatribe may therefore be just another evidence of his irresponsibility, or it may be the prelude to a sustained attack upon the governor.

If it is the latter the Hearst papers desire very definitely to notify the mayor and Tammany that these papers have no sympathy with such an attitude and will in no way contribute support to it.

* * *

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT'S conduct was entirely beyond cavil or criticism.

Having once allowed himself to be maneuvered into a difficult situation by a partisan Legislature, it was his duty and proper policy as a Democratic official dealing with another Democratic official to be excessively severe rather than to open himself to the accusation of being in the least degree lenient.

This severity was necessary for the benefit of the mayor as well as for the credit of the governor.

It was necessary for the reputation of the party.

The mayor should recognize these facts and speak with proper respect of a governor so worthy of respect.

Whether they shall be supporters of Mayor Walker or not depends in great degree upon the mayor's attitude toward the governor and toward the general welfare of the party to which the mayor claims to belong.

He was greeted by Admiral Ledo and the president of the Chamber of Commerce and tendered an informal reception in a hotel here before he left for Paris.

Gen. MacArthur carries with him messages of greeting from officials in the U. S. Army to high dignitaries in the French military circles. After the military maneuvers he will make a brief tour of the principal European cities.

RUBIO DISAVOWS CALLES BREAK

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 6 (AP)—Pascual Oritz Rubio, until last week President of Mexico, emphatically denied on arrival here today that he resigned because of differences with Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, "strong man" of Mexico.

"I resigned solely because of illness, which dates back to my military camapigns, and because of the absolute necessity for a long rest," he said.

The 56-year-old engineer, rancher and former chief executive smiled happily as he crossed the Rio Grande from Juarez.

He arranged to leave late today for San Diego, Cal., where he will make his home.

"Mexico will have no more revolutions," he said. "The institutions are consolidated strongly. The national revolutionary party is a guarantee of peace and harmony."

Church Head Slain in Woman's Home

Shakertown, Ky., Sept. 6 (AP)—This old community, founded by the Shakers more than a century ago, today sought the solution of what authorities believed was a murder. The victim, Robert Horn, 50, manager of the Presbyterian Pennybaker school for girls, was shot to death.

Mrs. Thurman Cox, 33, in whose home authorities were told the shooting occurred, is charged with murder.

BLUEBLOOD, IN GREEN PANTS, IS FOUND GUILTY

BEAUTY HELD IN MAINE SLYAING MYSTERY

VACATIONISTS SWARM BACK BY LAND AND SEA

BLUEBLOOD AND WORDS

Color ran riot through municipal court today when Prescott Townsend of Beacon Hill was arraigned. Townsend, a blueblood, appeared clad in green velvet trousers, bedroom slippers and a green sport sweater that occasionally revealed a well-tanned back. The charge was that the blueblood who wears green pants, made the air blue with profanity to one of his tenants. He was found guilty and the case placed on file. Above shows Townsend in the unconventional garb in which he appeared in court. (Staff photo.)

USED PROFANITY AT TENANT, POLICE SAY

Prescott Townsend, of Beacon Hill, Appears for Arraignment in Colorful Garb

Not often is the municipal court routine brightened by green velvet trousers, but brightened it was today through the trousers of Prescott Townsend, one of Boston's bluebloods, but a Bohemian at heart.

Townsend, owner of the Brick Oven in Joy st., of The Barn and other Beacon Hill property, was arraigned before Judge Cohen on a charge of using profanity to Mrs. Grace Cassidy, one of his Joy st. tenants.

During the arraignment, Special Officer Frank Bombach of the Joy st. station told the court that many complaints have been made to police about Prescott's actions.

Mrs. Cassidy, however, was the only person daring enough to testify against him, Bombach declared.

The Bohemian club owner appeared in court wearing artistic green velvet trousers, bedroom slippers and a green sport sweater, which slipped up occasionally, revealing a tanned back.

According to Mrs. Cassidy, he called for his rent in advance on Sept. 1 and was told to come back Saturday and she would pay him. To this he replied that she was a thus-and-so "liar," the woman declared.

Townsend denied the charge indignantly but admitted that he had turned off the hot water for an hour.

"As a matter of fact I had considerable patience with her, your honor," said Townsend, "but it just drives me mad when I don't get my rent."

"Well, I am going to find you guilty and place you on probation with the understanding that you take into consideration her condition," Judge Cohen said.

Body of Drowned New York Boy Found

Haverstraw, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—After an all night search on land and water by about 300 persons, the body of Eugene Cahill, 8, son of William Cahill, former town clerk, was found in the Hudson today. He was lost while on a picnic.

Vets' Relief Officer Recovers From Fall

John D. Connors, 54, of Roxbury, deputy commissioner of the soldiers' relief department, who broke two ribs when he fell 20 feet from a tree behind a Dorchester house yesterday, is reported as resting comfortably at the City Hospital.

HEAVY TRAFFIC AS HOLIDAY WINDS UP

Autos, Buses, Trains and Boats Return Thousands to Their Homes and Jobs

By boat, rail and highway, returning week-enders and vacationists choked the paths into Boston today as the last of the Labor Day travelers returned home.

Bus terminals, Atlantic ave. piers and North and South stations bore the brunt of the travel, but State roads and other arteries furnished police many problems.

The express companies, too, were largely affected by the great trek back to the city.

Trucks were piled high with baggage of every description and freight terminals were reported congested.

The heaviest highway travel was reported on Newburyport turnpike, the road from points in New Hampshire, Maine and points beyond.

The "No. 3" route from Cape Cod and the highways from the South Shore beaches also had their share of heavy traffic.

The New York boat arrived with a capacity list of passengers and thousands of others returned from that city by bus, most of them emerging at the busy Park sq. terminals.

75 in Town Give $1 Each to Roosevelt

Warm Springs, Ga., Sept. 6 (AP)—This little village, the Georgia home of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, has raised $75 in $1 contributions to his campaign fund for the presidency. The money was forwarded to National Democratic campaign headquarters in New York, with a list of subscribers representative of the entire community.

MILLION-DOLLAR BIRTHDAY

Miss Barbara Stoddard of New Haven is one girl who made no effort to conceal her right age. For when she reached her 21st birthday yesterday she stepped right into $1,232,693 as a present. This amount was made possible by a trust fund established by the late Rebecca Darlington Stoddard, her mother. In 1927, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Lovejoy, Barbara's sister, received a similar amount. ACCUSED PHONE THIEF HELD

Charged with larceny of a telephone and damage to wires of the New England Telephone Co., Thompson Boyd of Clarendon ave., Roslindale, was arraigned before Judge Hayden in Roxbury district court today.

According to police, Boyd tore a pay telephone from the wall of an apartment house in Hemenway st., Back Bay, yesterday. Police say the telephone contained $6.50. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000.

When Hubby Talked to Self Guests Started Running

When Raymond F. Burns started talking to himself in the garage it was time for his wife's guests to flee the house, she told Judge Dow in probate court at Salem today.

Mrs. Burns, proprietor of a Lynn beauty shop, asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and intoxication.

Once, after holding an animated conversation with himself in the garage, her husband entered the house and chased her guests out, she testified. A man's home is not his castle, but his bar-room, she said he told her.

The hearing, which ended in a reserved decision, was enlivened by the arrival of a telegraph messenger boy, who passed out sample candies to the spectators until Judge Dow caught sight of him.

TRYST DEATH TO GRAND JURY

Bangor, Me., Sept. 6—The case against Mrs. Marjorie Buffum, 39, divorcee, held without bail as the slayer of John Marshall, 30, of Portland, was given to the grand jury today.

Marshall, described by police as the "gentleman bootlegger," died from a revolver shot in a rented cottage at Lake Sebasticook, Newport, Friday night. The divorcee said the revolver fell from his pocket and went off as he stooped over to pick up a cigarette.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Buffum, who retained Michael Pilot of Bangor originally as her attorney, has also retained former Senator Hodgdon C. Buzzell of Belfast.

PAY CUT LOOMS IN CAMBRIDGE

All Cambridge city employes will receive a reduction in their salaries unless four policemen, who have as yet refused to yield, immediately sign pledge cards donating 10 per cent of their salaries to the city's unemployed, it was learned today.

Mayor Richard M. Russell made known the fact that the city employes would receive a cut in a communication to Chief of Police John J. McBride.

The four policemen upon whom the fate of all city employes' salaries rests are Sergt. Charles R. Mallahan and Patrolmen Joseph O'Connor, Roy Hughes and Patrick J. Murphy.

The communication to McBride from Mayor Russell is taken as the latter's ultimatum concerning the four who have refused to sign the pledge cards.

SUN BACK EDICT LEADS TO FINE

The edict against "sun back" bathers in Nahant brought Andrew Bell, 41, of Worcester, a $5 fine today in Lynn court.

Bell's arrest yesterday disclosed that the Metropolitan District Commission will enforce the law that no person can step off the State beaches unless attired in a garment that covers from ankle to neck.

In court today police testified that Bell had been warned several times to return to the beach from a grass plot. He not only ignored the warnings but "got fresh" about it, police testified.

Bell paid the fine.

PLATINUM BEAUTY UNABLE TO TALK ABOUT THE TRAGEDY

MAY HAVE INQUEST

That the interview would be delayed appeared possible, however, as Miss Harlow's stepfather, Marino Bello, declared the actress still was on the verge of a collapse.

Meanwhile Coroner Frank Nance of Los Angeles County said he would review all police evidence in the case and make up his mind today whether an inquest would be necessary.

"If facts warrant it," Nance said, "an inquest will be held tomorrow."

Hollywood, shocked over Bern's death, recalled his many benefactions, and how he had aided Barbara La Marr and Mabel Normand in their misfortunes, and had helped advance the careers of John Gilbert, Joan Crawford, Estelle Taylor, and other stars and player..

An autopsy was the first official move today in the investigation of the tragedy which brought to an end what Hollywood had believed an ideally happy marriage.

Officials were also investigating the reason for delay in notifying them of Bern's death.

ALONE IN MANSION

Bern was alone in the house after Miss Harlow, accompanied by John Carmichael, the butler, and Mrs. Carmichael, the cook, had gone to the home of Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, for dinner Sunday night.

Bern's body, entirely unclad, was discovered in a small dressing room off the bedroom on the second floor of the home by Carmichael, who notified studio executives, including Irving Thalberg, who summoned police.

> "Dearest Dear—Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you.
> "PAUL."

A postscript read:

> "You understand last night was only a comedy."

What the "comedy" episode was that preceded Bern's death was a mystery detectives today were endeavoring to unravel.

Carmichael said the two were on the best of terms just before Miss Harlow departed for her mother's home Sunday night.

ALMOST TOO MUCH

"Mr. Bern was lying in bed Sunday evening when I entered his room, carrying Miss Jean's evening dress," Carmichael said. "Miss Jean said:

"'Paul, dear, I'll say good night now in case I don't see you again.'"

"'Good night, dear,' Mr. Bern replied.

"Every day he sent her a present of some kind—flowers, candy, books and other love gifts. He was never harsh, nor was she. They were an ideal couple, almost too much in love with each other."

Carmichael expressed belief the crisis in the lives of the two must have come Saturday night when Bern went to the studio and dined with his wife.

DINED TOGETHER

"Mr. Bern's postscript to his note said: 'You understand last night was only a comedy,'" the butler declared. "Something must have happened between them at that last dinner together.

"Mr. Bern read and slept all day, Saturday, while Miss Jean was working at the studio. He dined with her—she only had two hours' rest for dinner—between 6 and 8 o'clock. He came home about 10:30 and read until quite late.

"From her mother's home she telephoned Mr. Bern and asked him to come over, and he told her:

"'It's so late now, darling. You must work tomorrow, so why don't you stay there tonight?'

SEEMED HAPPY

"On Thursday night they went dancing in the Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica. They were very happy. And on Friday night a writer friend was a dinner guest in the house.

"Then came Saturday when they were separated by Miss Jean's work.

"On Sunday Mr. Bern slept late. Miss Jean 'phoned about 1 o'clock, but he was still asleep. She cautioned me not to wake him.

"Later that afternoon Mr. Bern awoke. My wife took him the newspapers. Then Miss Jean came home.

"They seemed as happy as ever. We were all planning to go to Miss Jean's family home for dinner. I went along with Miss Jean. I first knew that Mr. Bern was not intending to go when she said: 'Paul, dear, I'll say good night in case I don't see you again.' It surprised me, as he had planned to go.

NO ANGRY WORDS

"But there were no angry words spoken. They seemed as much in love as ever.

"We left the house about 8:15 o'clock. The chauffeur returned for my wife a little later. He must have done it after she left, about 9:15.

"And more than 12 hours later I found the body. I can't understand it. It is a mystery why Mr. Bern should take his own life. He had everything to live for."

GARDENER'S STORY

Police planned to question George Davis, negro landscape gardener, who said he had heard some words of controversy between Mr. and Mrs. Bern.

He said they had had some discussion over the title of the home which Bern deeded to his wife on their marriage. Davis said he understood from the conversation Mrs. Bern desired in turn to deed her home to her parents and Bern objected.

Bern's intimate friends, in an efford to explain his deed, said he had a "supersensitive personality," and reacted readily to the slightest emotional strain. From a philosophical viewpoint he frequently had discussed suicide, they recalled.

Strangely significant became the "family inheritance" Bern had mentioned. He had descended from a strain in which there had been previous suicides.

MOTIVE MISSING.

This led to the belief that Bern had taken advantage of his beautiful wife's absence to commit suicide in a move that previously had been carefully planned.

But the motive for his act was missing!

Detective Joseph Whitehead, who launched an investigation into the strange death, said the case was "clearly suicide," but he nevertheless ordered Bern's two guns examined for fingerprints. One revolver, unused, was found on the dresser.

Reports on the discovery of the body were confusing. Joseph Taylor, chief of detectives, was trying to learn why "we were not notified until nearly two hours after the body was discovered."

Carmichael said he found the body when he went to his master's bedroom to throw up the shades shortly before noon yesterday. He said Bern was alone in the house over night. Later, Davis, the gardener, asserted he had been called into the house after Carmichael had fainted upon making the gruesome discovery.

AT MOTHER'S HOME

Miss Harlow worked late Saturday night at the studio, and police believe the suicide had its inception that night.

Miss Harlow was at her mother's home when she received word of her husband's death. She had gone there Saturday night. Friends said she understood Bern would be occupied by a business engagement and she wished to be with her mother, whose husband was on a fishing trip.

Sunday a dinner party was arranged in the home of the actress' mother. When Bern did not appear, Miss Harlow telephoned him. Authorities were informed he told her he was occupied with business affairs and wished to be alone. When she suggested that she return to their home, he asked her to remain at her mother's home.

Bern's servants had been at Mrs. Bello's home for the party and it was upon their return to the film executive's residence that the tragedy was discovered.

GOOD SAMARITAN

Bern, a bachelor until his marriage July 2 to Miss Harlow, was known as a good samaritan to the hard-luck wanderers of Hollywood. He sponsored activities to aid unemployed film workers and provide money for school children whose parents were destitute.

His career began some years ago in New Lork as an actor, stage director and production executive. In 1926 he became a technical director of films.

Miss Harlow, member of a Kansas City (Mo.) family, was married previously to Charles McGrew of Chicago. She sprang to film fame in "Hell's Angels," introducing to the screen a revolutionary type of actress and beauty.

Her marriage to Bern surprised even the better-informed social circles of the film colony. At the time Bern gave his 21-year-old bride a deed to the expensive estate in which he later ended his life.

Just Too Much in Love, Says Butler

Hollywood, Sept. 6—Jean Harlow and Paul Bern were "almost too much in love with each other" John Carmichael, butler for the studio executive, said today discussing the strange suicide.

"Every day he sent her a present of some kind—flowers, candy, books and other love gifts. He was never harsh. Nor was she. They were an ideal couple."

Bern Always Ready to Help Film People in Need

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 6 (INS)—From star to the lowliest extra Hollywood mourned today the death of a friend.

For Paul Bern was more than a studio executive. He had earned through his kindly and modest interest in all with whom he came in contact the unofficial title of "Father Confessor of Hollywood."

His place in his profession was high. Starting as a writer he had carved for himself a career in the motion picture industry which placed him at the top rank among executives.

But he will always be remembered for his sympathy, understanding and willingness to help in times of need.

Whether it was money, a word of counsel, a helping hand over an obstacle or a battle in behalf of some unfortunate, Bern was always ready.

It was Paul Bern who came to the aid of the late Barbara La Marr, when misfortune overtook that famous screen actress. Bern purchased a home for her in Altadena, provided the best of medical care and personally sought to cheer her on to recovery.

And, when she lost her battle against disease, it was Bern who sat at her bedside and eased her last hours.

It was Miss La Marr who said Bern had an "understanding heart."

Lovely Mabel Normand found Bern loyal to the last. When she was involved in the mystery surrounding the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, it was Bern who shielded her, forced other executives to come to her with overtures of friendship.

Boy Heir Vanishes With Father in Texas

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 6 (AP)—Police are hunting Hugh Bradford Jenkins, 10, grandson of the late Mayor T. L. Bradford of Dallas, and one of the three heirs to Bradford's estate, valued at more than $1,000,000.

The boy was last seen yesterday when his father, Hubert J. Jenkins, 38, of Louisville, Ky., took him to a movie.

TRAGEDY LIKE ECHO OF BRIEF ROMANCE

Hollywood, Sept. 6—With John Gilbert as their best man and Hollywood's elite at their wedding, Jean Harlow and Paul Bern were married in the Beverly Hills home of Miss Harlow's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bello of Chicago, on July 2.

The platinum blonde was a divorcee and Bern the picture colony's most confirmed bachelor. Miss Harlow's ex-husband is Charles F. McGrew, a wealthy Chicagoan. While he had never married, Bern had paid court to the late Barbara LaMarr, Estelle Taylor, Pola Negri, Nita Naldi and other film stars.

Bern, 42, was a German Jew who came to America as a boy. He had been a clerk in Wall Street. Then he went into the legitimate theater, directing various Eastern stock companies.

MARRIAGE CAUSED SURPRISE

After a brief fling of picture making in Canada in 1914, he reached Hollywood. Except as an actor, he worked at every phase of the movie game. He was a film cutter, laboratory manager, director and scenarist.

An avid student and self-educated person, Bern was regarded as one of Hollywood's most cultured men. At the time of his death he was employed in an executive capacity at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

GAVE BRIDE HIS ESTATE

His marriage to Miss Harlow greatly surprised his friends. There was 21 years' difference in their ages. Bern's name first became linked with hers when he fought to get her the principal role in "Red-Headed Woman," picturization of the Katherine Brush novel.

Bern proposed to Miss Harlow less than a week before their marriage. After the ceremony, the couple took no honeymoon, but returned to their studio duties. Bern's wedding gift to his bride was a magnificent Beverly Hills estate, which had been his bachelor residence.

Known as the "father confessor" in Hollyoow, Bern had a reputation as a kindly man. He helped many less affluent movie folk. He had an extensive personal payroll for these unfortunates. He was one of the most popular figures in the film colony.

Among the pictures Bern directed were: "Open All Night," "The Dressmaker From Paris," "The Getaway," and "Square Shoulders." He was a member of the Authors' League of America.

Bern's Brother, Mystified, Flies to Probe Suicide

New York, Sept. 6 (INS)—The youngest brother of Paul Bern left by plane today for the Pacific coast, determined to "find out why Paul killed himself—or what happened."

"There must be a motive for suicide," Henry Bern told reporters as he took off from Newark airport. "What motive could there have been in this case? I can't conceive of one."

Bern, who attended the wedding of his brother to Jean Harlow, said the movie executive told him only recently he was very happy.

"I am at a loss to understand why Paul should do such a thing," he added. "This note he left doesn't explain things, either; it doesn't make any sense to me."

Asked about reports that his brother had quarreled over the dismissal of Russian servants, Bern said:

"That doesn't mean a thing to me."

The younger Bern is a real estate broker and lives in New Rochelle. He was accompanied to the airport by his sister, who declined to discuss her other brother's death.

Only a few days ago, Jean Harlow wrote to Nils T. Granlund that she planned to come East shortly, but there was no indication of trouble.

The letter read, in part:

"Hello, N. T. G., darling: I long for the five-a-day. Enjoying my first vacation and am as tanned as Blanche's twin sister. I'm heading straight for New York as soon as I can. . ."

"N. T. G." knows Jean well and also had known her husband for eight years. He was surprised at their marriage, he said, because they were "two different types."

"I was with her the day she got her divorce," he recalled. "She remarked that she was 'free and 21' and when I asked her if she planned to marry, she exclaimed, 'Never again.'"

Jean Harlow's Career Story of Glorified Allure

Hollywood, Sept. 6 (INS)—Beautiful Jean Harlow, 21, who has been the blonde culmination point of many a climactic adventure of screen drama in her meteoric rise to fame, today was under the shadow of a real life tragedy.

Ten years ago Miss Harlow, born Harlean Carpenter of Kansas City, was a student in the Hollywood School for Girls.

Her latest success was in "Red Headed Woman."

She was married in 1927 to Charles F. McGrew, member of a wealthy Chicago family. They came to Hollywood. She became interested in pictures and played minor roles in Roach and Fox films. McGrew and her grandfather objected so she temporarily abandoned her interest in films.

But that apparent lack of interest was revived through an offer to play in "Hell's Angels." Her "platinum" hair became famous all over the world.

McGrew had become unhappy and agreed with Miss Harlow that a separation was best. They were divorced and Miss Harlow received alimony and a $20,000 residence in Beverly Hills.

Blessed with beauty of face and figure, Miss Harlow's career is a story of glorified allure. She ever has played the role of the exotic siren. Silvery white hair, blue eyes, satin skin and spectacular clothes—all contributed to make her a vivid and unforgetable personality.

After starring with James Cagney in "The Public Enemy," Miss Harlow went to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio—and there met Bern, hard-working production executive.

Vermont Fisherman Finds Nephew's Body

Wilmington Vt., Sept. 6 (INS)—Hollis Stetson went fishing in Lake Deerfield today and found the body of his nephew, William Stetson 22, floating near Deerfield Island. The youth disappeared July 27 while on a fishing trip.

Following his disappearance, two divers scoured the bottom. Dynamite was used and planes flew over the lake in an attempt to find the body.

PAIR HELD FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

While their alleged victim, a girl of 14 years, wept in the courtroom, two West End youths were held in bonds of $2000 each in municipal court today on charges of attack.

The girl, from New Bedford, told police she had been lured from a wedding reception to a Myrtle st. house on the pretext that she was to visit a Bohemian club.

As a result of her story, Charles Poleo, 23, and John DeLucca, 23, both of Barton st., West End, were arrested. A hearing will be given them Sept. 15. Because of the postponement, the girl did not testify.

Miss Thelma Sibley, of Weston and Chelsea, was held for a hearing on the same date on idle and disorderly charges. She was arrested as she entered the Myrtle st. house after the alleged attack.

AGED LIFER CHEERED BY PARDON ACTION

press his physician for permission to attend the meeting in order to make a plea for Steenburgh and that if such permission were denied he would send a letter to the council.

"I will vote for Steenburgh's release," he said. "From what I understand of the case it is worthy of the sympathetic consideration of everyone."

ANOTHER CHANCE DUE

Councillor Eugene B. Fraser of Lynn said:

"From what I have read of the case in the Boston Evening American, it seems to me the man ought to be given another chance. I am satisfied he could not have realized what he was doing. I thing he should be released and given a chance to prove his worthiness to the sympathetic consideration of the governor and council."

Councillors Cote, Schuster, Campbell, Andrews and Brennan also made known that their sympathies were with the aged man. Councillor Knox, because of illness, will be unable to attend the meeting.

Five men, under the direction of Archie A. Ashley, chairman of the Medford Unemployment Committee, began a canvass of business men today, seeking a job for Steenburgh. Ashley was positive he would have the pledge of such a job before night.

Steenburgh's wife and 18-year-old daughter, Florence, who were unaware he had served 17 years of a life sentence until they received the dreadful news he had been returned to prison for life, are prepared to appear before the council if their presence is necessary.

They have not visited Steenburgh in prison because they cannot bear to see him in a place wholly incompatible with their memories of his kindness and honesty and because they hope and pray he will be restored to them tomorrow.

PROUD OF HIS ACT

Mrs. Steenburgh told the Boston Evening American today that she and her daughter, instead of being ashamed, were proud of Steenburgh's dramatic deception that kept them without knowledge of his past. She said:

"First of all I want to tell my husband through your paper that I am making every effort to get him out of prison and back to me and his child. I want him home and I hope that he will be back with us tomorrow night.

"When I first heard of his predicament and the revelation of his deception that had run through the 18 years of our married life I was dumbfounded. I could not believe what I had heard was true.

"Since last Tuesday morning however, I have had an opportunity to sit down and reason this thing all out. To study it from all its angles.

"After considering the situation I am satisfied that the fact that my husband had hidden his true past from me all of those years was more to his credit than to his detriment.

"It must have been a terrible struggle for him to keep his secret. There were at least two times that I know of that his heart must have come into his mouth so close did I come to learning from other sources what his past had really been.

"The first time was eight years ago. Jim from the day I married him had cautioned me never to go near his mail. It was the only rule that he held steadfast as head of the house. One day, it was around election time when the letter boxes are filled with advertisements, I went down to the box and picked up a letter addressed to Frank Howard.

HOWARD AGAIN

"I took the letter upstairs and opened it. I thought it was an advertisement. I read it and the whole afternoon I was in a daze wondering whether it could be possible that what I had read on a printed card could possibly concern my husband.

"It said, 'It is important that you report, with this card to the parole board offices, room 128 State House, Boston, Mass.'

"When my husband came home and I questioned him about the card, he seemed crushed, but he said 'Throw it in the waste paper basket. If those people can't get correct addresses up there let them worry about their cards.'

"I was satisfied that the mistake had been made at the State House and that my husband was in no way concerned with the message on the card that I had read.

"A year ago I again almost learned of his past. One Sunday morning Mr. Robinson called at the door and I didn't happen to be dressed for the reception of guests and I sent him down to the door.

"I leaned over the railing and heard something about the name Howard and I went along about my work. I thought the man was looking for directions to the home of a neighbor. Mr. Robinson told me about that call the other day. He said my husband sent him along by saying, 'Don't you know you are not supposed to call around here?'

"When my husband came upstairs that morning and I asked him who rang the bell he said, 'It's a fellow looking for a family down the street.' I never gave the matter a second thought.

"I suppose the whole world will be wondering how I feel towards my husband now. "Well, I want to say that I am waiting for him to come home. Jim you know hasn't a great many more years to live. He is 72 now and his health isn't the best. He is my husband and for 18 years he has been the best husband in the world.

GOSSIPS NO WORRY

"He is also Florence's father. That little girl hasn't slept a wink since they took him away from us. Every night she prays that they will bring him back to us. She went to church and communion yesterday in hope that her prayers would be answered and that God would direct the minds of those men in the governor's council to be lenient and give him another chance.

"I am not worried about what the neighbors or the gossips are going to say. And Florence is not worrying about what her schoolmates might say when she goes back to school next week.

"We are both going to hold our head high in the thought that no other man in Medford faced the same struggle through life that Jim did and continued to live as a law-abiding citizen and a good provider for his family.

"You know, I believe that something in his mind [illegible] and caused him to go into that store."

MAYOR CURLEY 'SNOW PLOW' OPENS ROAD TO ROOSEVELT

Chicago, Sept. 6 (INS)—Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, self-styled "Roosevelt snow plow," started clearing a path for Democratic victory in the Northwest today. He was headed for Minneapolis and St. Paul, following his Labor Day address in Chicago yesterday.

His appearances in the Twin Cities will begin a speaking tour through the northern tier of states. Afterwards he will go down the Pacific coast ending his itinerary in Los Angeles.

"I'm breaking the way for Gov. Roosevelt when he makes his tour, starting about Sept. 14," Mayor Curley said in dubbing himself the "Roosevelt snow plow."

"From my observations here in Chicago and neighboring towns, I'll say there is nothing to it but Roosevelt."

In his address to labor unions and local Democrats here yesterday, Curley vigorously assailed President Hoover and stated that a continuance of the Republican regime would mean "continued economic misfortune to labor."

Mayor Curley said:

"There is no possible hope for the consummation of the project for the creation of an inland empire in the Mississippi valley in the event that the present President of the United States succeeds himself. He not only has displayed an inability to reach a decision and adhere to it, but upon this particular project has indicated a hostility which leaves no possible hope in the mind of even the most optimistic that he would favor its consummation provided opportunity presented itself.

KEY TO PROSPERITY

"We have witnessed America emerging upon three occasions from periods of great depression to enjoy long periods of prosperity. The development of railroading in the United States marked one expansion era; the introduction of the automobile and the development of this great industry marked the second great era; development in the field of electrical inventions, telephone, telegraph, and hydro-electric generation marked the third.

"I am firmly of the opinion that the future of America is in a large measure dependent upon this Mississippi River project, and have faith in the courage and wisdom of Franklin D. Roosevelt to believe that under his leadership it can be carried to a successful conclusion.

"His tremendous majority in 1930 as a candidate for re-election as governor was no accident. It represented the enthusiastic support of substantially every element in New York State.

A crowd of 40,000 cheered and other thousands listened over radios as Mayor James M. Curley of Boston delivered a memorable address in Soldier Field, Chicago, as part of the Labor Day ceremony.

SAVED WATER POWER

"His work for the conservation of natural resources is in large measure responsible for whatever opposition to his candidacy that is found today. He incurred the hostility of the exploiters of natural resources. Under his leadership the great water power of New York has been preserved from spoilation by the few and preserved for the benefit of the many.

"The public of the United States is familiar with his labors, have confidence in his judgment and apparently are prepared to accept his leadership. They recognize that with a leader of the type of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the depression which started in 1929 would today be but a memory and the employes who today are taxing the resources of every city and town in America to provide for their needs would be at work.

"The election of Franklin D. Roosevelt will insure a determined and unrelenting fight for the repeal of the 18th Amendment and an immediate modification of the Volstead Act through which respect for American institutions may be restored, and the morality of the youth of the land conserved, and the poor man permitted to enjoy the priviledge that today is enjoyed by the well-to-do alone."

Curley Demands Jobs for All and High Wages

Mayor Curley said:

"Today the hosts of organized labor assemble throughout America to review the past, consider the present and plan for the future.

WON REFORMS

"The past is a story of struggle against superhuman odds, under circumstances which called for stout hearts, brilliant minds, unflinching courage, almost unending sacrifice and exceptional leadership. The full measure of the contribution of labor to the peace, patriotism and progress of America has never been accorded the tribute so richly deserved.

"Without the contribution of organized labor, the pledge of equal opportunity would be but empty substance and meaningless.

"The difficult problem to understand is the political action of the workers, by acting as a unit it would be possible for them at all times to at least prevent the election to public office of men known to be hostile to what labor represents.

"It is equally difficult to comprehend outspoken hostility to organized labor by anyone who works for a livelihood, yet these two paradoxes exist—but there is a prospect that ultimately they will, either as a matter of expediency or salvation, cease.

"It is a singular anomaly that substantially every progressive measure upon federal or state statutes may be traced not to the home of culture or cash, but to that of the toiler.

"To organized labor we owe the eight-hour day, Saturday half-holiday, Workmen's Compensation Act, Mothers' Aid, and the saving wage, which has not only brought comfort, cheer and courage to the workers and his family but prosperity to America.

"The present industrial depression is engaging the attention of leaders in every walk of life who seek a solution for the problem of unemployment of more than 10,000,000 men, notwithstanding the fact that America is the richest nation in the world.

"Prior to the establishment of chain banking and chain grocery and provision store systems, a period of depression was more alarming to the corner grocery or provision dealer than to the unemployed. The corner grocer or provision dealer was the good Samaritan in the past.

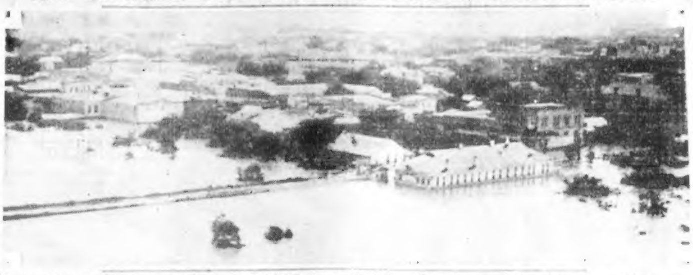
FOR HIGH WAGES

"The local banks, prior to the creation of the chain system, in turn tided over the grocery or provision dealer, but this condition unhappily no longer exists.

"The chain store demands cash and the chain bank demands endorsers, and, unfortunately, the unemployed can furnish neither cash nor endorsers, so that it may be truly said that the chain systems have unfortunately placed the unemployed in chains from which the only release is that which comes from work and wages.

"The fallacy of reducing wages is today recognized and there is every indication that the hosts of labor will shortly be reinforced by economists and capitalists all interested in a program that will make for continuity of employment for the worker and prosperity for the nation.

RIO GRANDE, ON RAMPAGE, FLOODS TEXAS TOWNS



In one of the worst floods in recent years, caused by the overflow of the Rio Grande, which separates Texas from Mexico, millions of dollars in property have been swept away and an undetermined number of lives lost. The photo above, taken at Eagle Pass, Tex., gives a good idea of the extent of the flood. It shows the Custom House and surrounding buildings, partly submerged, while at the left a footbridge across the river is only inches above the raging torrent. (Int. Newsreel Photos.)

FLOOD RAGES ON IN TEXAS VALLEY

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 6 (INS)—The crest of the Rio Grande's sweeping flood was somewhere between Rio Grande City and Mission at noon today. Record high stages were forecast for the lower Rio Grande valley section.

The flood failed to reach the proportion predicted at Rio Grande City, never rising above 35 feet there, a foot and one-half below the record flood stage.

Water was beginning to overflow more rapidly into the big floodways of the valley. A report to Brownsville said that the International bridge over the river at Roma had been damaged.

The crest of the flood was expected to pass through the lower valley this afternoon and tonight.

War Correspondent Dies

Cookeville, Tex., Sept. 6—William Young Bennett, 58, former war correspondent of the London Times, is dead here.

Peabody Youth Held on Girl's Charge

On complaint of a 19-year-old Haverhill girl, Joseph Halpern, 20, of Northend st., Peabody, was arrested by Lynn police today and held for a hearing a week from today on charges of attempted assault.

Miss Valeri Davis charged that Halpern attempted the assault after she left a dance hall at the Lynn-Peabody line.

GERMANY MUST ARM, ASSERTS SCHLEICHER

Koenigsberg, East Prussia, Sept. 6 (INS)—Germany's demand for arms equality with the rest of Europe was reiterated in strong terms here today by Lieut.-Gen. Kurt Von Schleicher.

"Germany," he said, addressing officers of the Reichswehr after maneuvers, "is determined to do whatever it deems necessary in the interest of its national defense."

"We refuse to be treated as a second rate nation. Germany claims at least the same rights as Switzerland—the right to enjoy a perfect and unrestricted system of national defense.

WANTS PEP PUT BACK IN 'OBEY'

A Newton wife was in East Boston court today because her husband fails to obey her now as much as he did when he was first married.

Mrs. Gertrude Cohn, 37, of Read ct., Newton, let out the family secret when she faced court for failing to have registration certificate of the family automobile in her possession.

"I told my husband to give me the registration but he didn't do it," Mrs. Cohn told Judge Joseph H. Barnes.

"Well, doesn't your husband obey you?" inquired the court.

"He used to when we were first married, but he doesn't obey so well lately," was Mrs. Cohn's reply.

POLICE IN NEW CLASH WITH DOLE HEADS

ceiving aid, out of 500 cases investigated, the police will go right on reporting the number of aliens being aided.

Welfare heads contend the law requires aiding aliens like citizens. The police point of view is that, if huge sums up to a possible $4,000,000 are being doled out to non-citizens, something should be done about it, even if deportation necessary.

If all the 27,000 city aid cases showed as high a proportion of aliens as did the first 500 cases, the total being paid this year to this class of the population would be more than $4,000,000, it is claimed.

It was also learned that while last week's conference in the mayor's office ended in apparent harmony, Mayor Curley and the welfare board members were given to understand by the police that everything uncovered by the investigating officers would be reported, and nothing would be hidden.

130 HAVE CARDS

Police have records showing that 130 persons arrested in a two-months' period had welfare cards. Three-fourths of these were arrested for drunkenness. On man had been arrested 88 times, several times for non-support and wife-beating.

It is the police attitude that no man arrested for non-support while he had a job should receive city aid, although his family must and should be given relief.

Chicago, Sept. 6 (INS)—Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, self-styled "Roosevelt snow plow," started clearing a path for Democratic victory in the northwest today. He was headed for Minneapolis and St. Paul, following his Labor Day address in Chicago yesterday.

What action police will take if co-operation in the investigation is not forthcoming shortly is not known, but it is understood that various means of forcing compliance with the mayor's order for co-operation are being considered.

Welfare officails today claimed a falling off of more than 50 per cent, in application for aid and ascribed this to the exposures made by the Boston Evening American, followed by evidence of faking, fraud and undeserving cases by the police.

New applications and re-applications for aid last week aggregated only 400 as compared with 900 for the first week in June, and officials asserted that this was undoubtedly due to publicity.

Peters' Son Recovering

Dole Man Jailed for $50 Fine in Auto Crash Case

Superior Court had its first case involving welfare aid in Boston today when Warren Laflin, Highland st., Roxbury, who collects $9 weekly from the city for himself, his wife and one child, was sent to the House of Correction for a month.

Laflin was sent away by Chief Justice Hall for failure to pay a $50 fine in an auto crash case.

Laflin was found guilty last June of driving to endanger and leaving the scene of an accident. He was given until today to pay the fine. He went before Judge Hall today and said:

"Your honor, I am unable to pay. I haven't been able to get work. I'm on the welfare list."

"This is not the first time you have been in court and I think the best thing to do is to give you the minimum of two weeks on each offense," said the court.

Edward H. Willey, treasurer of the Boston public welfare board, said today that the city would lose nothing by the mysterious theft of $500 at the department's offices two months ago.

Willey said that the two paymasters who handled the fund from which the money disappeared would have to make up the loss, although they were considered guilty of carelessness, not of the actual theft. They have been transferred to other duties. Willey said the police have made no report on the results of their investigation of this matter.

A warrant will be asked for a Lynn father of five children, according to Joseph Cole, secretary of the Lynn public welfare board, who said this case was the most brazen that has come to his attention.

A police investigator discovered that the father has been working in a shoe factory for amounts ranging from $12 to $31 a week, while two sons have also been working. The family has been getting $7 a week city aid for seven weeks.

4 DRIVERS HURT RUNNING FARM BLOCKADE

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 6 (INS)—A desperate band of striking farmers, deserted by their colleagues throughout the grain belt, continued to blockade roads into the city today, after an outbreak of violence in which four truck drivers were injured.

The drivers were injured when pickets attacked a truck train that ran their blockade on highway 75, near James, Ia., nine miles north of here. When the trucks made the dash, the pickets hurled stones and clubs at the drivers. One truck was wrecked when the pickets threw a log in its path.

Marvin Eyler of Craig was injured when a stone was hurled through the windshield of his father's truck. James Brummer of Sioux Center, Carl Johnson of Ireton, and Charles Roundtree of Oyens were also hurt by flying missiles.

The incident aroused a high tension throughout the Sioux City area. The strikers announced they would not call off the blockade, and warned farmers not to try to pass. They issued such warnings since the strike truce was called by Milo Reno, national president, almost daily, but a group of farmers in Plymouth and Sioux counties, to the north, ignored warnings and employed truck drivers to make the effort.

MRS. LEMKE KIN TO GET $2550

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 6 (AP)—A new chapter in the Harry F. Powers case will be written on Harrison County books this week with settlement of a property suit of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of Northboro, Mass., victim of the matrimonial agency killer.

Sheriff W. B. Grimm of Harrison County sued the Powers estate for $15,000 after Powers was hanged in the State prison on conviction of killing Mrs. Lemke. Grimm, executor of the Lemke estate, claims money, jewelry and other valuables were missing.

Lawyers for both sides admitted a settlement had been made for approximately $2550.

Mrs. Lemke was one of five persons whose bodies were found turned on the farm Powers owned near here.

COUPLE ROUTED BY FUSILADE

Moncks Corner, S. C., Sept. 6 (AP)—Officials today sought several unidentified men who surrounded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Silktn, middle-aged couple near here and drove them out with a volley of bullets.

When authorities went to the home to investigate they found it deserted and evidence that something like 100 bullets had been fired.

Silken and his wife escaped unharmed and went to the home of relatives.

Seeking a motive for the attack, officers said they had reports Silken last week had said he was going "to work for the government" and get paid for each "Still" he turned up.

ASTRONOMERS AT PLYMOUTH

The nearly 300 scientists from all over the globe attending the first meeting in America of the International Astronomical Union, put aside scientific discussions this afternoon and took a pleasure sail to Plymouth.

Today's session, fourth of the meeting that will end next Friday, was confined to reading, in various languages, of reports of scientific commissions.

The reports were of a highly technical nature on various phases of astronomical research.

Shortly after noon the astronomers boarded the boat for Plymouth, where they viewed the famed Plymouth Rock and other points of interest and dined at Hotel Pilgrim.

Showers to Follow Abnormal Humidity

Abnormal humidity and high temperatures combined to make an uncomfortable day for Greater Boston today but cooling showers were promised for tonight by the weather man.

An early morning rain that registered .07 of an inch, left the moisture that accounted for a humidity of 88 per cent, 17 above normal. Combining at 9 a. m., with a mercury reading of 76 degrees and southwest winds, it contributed largely to the discomfort. Tomorrow will be fair and cool, the weather man promised.

England's Sunk! Going Into Sea 9 Inches a Century

York, Eng., Sept. 6 (AP)—England is sinking gradually to sea level at the rate of nine inches every 100 years, Capt. T. E. Longfield, ordinance survey expert, told the British Association of Scientists today.

"The evidence seems conclusive," he said, "that the level of high tide 2000 years ago must have been at least 15 feet lower than at present."

The Bank of England is exhibiting "disturbing behavior," having sunk more than six inches since 1868, and St. Paul's Cathedral is gradually tilting over from the effects of the subsidence, he said.

Main Ford Plant in Detroit Reopens

Detroit, Sept. 6 (AP)—The main plant of the Ford Motor Co., which has been shut down three weeks, was reopened today. Company officials announced that employes gradually would be returned to work.

Only former employes were being returned, the officials said.

M'GRATH OPENS HALEY PROBE

Mayor McGrath of Quincy, it was revealed today, is investigating the case of Wesley Haley, Quincy lawyer, to ascertain if he has been the victim of police persecution.

Haley was arrested for drunkenness on August 13 by Clement Horrigan, police liquor sleuth and college student.

He was released, but a short time later was arrested for disorderly conduct. He was found not guilty. Haley then was arrested for attempted criminal assault on Horrigan's sister Mary, 17, and has been held for the grand jury.

Mayor McGrath, it is understood, has questioned several officers and has as yet found no substantiation of Haley's claim of persecution, but will make no decision until another officer, now on vacation, returns.

The mayor is said to be doubtful about why Haley was arrested on the disorderly charge by an officer not on duty, when another policeman, on duty, was present. The latter gave testimony which aided Haley's acquittal. The arresting officer was accompanied by Miss Horrigan.

Lynn Girl Eloper Refused Annulment as Wife No. 2

The open season on strange marital tangles became complete today when Judge Harry R. Dowe in probate court at Salem, refused to annul the marriage of a Lynn girl who eloped with a man she said she didn't know had another wife.

"I think I knew," Judge Dow told the petitioner, Mrs. Myrtilla Smith Nichols, 26. "There's nothing I can do about it."

So, according to Mrs. Nichols' story, Walter O. Nichols a corset salesman, has two wives, and at the suggestion of the court he is being sought by the police.

TRAILED BY FATHER

The young wife said her father, who trailed them South after the elopement, forced the marriage. She now lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Smith, of Cherry st., Lynn, and the woman with whom she shares a husband is also a Lynn resident, Mrs. Annie Kelley Nichols, she said.

Mrs. Nichols, under questioning by her own lawyer, Robert Weiner, said she did not learn until three months after she had married Nichols in Norfolk, Va., that he had another wife.

Judge Dowe didn't like the manner in which the story was being brought out and he took the questioning out of Weiner's hands. Interrogating her himself, he brought out that she and Nichols during their elopement spent seven nights in various cities en route south before they were wed.

DISCREDITED BY JUDGE

Mrs. Nichols said they tried to get marriage licenses in three places but failed because of her youthful appearance.

"I do not believe this woman is telling the truth," said the judge. "I believe she knew all along that Nichols was married and that they had no intention of getting married when they started out. I have no confidence in her and I think she is hiding something."

Weiner tried to interrupt and Judge Dow said:

"I don't want to hear any more from you. You had your opportunity and I was forced to conduct the hearing myself. I am willing to believe Nichols has another wife but I will not grant an annulment."

"But she's married to a married man! What can we do?" Weiner protested.

"There's nothing I can do," said court. "The superior court has ruled that a marriage cannot be annuled unless one of the parties has been deceived. That is not true in this case."

$52 HOLDUP IN DORCHESTER

Stopping the manager, James J. Ford, as he was about to go to lunch, a lone, armed bandit held up a chain store in Marshfield st., Dorchester, today and robbed the store and Ford of a total of $52.

Ford, when confronted by the bandit, was ordered to lie face down on the floor behind the counter.

The holdup man, with a revolver in his hand, opened the cash register and took the money, then took Ford's own personal funds from his pocket.

Somerville Thieves Get Rifles, Pistol

Thieves got two rifles, a revolver and a little more than $3 in cash in three breaks in Winter Hill section of Somerville over the holiday, police learned today.

A loaded revolver was taken from Edward C. Prescott's fish market, 286 Broadway. Two rifles were stolen from the J. W. Howard florist shop, 328 Broadway. Belair Brothers, 5 Temple st., reported the loss of $3.07 in pennies.

THE MYOPIA HORSE SHOW ON LABOR DAY BROUGHT out the usual devotees as well as many summer visitors along the shore. It was an ideal day . . . warm, but a fresh breeze blowing over the schooling field . . .

MRS. DUDLEY PICKMAN, JR.

* * *

Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., with her splendid family of young folks, was in evidence in many of the classes . . .

* * *

Mrs. Neil Rice with C. G. and Emmy-Lou watched each event with interest . . . the Rices are among the most enthusiastic horse lovers in New England . . . Neil rides on the polo team at Myopia when he is in this part of the country.

* * *

Always to be seen in riding togs when the occasion offers, Mrs. Frederick Ayer (Hilda Ayer) and her buxom boys and girls took the jumps with grace and ease . . . the Ayer children have been in the saddle since they were wee tots . . .

* * *

Other important Hamiltonites who one may expect to see at this annual event are the Bayard Tuckermans . . . Phyllis and the twins . . . and Bayard himself, who is master of ceremonies.

* * *

THE POLO GAME AT THE CLOSE OF THE DAY IS always attended by smart society and on the ringside we noticed the Albert C. Burrages, Jr., the Russell Burrages, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herrick, Mrs. Charles F. Ayer, Miss Sally White, from Manchester, the Sumner Pingrees, who will move into their beautiful new house soon in that vicinity, called Flying Horse Farm . . .

* * *

Mrs. Gilbert Steward and the Paul Moores from New Jersey were smartly attired for the occasion, as was Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Woods, Jr.

* * *

Fall Styles

IT IS TOO SOON FOR THE new fall styles to appear on the social horizon . . . but we hear that everything will be wide shoulders, very wide, and small hats with brims . . .

* * *

WE NOTICED SEVERAL frocks of linen and silk with large organdy ruffles outlining the armsides, or forming huge capes over the shoulders . . .

* * *

* * *

LEG o' MUTTON SLEEVES are showing in the autumn fashions . . . even on the coats and sweaters . . . let us pray that these innovations will not become too involved; we have won the simple lines after years of slavery . . . may we fight to keep them.

* * *

Those Hats

WE LIKE THE LITTLE AND big hats which allow the soft tendrils of hair to be seen . . . particularly becoming to the young miss whose bob is curly . . .

* * *

WE LIKE IT EVEN BETTER for the older matron whose face may be framed in the soft white hair that is her crown of glory . . . which peeps from under a jaunty brim and boasts a rose or fluffy feather.

* * *

MRS. JOHN S. LAWRENCE was missing from the Myopia Show . . . she wended her way Newport-ward on Friday to be gone until the middle of this week . . .

* * *

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS, THE dance for the benefit of the Children's Hospital at Silver Beach, Falmouth, Saturday night, drew all of the fashionables on the Cape . . . it was the windup for the week of races, tennis, golf and dinners . . . the proceeds of which will go to swell the coffers of this wonderful institution . . .

* * *

WE HEAR THAT ELEANOR HALLOWELL, whose debut takes place this winter, was one of the evening's favorites . . . in yellow and brown which matched her lovely eyes, she was the object of a great deal of admiration . . .

* * *

EDDIE FAY AND THE twins, Herbert and Abbott, Elizabeth and Louise Harding were noted in the throng of dancers . . .

* * *

Eugenia Frothingham

SUSAN MORSE, one of the bright lights of last season, was also well escorted . . . she is a cousin of Eleanor Hallowell's . . .

* * *

* * *

THE FROTHINGHAMS were there, Eugenia and Anne, whose beautiful place at Wings Neck is always crowded with the gay young set . . .

* * *

Handsome Gowns

THERE WERE MANY handsome gowns worn . . this is a really fashionable event and all of swanky Cape Cod turns out for this last affair of the season . . .

AMONG THE STAGS WERE George Crompton, Jr., and George Lombard . . . and of the young marrieds, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker (Polly Beale) came over from their place on Wings Neck as did Elizabeth Scaife, Roger Scaife's popular daughter . . .

* * *

WE HEAR THAT MRS. LOUISE McMILLIAN has left the Major . . . that is, she has left him in Washington, again . . . for the past few weeks she has been on the South Shore teaching Culbertson afternoons and evenings at the Cohasset Golf Club. Daughter Louise has been assisting her . . . Laddie is at a boys' camp. . .

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

In a Picture Gallery.
(A Private View.)
Arrogant, richly at ease,
And difficult to please,
I saw fine women come
To gaze on dreams like these:

The visions of his heart
That trembled to impart
Some fragment of his thought
Through the strange lips of art.

In silk and bright brocade,
In green and gold arrayed,
They came to this still room
To see what he had made.

They loitered just a bit:
"Ah! that is exquisite—
That touch, that flash, that tone—
I'm crazy over it!"

They gossiped, smiled and posed,
A grande dame frankly dozed,
Woke with a start, moved on—
And the great portals closed.

In that hushed room were stored
High dream . . . Their motors roared
Without; yet, once or twice each Spring—
Well, one had to be bored!

Every young writer should look into Percy Marks' treatise "The Craft of Writing" (Harcourt-Brace & Co.). And if those with literary aspirations think that they can be taught how to write they should note these words:

"No teacher, regardless of how gifted he may be, can create virtues in the student. In other words, no teacher can make a writer out of any student; no teacher ever has, and if writers have come out of certain famous college courses it is because potential writers went into them. . . . A teacher, even the greatest teacher, is only a teacher, not God, and he is able only to develop inherent power; he can never create it."

On Punctuation

There are chapters on words and their meanings; on style, which includes punctuation. And here Mr. Marks pauses to say that punctuation is often as essential to the meaning of a sentence as the subject or predicate is. A comma added or a comma deleted may not only alter the meaning, it may even give it wit or sobriety. And to prove his point he quotes this sentence from Normany Douglas' "South Wind":

"Don Francesco was a fisher of men, and of women.

The comma, he holds, gives the sentence most of its significance; omit the comma and the meaning is not only altered but the significance is lost.

He also discusses pace, rhythm, both in prose and verse; figures of speech; and he has many interesting things to say on the production of essays and short stories and novels.

There is nothing pedantic about Mr. Marks. He can be amusing at times, as when he says:

"No one can determine beforehand how every member of a large audience—or a small one, for that matter—is going to react to a story; but to a certain extent every author writes for a particular audience. I have already contrasted Harold Bell Wright and Carl Van Vechton. Mr. Van Vechton does not expect Mr. Wright's readers to like his books, even to understand them; and one can be very sure that Mr. Wright never pens a line with Mr. Van Vechton's audience in mind. One writes for Iowa-in-Los Angeles, the other Montparnasse-in-New York, little worlds which swing in orbits far distant from each other."

Reveals Qualities

Almost every literary novice is imitative, sometimes consciously, often unconsciously, and to that natural expression of hero worship Mr. Marks has no objection.

It is diverting to find that when he last held a class in composition H. L. Mencken was the idol of the undergraduates. A few of his students burned incense before the shrine of James Branch Cabell; others gave their adoration to Sherwood Anderson, and those entirely lacking in a sense of humor or an ear for style said their prayers to Theodore Dreiser.

Mr. Marks gives many passages from Stevenson, Conrad and other fine writers to reveal the qualities in them which will cause their work to live.

MISS ROSAMOND HOLTON AND WILLIAM L. SHEARER, 3RD, WED

Swampscott Church Scene of Ceremony

The first of a number of important weddings during this week took place at noon today in the First Congregational Church, Swampscott, when Miss Rosamond Holton became the bride of Mr. William Leonard Shearer, 3d.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Herbert Henry Holton, and the Rev. Boynton Merrill, D. D., of West Newton, officiated, the ceremony being followed by a reception at the Neighborhood Club, Philips Beach.

The bride approached the altar in a beautiful creation of cream satin, with the bodice and sleeves made up of rose point lace, her cap being also of rose point lace that has been in the family for many generations. She carried a bouquet of fall flowers.

Attendants

She was attended by Mrs. Reginald H. Smithwick as the matron of honor who selected a gown of rose beige with straight lines trimmed on the neck and sleeves with brown fur, and dark brown velvet hat to match the fur.

All the bridesmaids, a group of ten well known society ladies, wore heavy pale green crepe, trimmed in the same manner as the matron of honor, and hats of dark brown velvet. They carried bouquets of fall flowers. The church was decorated with fall flowers.

The bridesmaids included Miss Edith Mitton, Miss Dorothy Hall and Miss Marion Duane of Boston, Mrs. Charles Terry Collens of Chestnut Hill, Miss Catherine Brown of Brookline, Mrs. Arthur Whitfield Huguley, Jr., of Gallorepes Point, Swampscott, Miss Barbara Proctor of Little's Point, Swampcott, Miss Margaret Ives, and Miss Margaret Emerson of Marblehead, and Miss Dorothy Austin of Dedham.

Mrs. Herbert H. Holton selected a gown all in brown for the wedding of her daughter.

Usher Group

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Sturgess Wilson of Park ave., New York, as best man. The ten ushers included Mr. Arthur Whitfield Huguley, Jr., of Swampscott, Mr. Richard Holden of New York, Dr. Reginald H. Smithwick of Chestnut Hill, Mr. Frederick Luther Felton of Wellesley, Mr. Morton Cole of Hingham, Mr. Donald Cady of Brookline, Mr. Charles Terry Collens of Chestnut Hill, Mr. Franklin Elias Huntress of Marblehead, Mr. Horace Partridge of Brookline and Mr. Eveleth Reed Todd of Lincoln.

A progressive dinner was given last night for the whole of the wedding party, when Mrs. Franklin E. Huntress served the first course, after which the party moved to the bride's home, where the main course was served, while the final course was served at the home of Miss Margaret Emerson, one of the bridesmaids. Several other dinners and luncheons have been given in honor of the bride and bridegroom during the past few days.

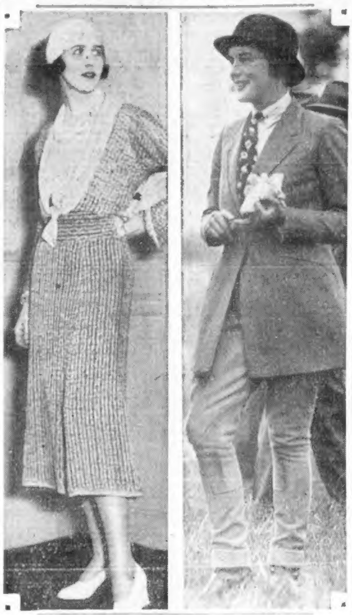
Harvard Grad

Miss Holton was graduated from Miss May's School and was presented to society in the 1929 season. She is an active member of the Junior League.

Mr. Shearer studied at the Choate School and was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1929. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding, Institute of 1770, The Speakers, Harvard and the Union Clubs.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Shearer will be at home to their many friends at 27 Country Club rd., Brookline.

HORSE SHOW ATTENDANTS



MRS HERRICK MRS. STEWARD

MRS. ROBERT F. HERRICK and Mrs. Gilbert L. Steward, the former Anne Ayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, always attend the annual Myopia Horse Show, which is held on Labor Day at the Myopia Hunt Club in Hamilton.

Royal Little to Wed Saturday

Mr. Royal Little, nephew of Dr. Arthur D. Little of Brookline, and Miss Augusta Willoughby Gage Ellis of Easthampton, Long Island, N. Y., will be married on Saturday, September 10, at 4 o'clock in Easthampton. Mr. Royal Little is a graduate of the Noble & Greenough School and of Harvard, class of 1919.

His finance is a sister of Mr. Frank H. Ellis and of Mr. Gage B. Ellis of Philadelphia, and is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Ellis of that city. She is a member of the Junior League.

Boston Man Elected to Division's Board

Priscilla Price Goes Shopping for the Fall

Dearest Anne:

What a glorious Holiday week-end! Summer is really over! Folks are pouring home every hour. Over the road, the rails and the sea they come. How nice it seems. Friendly homes opened up again, waving fresh curtains to each other in the sunshine, and the shops bustling with renewed activity. Fall, lovely goddess of the harvests—the glowing goldenrod and the super-moon has arrived! Over night our Summer dresses are out of season—we are faced with the annual problem of refurnishing both our wardrobes and home. Not a formidable task, either, with such existing Fall clothes and "fixins" beckoning from every side—First of all—

"GAY NINETY" BANGS ARE BACK

And never have they been so intriguing as these 1932 Paris Hair Modes interpreted by Filene's Beauty Shop. Best of all there's a Bang fashion to enhance each type of hair and personality from bewitching "Tendrils" to the more nonchalant "Windblown." The "Fringe" sketched above softens older faces. The scattered wisps of hair just veil the forehead. Notice the "Windblown" also sketched—Need I tell you how smart and sleek it looks? It drifts in such a fascinating way about the temples, leaving the forehead bare. Then there's the "Tendril"—a glamorous wreath of thin flat curls that have a bewitching grace. But the thing for you to do is to talk with Miss Murray, just back from Paris, about the latest ideas in bangs, bobs and waves. You'll find her in Filene's Beauty Shop—street floor balcony. Phone Hancock 3800 for appointments.

It's No Use!

Trying to cover that superfluous hair on your lips—your chin or between your eyebrows with powder—and it's surely useless to spend hours "tweezing" it. There's only one permanent way to remove this unlovely growth and that's the electric needle. Our electric needle specialist, Miss Elizabeth Sparkes is an expert, recommended by physicians. She uses nothing but Bulbous needles, that remove each hair so that it never can return. She has a 40-needle multiple machine for removing hair from the arms and legs. Miss Elizabeth Sparker is at 120 Tremont St., Room 334. Tel. Hancock 7592.

SANDERS Maternity Shop

Smart Fall maternity apparel is now being featured by the Sanders Maternity Shop. Slenderizing frocks in all the new Fall fabrics and colors Crinkly crepes, light-weight wools, travel-tweeds and sheers. The trim frock sketched is only $12.85. Others from $6.85 up. Maternity Foundation garments scientifically fitted; recommended by leading physicians, $5.50 and up. Also a full line of After Maternity Foundation Garments to remould the figure. Baby Book sent on request. The Sanders Maternity Shop, Inc., is at 171 Tremont St. Liberty 5684.

NICE AND NONCHALANT!

Here's the swaggering answer to the campus Maiden's prayer! A casual hat that's new, smart and only $2.75! Intricately tucked, stitched and smartly tailored—made of a fine imported glove fabric that looks like suede. It comes in all Fall colors and white in Wethern's, Temple Place thru to West St.

Read Every Line

carefully, Anne—and take advantage of the exciting values that are beckoning to us. Young men's fancies may turn to thoughts of love in the Springtime—but in the Fall feminine fancies certainly turn to thoughts of replacing jaded summer wardrobes—and what fun we'll have. The new Fall colors are absolutely bewitching—they reflect so cleverly the warm reds, the browns and golds of turning leaves. Don't you think that shopping in the Fall is really much more exciting than at any other season of the year? More news next Monday,

Devotedly,

Priscilla.

SOUTH SOLIDLY FOR ROOSEVELT, POLL SHOWS

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 6 (US)—President Hoover's managers knew what they were doing when they decided recently to waste little time or money campaigning in the solid South or border states this year.

From latest returns in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American, in cooperation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, there appears no prospect that Mr. Hoover will get a single electoral vote south of the Ohio and the Potomac.

150,000 VOTES TABULATED

With more than 150,000 ballots tabulated from the entire country, Governor Roosevelt is leading by a majority of 31,636. The vote stands:

Roosevelt	91,185
Hoover	59,549

The poll returns seem to have settled down for the time being to a 60-40 per cent division in Roosevelt's favor.

New ballots tabulated over the holiday week-end from those five states of the Central South—Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina—that four years ago cast their electoral votes for President Hoover, reflected no change during the last week. They served merely to strengthen the indications of a week ago that all of these states this year may be definitely placed in the Roosevelt column.

WIDE MARGIN FOR ROOSEVELT

As a group, these five states are dividing their vote 69 per cent for Roosevelt to 31 per cent for Hoover. Kentucky, the closest of the lot, is a litte better than 3 to 2 on the Roosevelt side.

North Carolina, which in three presidential elections prior to 1928 showed a normal Republican vote of 40 to 42 per cent, but which four years ago voted 55 per cent Republican, has swung back to the Democratic side, and is even more Democratic than when Woodrow Wilson was elected president. The old north state is four to one for Roosevelt in the poll vote.

West Virginia, generally regarded as debatable territory, is voting almost two to one Democratic. Tennessee is going 7 to 3 for Roosevelt and Virginia, three to one on the Democratic side.

ROOSEVELT OUT FOR LEHMAN

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 6 (INS)—Shunting his presidential campaign activities into the background for the time being, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt came here today to attend the New York state fair and to further the gubernatorial candidacy of his "right hand man," Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Tammany Leaders John F. Curry and John H. McCooey have maintained silence regarding Lehman's candidacy. Ever since Edward P. and Daniel A. O'Connell, Democratic leaders of Albany county, tossed the hat of Mayor John Boyd Thacher, 2d, of that city into the ring for the gubernatorial nomination, there has been a growing belief that Tammany might strike at Roosevelt by refusing to endorse Lehman.

Only three major addresses will be made by Gov. Roosevelt on his 8000 mile presidential campaign swing through the west, beginning September 12. They will be delivered at Topeka, Kan., September 14; Portland, Ore., September 21; and Sioux City, Iowa, September 29.

The Topeka address will offer his program for restoring prosperity to the farmers and will be the main "farm speech" of the campaign.

Spracuse, N. Y., Sept. 6—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, at the State Fair today, was asked by the Rev. O. R. Miller, state superintendent of the New York Civic League, to stop race-betting on the fair grounds.

G. O. P. FUNDS RUNNING LOW

Washington, Sept. 6 (INS)—The prevailing shortage of campaign funds was sharply emphasized today, when Treasurer J. R. Nutt of the Republican national committee filed with the clerk of the House a statement for the three months ending August 31.

The committee was saved from a deficit on its books, Aug. 31, by the inclusion of a $50,000 loan from the Commercial National Bank of Washington, as a part of the receipts.

Total contributions from June 1 to August 31 were $76,026. Other receipts boosted the total to $103,828.

Expenditures were $97,631, leaving the committee with a balance of $5,997. With the loan excluded the committee would have a deficit of about $9000.

The largest contribution, which was $10,000, came from former Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado.

Analysis of Nation-Wide Poll By Hearst Newspapers on Presidential Candidates

Washington, Sept. 6 (US)—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt in the nationwide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American, in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

CURTIS SKIPS IN AND OUT

Only two persons in Boston knew that Vice-President Charles Curtis was in Boston for more than an hour Sunday afternoon, having changed here for a train for the west after arriving from Providence where he had been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Webster Knight, 2d.

Thomas McGuinness of the railway mail service, so far as could be learned last night, was the only Bostonian who spoke with the Vice-President.

"Curtis was standing by the counter at the telegraph desk, and I was waiting for him to send some wires," said McGuinness last night. "I was in a hurry, and it annoyed me to have to wait about 10 minutes for him to send several messages, until suddenly I saw his face and recognized him as the Vice-President from pictures I had seen.

"When I had sent my messages I introduced myself to him and we sat down for a few minutes to talk. He said he was here changing trains and added that he felt as much at home in Boston as a cracker barrel in New England."

Wet Democrats Vie in Nevada Primary

Reno, Nev., Sept. 6 (AP)—Former Governor James C. Scrugham and Maurice J. Sullivan, Reno attorney, sought the Democratic nomination to Congress today, each urging repeal of the 18th amendment and payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Senator Tasker L. Oddie was unopposed for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

COOLIDGE FOR HOOVER ON HIS RECORD

New York, Sept. 6 (US)—Former President Calvin Coolidge, in a copyrighted article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, urges the re-election of President Hoover and Vice-President Curtis, and declares "the safety of the country lies in the success of the principles of the Republican party."

The article is entitled "The Republican Case." With it the magazine prints an announcement that the Democratic case will be presented by former Governor Alfred E. Smith within a few weeks.

CITES PERSONAL ATTACKS

Mr. Coolidge, in his endorsement of Hoover, writes:

"He has been subjected to most bitter personal attacks . . .

"While others have been content to criticize and oppose, he has laid out a great policy of relief and reconstruction. The only leadership in this crisis worthy of the name has come from him. He deserves re-election for what he has done and for what he has prevented. We know he is safe and sound."

And of Curtis the former President says:

"I always had great respect for his judgment, his tact and his loyalty. He has that reliable maturity which can be secured only by long service."

Mr. Coolidge, after expounding the principles of his party, asserted:

"Parties are judged not only by their promises but by their performances. The past three years have brought the greatest problems. While the Republican party does not claim it can perform the impossible, it is willing to be judged on its record."

LAUDS ECONOMY PLAN

Discussing that record, he says:

"The problem of providing adequate revenues has been attacked on two fronts. In the first place, the President has insisted on a rigid system of economy. Besides the recent relief bills, he has vetoed bills . . . calling for expenditures of over $1,900,000,000.

"In about $200,000,000 of this the veto was effective, but bonus legislation, which has cost the country about $1,700,000,000 and contributed to the continuance and distress of the depression, was passed over his veto . . .

"It is only because of the legislation requiring further payments to veterans, and the large sums devoted to public works to relieve unemployment, that the present budget is more than it was in 1929 . . .

"The other method of approach had to be by increase taxation. Again the required action was taken by the Congress and the public opinion of the country. But at last by reducing expenditure and increasing the revenue it is believed that the budget has been balanced. Any other course . . . would have resulted in untold disaster."

Of the party's prohibition plank, Mr. Coolidge says:

"The platform calls for obedi- paper-money basis, which . ence to and enforcement of the law and denounces nullification. It recognizes that very grave abuses have grown up under the the Eighteenth Amendment which call for some remedy . . .

"When this provision of the platform is boiled down, it reduces itself to a pledge to try to abolish existing evils and recognize the the right of the people to determine their own laws."

College for Anglers to Show Dubs How to Hook 'Em

Bradenton, Fla., Sept. 6 (AP)—A "college" to equip fishermen with something more than luck has been established here by Dr. C. H. Bryan, retired Chicago physician.

The physician says he organized a course because he was "pained at the ineptitude of dubs."

Dr. Bryan and fellow-fishermen form the faculty of the "college." They will show the newcomers how it's done, not as a profit-making proposition, they explain, but just for personal satisfaction.

The fishermen's "college" issues a "diploma," conferring a degree of "bachelor of fishing," which reads:

"This certifies that (the holder) has shown himself to be a brave man when tackling a big fish. He has had his thumbs burned on his reel, his rod broken and his bait torn from his line without showing any signs of fear. He also speaks the truth when telling of the size, strength and ferocity of a fish."

The "diploma" also certifies the holder has completed a course of instruction and passed "examinations."

Mystery Rose Among 50,000 Election Ideas

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—50,000 ideas have been submitted, say officials, to the song, slogan and knicknack department at Democratic national headquarters but the most subtle of all is an emblem bearing no words at all—just a rose pinned to a piece of felt. Figure it out for yourself.

Sen. Brookhart May Run as Independent

Washington, Sept. 6—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Progressive Republican from Iowa who has turned anti-Hoover, disclosed today he is considering an announcement soon as to whether to run independently for re-election.

G. O. P. SLATE IN CONNECTICUT ALL PICKED

New Haven, Sept. 6 (INS)—Harmony was the watchword today as final details were ironed out for the Republican state convention which opens tonight in the Shubert Theater.

With the slate agreed upon, and the adoption of a wringing wet plank in the platform assured, there appeared little likelihood that any fight would develop on the floor of the convention.

The slate which the convention was expected to ratify overwhelmingly, was as follows:

United States Senator—Hiram Bingham, of New Haven.

Governor—John H. Trumbull, of Plainville.

Lieutenant Governor—Roy C. Wilcox, of Meriden.

State Secretary—John A. Danaher, of Hartford.

Comptroller—Anson F. Keeler, of Norwalk.

Treasurer—Albert E. Lavery, of Fairfield.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Back to the gossipy grind. I can find no newspaper record of the divorce of the Sherwood Andersons (novelist) and take it for granted that the news has never been published. Sherwood's comment at the time the divorce was granted was: "Any woman ought to be privileged to divorce a temperamental man." Leo Friede, the Weilin' Walker, has shifted his attentions to the dashing Edna Lambert, gifting her with a bracelet and a ring. Over in the Medical Arts Sanitarium, Belle Bennett, famous screen mother, lies dangerously ill. There's been so much publicity connected with Julie Eagels Dea-Jule Lloyd alleged daughter of the late Jeanne, that city editors may fight shy of this—but here is a genuine news note. Julie was secretly married to Charles Hughes of Chicago two months ago, left him two hours later, is now having the merger annulled and enters St. Mary's of the Woods Convent in Notre Dame, Indiana, within a fortnight. The terms of the Rudy Vallee-Fay Webb settlement were signed last night and some time today Fay leaves for Reno to start the divorce proceedings. Among your genuine Broadway romances add that of the stocky young Jack Selig and the pulchritudinous June Gale. Hollywood insists the Gene Markeys (Joan Bennett) are studying bassinets.

Roxy is spending $100,000 on a contraption that dresses the gals right on the stage—through colored lights. The rift between Emil Coleman, band leader, and Damon has widened with the result that the popular orchestra leader won't be seen at the El Patio this coming season. This funny picture business. Milton Wallace, who plays the Jewish papa in "Blessed Event," which opened last night, was brought to the Coast, all expenses paid, on a three months contract, simply to figure in about a minute and a half action. The portrait of Ruth Etting on the cover of the new Radio Stars was painted by Ruth herself. Dr. Nathaniel [illegible], the dentist-librettist, and blonde Vera Milton are definitely in The Throes. From Paris, Joe Zelli writes that despite his bad luck here he may return to Manhattan for another fling at the nite club biz this Winter if market reports continue favorable. Despite current reports, Libby Holman will not return to the stage, she has told friends, and to date, hasn't received any offers. Trend of the times: Stock Exchange houses are reopening branch offices again. The Minskys have al[illegible]sed and made up. The Roosevelt publicity dept. is frowning upon the use of the campaign song, "Row, Row with Roosevelt" because it refers to Franklin D. as "A chip off the old block" and the "old block" meant was a Republican. Mrs. Seymour Felix, wife of the dance director, is ailing.

Joseph Bach, president of the National Safety Bank and Trust Company, has resigned. Fannie Brice's stock is still soaring with the result that the $91,000 invested has now reached a total of almost $275,000. A regular theatrical switchboard controls the colored lights in the former Ivar Kreuger penthouse now occupied by Dr. Julius Lempert and Flo Kenny. Incidentally, many of the larger realty firms are limiting leases to three years maximum, figuring that by that time conditions will call for higher rents. But the owner of one of the larger buildings on Broadway in the 50s admits he is going to lose it, although he obtained it for almost nothing, because of his inability to pay the taxes. The Tyler Masons will be three soon. Gus Shy is out of "Ballyhoo," with various reasons advanced.

If the respective and respectable mamas of Milton Berle, the comic, and Lillian Roth, the warbler, have their way, the Roth gal will change her name to Berle. Harry Barris, who has been trying to get a foothold in this Great Big Wicked City, will open in the Village Grove Nut Club this month, and Burns and Allen, a pair of up-and-coming youngsters, happy though married, have just signed for [illegible] more weeks on the radio and a full year with Paramount Publix. The women probably know it already, but the Fall style in hair dress calls for bangs. Dorothy Dell, ex-Ziegfeld beauty, announces upon her departure for New Orleans that she won't return to Manhattan until she married. Something that impressed me in the flicker "Two Against the World" was that while everybody else in various scenes speared their baked beans with a fork, Constance Bennett insisted upon [illegible] a spoon. You pay more for your Long Island produce in Long Island than you do in New York.

Clap Calloused Mitts for "Circulation," a newspaper tome by Mary Lee Dutcher. The yarn centers about the defunct afternoon tabloid and the identities are thereby disguised. Mary Lee was secretary to the first managing editor. The charm and beauty and warbling of Carolyn Nolte at the Brook in Saratoga. Carolyn and Sam Feldman, after a tempestuous romance, are now scheduled to walk to the altar steps any day. Applause, too, for the finest screen performance of the year—Norma Shearer in "Strange Interlude." For once, here is a picture which surpasses the stage original. A grand achievement, take it from me. And finally, Oscar Howard's excellent cartoon in the current Judge, tagged, "Well, it looks like liquor's is coming back."

The first Eastern showing of the Marx Brothers' flicker, "Horse Feathers," was in a little obscure theater in Rutland, Vermont, Harpo having brought back a print and induced the management to run it off at midnight so a large audience, consisting chiefly of Alexander Woollcott, might inspect it. Corey Ford the humorist, flies back from the Coast shortly, to start work with Russell Crouse on Joe Cook's new musical. By the way, did you know that Leopold Stokowski, the symphony orchestra conduc, whom a recent interviewer quoted as using heavy accents, was really born in London and is half Irish? Never judge by a name. The John D. (King Features) Greens have a gal in their new bassinet. Katherine Downer (ex-"Show Boat") she's now Mrs. Jack Reynolds, became a mammy last week. Robert L. Ripley leaves Saturday on an unusual quest. A chartered steamer awaits him at St. Johns, Newfoundland—it's been renamed "Believe It Or Not"—to take him as far north as the ice packs will premit, where he will start search for the Sleeping Viking of Discoe, a warrior said to be marvelously preserved, armor, helmet, red-hair and all, in a tomb of solid ice off the Island of Discoe. And tomorrow, Lilyan Tashman travels Down Memory Lane here.

CLEARING UNITS TO SPEED HOME OWNER LOANS

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—Chairman Franklin W. Fort, said today the home loan bank board had been assured that regional clearing houses would be organized to help home owners refinance themselves.

The movement, which was put under way by the board at the U. S. Building and Loan League convention in French Lick, Ind., last week, has been aproved in three states and by a number of other state organizations Fort said.

The clearing houses will receive applications by home owners already filed with the board so building loan associations may refinance them. Fort said building and loan leagues in West Virginia, Iowa and in Hudson County, N. J., had assured him they would organize houses.

Fort expressed doubt that the board would be able to sell all the $134,000,000 capital stock of the 12 regional banks within the 20-day period provided, he added, the board planned to open the banks by October 15 with federal money if building and loan organization fail to subscribe the full amount.

Another Film Epic On Fine Arts Screen

That "Two Hearts," which beat in waltz time to break all American records for a film run, finds a strong successor to favor in this country in "Die Drei von der Tankstelle" (The Three from the Filling Station), which now holds the Fine Arts screen. In this Manager George Kraska has a new winner, for the operetta is almost as enjoyable as the matchless "Zwei Herzen."

"Skyscraper Souls" on Bowdoin Program

"Skyscraper Souls" is featured on the program at the Bowdoin. The companion picture is "The Midnight Lady." The vaudeville features include the Lightning Trio, roller skating stars; Nathan and Maybelle, in "A Study in Charcoal"; the Three Londons, tramp acrobats; O'Neil Brothers, chattering songsters and Jimmy Downing, master of ceremonies.

Ann Harding Is Selected by Radio for Lead in "The Fountain"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—Ann Harding, who has been something of a problem to Radio because it has been so difficult to find the right story, is to have the prize novel of the year. David Selznick closed negotiations Saturday with Charles Morgan for the screen rights to "The Fountain."

Louella O. Parsons

"The Fountain," easily the most sensationally successful novel of the year, had been widely read. While it is not the type of story you would expect the proletariat to enjoy, it numbers among its readers the great rank and file of the public.

Just got all ready to write a story saying that Sam Katz and his associates were on the lookout for a big, brawny athlete to play the lead in "King of the Jungle" when the telephone rang. Mr. Katz, we are told, has found this modern hercules in the person of George Bancroft Have George and Paramount made up or is he just doing this on the side?

Chatter in Hollywood

Harpo Marx is hunting the highways and byways for a house. Now, don't get excited, he isn't going to marry any of the pretty girls he escorts to the fights each week. He is only getting ready to entertain Alexander Woolcott, George Kaufman and Herbert Swope. The two former members of the intelligentsia have never been to Hollywood. Mr. Kaufman wrote the satire, "Once in a Lifetime" but got his material only from hearsay. Perhaps he will write another story after he finds out what Hollywood is really like. Ina Claire, who has become so beautiful that even her closest friends are commenting on her appearance is getting ready to make a picture. The report is that Radio has been doing some negotiating with her. Meanwhile, Prince Lichtenstein has been very devoted.

Ina Claire

I often suspect that Harry Cohn lies awake trying to think of new ideas for Columbia. He whispered in my hear just as I was leaving for New York that his company will make a picture in Chicago. He will call his opus "The World's Fair."

Barthelmess' Next

While Richard Barthelmess, Jessica and the two youngsters have been giving Denmark and Sweden the once over there has been a little concentration on Dick's next picture. He holds the record for having made fewer flops in the years he has been emoting on the screen than any other actor. Dick's first after he gets back from "Urrrupe" will be an original called "The Sucker." It's about a gentleman who is a prize fighter and thinks all outsiders are suckers.

Crosland to Direct

Alen Crosland has gotten himself a job and an interesting one too, from all I hear. He will direct "Forgotten Men" for Emil Jensen of Patrician Pictures. this is Alan's second picture for Patrician. His first, "Silver Lining," was released by United Artists. Edward Allen, a new one to me, has been signed for the leading role and for other Patrician pictures. A. Leslie Pearce does the big adaptation act, and work will be started immediately if not soner.

Snapshots of Hollywood

SAM KATZ is back at the Paramount studios after a week-end vacation. The FREDRIC MARCH party proved a great success. MARION MARX looked particularly beautiful in a gay ninety costume. ADELA ROGERS HYLAND sets sail for New York with the three children about Sept. 12. DICK HYLAND is almost ready in the big town. A romance in the younger set is reported between HUGH CHALIFF, MARY PICKFORD'S nephew, and JANE HARRIET BROWN, daughter of the JOHNNY MACK BROWNS. CORA SUE COLLINS visited her favorite boy friend, PAT O'BRIEN.

"LAUGH PARADE" Shows Ed Wynn at His Best ~ King Vidor Wins With "BIRD OF PARADISE"

Girl About Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

Love!
Golden laughter . . .
Sparkling eyes . . .
Happy meetings,
Tender sighs.
Fateful partings,
Bitter tears.
Then the memories,
And the years.
—"K"

Have We Been Busy!

So—it was a seven-and-a-half-pound baby boy that sent Sam (Of-the-"Met") Saef cutting up those capers on Saturday afternoon, eh? . . . And Somerville's Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elwell, Jr., are thumbing crib catalogs and about ready to decorate that "little room for Junior," eh? . . . And Alice Levin and Jack Rappaport joyfully suffered to a knot-tieing together at the Aperion Plaza on August 14, while Esther Goldberg and Charles Lebowich tossed superstitution out the window when they were one-and-onlyed on the 13th day of last month, eh? . . . And "Little George" Saks and "Big George" Shapiro are cutting loose in the wilds of Canada, while Dickie Whorf is missing his big Pierce-Arrow in which he cross-cou tryed back in from Cinemaland, with a pert chauffeur et al . . . And all because those Burns boys happened to like Old Orchard Beach at the same time Dickie was inhaling the sea-breezes there! . . .

Enough Is Too Plenty!

Larry Rich giving out gags as well as laughs this week, so we snooped this one a la key-hole . . . An old Jewish man was sitting on a fire escape one hot summer's eve . . . Reading the evening paper . . . Some capricious flies were enjoying play-hour atop his bald pate . . . Rather a pleasing sensation, the old man thought . . . Until one saucy li'tle winged fellow bit a good nip in the old man's pate . . . Swishing his paper madly about his head he said out loud, "For that everybody off"?

'Round-the-Townings:

Wonder if you've seen Mimi Marks, diminutive blonde radio Pretty One, and her yachting companion exchanging glances these summer days at Plymouth . . . Billy Wasserman and Frank McCabe, two drummer boys who work at it and golf on the side, challenge anyone to a match . . . As if that isn't a big portion . . . Should we tell what happened at Clement Hayes' bachelor apartments in the Fenway last Thursday night? . . . Mayor Curley's "Forgotten Man" [illegible] at the "Met" this week is a work of art in that it's the most [illegible] recording of any politico [illegible] we've seen yet . . . And do the dulcetly uttered words of Honor's drip with that sincere something'! . . . Rebekah Hobbs has a leaping green elephant about to jump over her initials as a stationery crest . . . And the elephant's [illegible] good-luckily turned up! Chickie Brewer, Tremont street's [illegible], crowing over the new Ray [illegible] revusical which opens in Providence next week . . . Lynn's Paramount manager, Al Lashway, vacationing in Bennington, Vermont . . . Mark "Y-D-Forever" King will be the cause of that Big Noise at the re-union carnival in Columbia Park last three days of this week when he stages a drum corps contest . . . Always happiest when he's making much noise, is that King man! . . . Gov. Ely has a swell eye for color and if you are dubious you should see the brilliant orange tints of those two studio couches being specially manufactured by that couch company for him . . . Hy Fine, that most-eligible bachelor, succumbs easily as was evident Thursday at sun-down when he emerged from the screening room after gnawing his nails over the initial Boston screening of "Okay America" which carries so many punches that it could menace Sharkey! . . .

Spilling the Beans:

Joe Candullo's men no connoisseurs when it comes to wearing socks . . . Opening night of the new revue at the Bradford's Cascades his front row sported! One pair of black cotton socks . . . One pair of black silk . . . One pair of white . . . And one pair of beige . . . Not what you'd call uniform-ly speaking! . . . Esther Lloyd, a Guinan-gal, has a shamrock birthmark on her left arm and began her life on St. Patrick's Day! Mickie Alpert to cut his Montrealing short (we hear upon breezes from the liquid Mecca) when and if Jacques Renard sheds his mysterious coating and returns to the Mayfair! . . . We like the idea of Seaglades being re-monickered Paradise for the new season . . . With the colors in the room changed to pinky-rosy instead of those Draculish green ones with the room's theme song being the "Paradise" tune . . . Medford's Virginia Stuart, nimble acrobatic stepper, breaking in with a new six-people flash act, which means success to the act right off! . . . Jim Grady, uncle of Broadway's Billy Grady, would like to revive the old Toll Bridge sketch in which he useed to be "the gate-keeper" and toured all the important routes in the country . . . Which should interest some of the old-time vaude managers who are on the lookout for something new for the younger generation! . . . Eddie Dowling peppy over the cinema he's about to make titled "Boy From Boston," all about his colorfull career . . . Mae Gallant still gone heavy over the honeyed cooings of her Only One with the White Mountains telling all if they could make speeches! . . . Despite rumors to the contrary, the Cocoanut Grove will open the last of the month—maybe with only 24 hours notice—and by the same smart management . . .

Star Scores on Shubert Stage

THE LAUGH PARADE
THE CREATORS
Dialogue by Ed Wynn. Music by Harry Warren
Lyrics by Mort Dixon and Joe Young
Dances and ensembles by Albertina Rasch
THE PLAYERS
Ed Wynn, Eunice Healy, Elsa Ersi, Earl Oxford, Bartlett Simmons, Eddie Cheney, Harry Seaman, Jack Powell, Frank Seaman, Wilbur Hall

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Ed Wynn likes to take an audience by the ear and carefully, though stutteringly, explain why "The Laugh Parade" is different. It is part of the show and Mr. Wynn carries it off in good order at the Shubert. The chief point of difference between Mr. Wynn's musical structure and the big revue we know so well is that he has been able to concoct three hours of high-pressure entertainment without once resorting to dirt, double entendre or even the familiar old "black out."

* * *

Ed Wynn

To hold one's self down to these restrictions and still create the best musical show this old town has seen since "Of Thee I Sing" earns for Mr. Wynn an enthusiastic cheer from the multitude. Of course, "The Laugh Parade" starts out as a one-man show and hews close to the line through 19 scenes. Mr. Wynn is seldom away from the footlights. He is always only a step or two behind his companions, helping them with friendly suggestions, bantering them and at the same time playing freely, almost intimately, with his audience. He spots a friend in the first row. "Hello, Jack," he cries and bounds over the orchestra pit to shake hands with Jack Sharkey. In the meantime, Elsa Ersi, an importation from the Paris music halls, struggling with a saucy song, is interrupted long enough to be properly introduced to Boston's favorite strong boy and world champion.

* * *

Many Roles

And so runs "The Laugh Parade." Able citizens of fast entertainment ply their trade, but always with Wynn nudging at their elbows. The man's endurance is matched by the variety of his own contributions. He plays everything from bartender in a speakeasy to acrobat and world traveler in strange regions. He rides a trick camel across the desert; he turns juggler and draws applause for skill and laughter for his technique, and tops off by taking the orchestra in hand and setting himself up as a nimble pianist. Only in the strictly artistic numbers does Mr. Wynn efface himself from the deliberations.

* * *

"The Laugh Parade's" two outstanding song hits are no longer new to most ears. Radio has attended to that. These are "Ooh! That Kiss" and "You're My Everything." Earl Oxford and Elsa Ersi with intriguing assistance from the chorus, turned these old friends into new and better ones. During these numbers, Mr. Wynn's clowning becomes only a discreetly fluttering fringe. And then there is Jack Powell, whose only tools are two drums and an old chair. There are drum sticks, too. He runs Mr. Wynn a close race in timely humor. Wilbur Hall, clowning musician, and Eunice Healy, whose dance expositions fill useful corners of the program, are but a step behind their star if you can place only faith upon audience reaction.

* * *

Smashing Show

While Mr. Wynn insists that "The Laugh Parade" is not revue this is true only in the small degree of its most agreeable cleanliness. In other respects it presents all the old established earmarks—gorgeous ensembles, towering scenic embellishment and the usual odds and ends of musical entertainment. No matter what you call it, "The Laugh Parade" is smashing entertainment, and Mr. Wynn most emphatically takes first place among musical show comedians. There are many compensations for being "a perfect fool," and Mr. Wynn gathers them all.

SWEETEST OF THE SWEET

Thelma Todd, glamorous beauty who has a rough and ready set-to with love, in "Horse Feathers", starring the Four Marx Brothers, and now on the Scollay screen.

'Green Pastures' at the Colonial

Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures" opened its Boston run at the Colonial last evening. An audience that filled the theater from wall to wall expressed its hearty approval of this picturesque dramatic revelation of the Southern Negro's notion of Heaven. Heading the cast is Richard B. Harrison, who plays "the Lawd." A cast of 100 interprets the play. "The Green Pastures" will be reviewed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Ed Ryan's Girls at Howard

At the Old Howard, Ed Ryan's "Girls From the Follies" burlesque appears to be well equipped with a singing and dancing chorus, which gives ample support to toiling principals. Sam Raynor and Lee Hickman provide the humor. Elinor Wallent is conspicuous and the Reid Sisters are clever. Others in the cast are Anna Smith, Ray Parson, Carrigan and Dumath and Charles Dane.

In addition to the burlesque are pictures and vaudeville. The Sharkey-Schmeling fight films are received with enthusiasm. Other features are the Wing Wah troupe of wonder workers and Fred Pisano and his company in a comedy sketch. On the screen there is shown "Waterloo Bridge" with Mae Clark, and "Reckless Living," featuring Ricardo Cortez.

Talmadge-Jessel

Dolores Del Rio on RKO Keith's Screen; Stage Show Goes Over Big

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

This time it is the director who makes the screen hum as with a saga of the cinema. To King Vidor was given the script of an old theme; he scissored it at will, to meet modern needs and his own ideas of treatment. Vidor, being of the few in Hollywood expert in the real art of the motion picture, turns out "Bird of Paradise" worthwhile and now featured on the RKO Keith silver sheet.

Actors and story become pawns in the hands of the Vidor genius. He gives his cameras rein and the result is a vividly entertaining movie, replete with color and lens action. Dialogue is made crisp and terse, and held to the minimum. When people speak here, they say something and for the most part the silent sweeps speak a tongue more eloquent, imaginatively and stirringly than any human voice could be. So "Bird of Paradise," neatly acted, nicely motivated, is a thoroughly beautiful, often intensely dramatic spectacle. Vidor builds up an amazing atmosphere, sustains it, entertains, holds the interest from first to last.

Senorita Scores

The story is from the pen of Richard Walton Tully, originally a stage play, a good many years ago. Ere the screen awoke from its muted form, it was made into a film. Since, there have been many pictures protraying South Sea life. "Bird of Paradise" would have been impossible in this era in its prime state, so Vidor wisely made wholesale changes. It is all for the better; for the story of the lovers in Hawaii is more tellingly presented, and with more excellent judgement for present day film patrons.

Dolores Del Rio, while not perfect in the principal role, yet supplies qualities which make her characterization human and appealing. Best of the others are Joel McCrea, Bert Roach and John Halliday.

Good Stage Show

On stage Keith's has a good bill. Miss Vanessi offers the dance, aided by three youths; and Larry Rich and band furnish a big act. Music and mirth come from leader and his orchestra; and in addition there are a number of features in the line of dance and song specialties, other turns are O. K., above all of them, Leon Navara, pianist, who scores a great hit.

"The Thirteenth Guest" Real Good Thrill Film at Boston

Another good thrill picture holds the RKO Boston screen. "The Thirteenth Guest," the current photoplay, is deftly concocted, suspense is sustained to the finish, and the cast meets all the needs.

The title bears importantly upon the story. Into a deserted mansion, where years before the owner had been slain during a family reunion, the killer lures the guests of that occasion. Electrocution is the fate he plans for each and every one.

How he does it, and how he is at last trapped is cleverly unfolded on screen. The picture is very exciting. Director Albert Ray getting most of the credit for that. One notes in the cast with pleasure that Frances Rich, daughter of Irene Rich, makes a delightful debut; and other good ones are Ginger Rogers, Lyle Talbot, Paul Hurst and J. Farrell MacDonald.

PROGRAM SNAPPY

For footlight fare, the Boston has a lively vaudeville bill, topped by Ralph Cooper and his orchestra, one of the best of the Negro bands. They have some clever specialists with them. Among the other outstanding turns are Phil Seed, David London and Jacqueline, Charles Nevins and Ada Gordon, and the Joe Manis Four.

"Crooner" on Three Screens

"Crooner", based on Dian James' story, is the first-run feature on the Fenway, Modern and Beacon screens, presenting the theme in entertaining fashion, the picture being another Warner hit. The cast is excellent, and the direction of Lloyd Bacon is splendid. The best performers are Ann Dvorak, David Manners, Guy Kibbee and Ken Murray.

Constance Bennett is fascinating in "Two Against the World," wherein Neil Hamilton also does stellar work. This second feature at the three theaters is diverting throughout.

Gala Show on Scollay Stage

By HARRIS MORGAN

When better shows are built, they'll have to reckon with the current bill at the Scollay. For Manager Elliston Vinson, a master showman, has put everything into the program, which is one of the brightest in many a moon. On screen the Four Marx Brothers make merry in a riotous way in "Horse Feathers," while on stage is the "Cotton Club Floor Show," troupers all, a superexcellent unit of clever performers.

An outstanding figure is Stepin Fetchit. He would stand out in any company, that Negro clown. In pictures we loved him, laughed at and with him, hailed him always with glee. So, too, on the stage. The colored comedian is in a class by himself, being able to get laughs by doing anything or just nothing at all. There aren't many left like him and no lover of comic cleverness should miss the treat.

Stepin Fetchit—what a name and what a man!—has so many stars with him that to name them all is to run through a directory of Negro talent. Leonard Harper heads the revue, and a corker he is handling his entertainers.

"Shakehips" is here, Tucker his real name, and there is "Hamtree" Harrington, too. Ed Frye is another; Williams & Cryer are still others. There's a snappy band, there are women and girls galore, singers, steppers, comedians in abundance.

Waldron's Casino

Manager "Charlie" Waldron is filling this week at the Casino with his own "High Roller" company of burlesquers. Included in his daily bill, which is continuous, are a number of fast moving vaudeville acts and two talking picture features.

Exeter Theater

Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in "The First Year" and Tom Brown and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Fast Companions," are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter.

GREAT BIG IDEAS ABOUT MEANING OF IT ALL

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

If you would like to give yourself the proud feeling that you are thinking deeply and associating with the best minds, the publishers are willing to co-operate. They have made it, in fact, easy for you. Ray Long and Richard R. Smith have brought out a book called simply "On the Meaning of Life," collected and edited by Will Durant, who has made philosophy easy for years; and Simon & Schuster oblige with "What We Live By" in which Abbe Ernest Dimnet tells how to combine and adjust the two tendencies in us: "the longing to live happy and the dread of DYING ORDINARY." (The capital letters are in the original.) To Dr. Durant's book have contributed many men and three women: Sinclair Lewis and Will Rogers, Carl Laemmle and Jawaharlal Nehru, Havelock Ellis and Helen Wills Moody, who says that the only thing she really wants is to exercise the restlessness which seems to be continually in her heart. The best contributions are from Bertrand Russell, Count Hermann Keyserling and Bernard Shaw; in their various ways all three refuse to answer. I might like the whole book better if Dr. Durant didn't call Mr. Russell "the Bad Boy of England." Was Socrates the Bad Boy of Greece?

Dr. Durant asked all these and many more people "What is the meaning and worth of human life?" and instead of letting it go at that, gave his own ideas a free rein and a dark color, putting himself in the position of a pessimist for the old reason that we, human beings, had discovered something he calls "truth" in quotation marks, and this "truth" had not made us happy. Not a few of his correspondents haven't heard of the discovery—the Bad Boy of England among them. (Dr. Durant also calls him "scandalizer of all continents and prospective terror of the House of Lords." Some of the contributors write coldly, some obviously got worried about the big words, Life and Truth; most of them are somehow reduced in significance.

Hard Going

Abbe Dimnet's book is about the true, the beautiful and the good. Its motto is that "the art of arts is the guidance of the soul"; it is a book in which all things true and all things beautiful lead to all things good which lie in religion. Like his aboundingly popular "Art of Thinking," Dimnet's new works is difficult reading; I can only suspect that the people of the United States have developed a passion for dull and dry disputation when I think of the hundred thousands who have read—or read part of—these books.

"We should be careful," says Dimnet, "to live on the highest plane possible to us"; and he makes a chart of our lower and higher selves. In the lower drawer you find small grievances and gossip and flirtations and frivolous week-ends and continuous radio; in the upper: good music and reading with a purpose and studying great issues and real religion. Yet at the very end he writes, "Where we live or how we live is of little consequence. What is all-important is to live."

A Girl Who Lives

It might, at any rate, be the motto of "Laughing Torso," the autobiography of Nina Hamnett, painter and sculptor and model, friend of the whole artistic gang of London and Paris. She tells and tells, nothing particularly shocking, everything rather interesting, and what she says falls like a jumble of sentences, as if she had been talking for a long time and someone had put down every word. It is one of the simplest tales I have ever read, without much thinking, without any moralizing. The author lived, loved and worked; she had friends and saw curious things. Now she puts them on record. She emphasizes no one thing at the expense of another. Her only regrets in life are two: that she did not go with some friends to Corsica, and that she married.

On the whole her book is a better account of the artistic life in Paris than the more highly colored stories. Life there isn't particularly vicious, it is usually entertaining, sometimes gay, and as late as 1930 the artistic life in Paris brought together a number of geniuses, a number of fakers and a vast number of worthy, untalented people who were, or were not, good company. The great merit of Miss Hamnett's book is that she has no desire to exaggerate.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

ERIC THE RED

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Harland Frazer... inspired by that marauding Viking chieftain whose vandalism branded him as the "Terror of the North" (975-1000 A. D.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

THIS IS LIFE

LIBERALISM OF WORLD FAR FROM WELLS' IDEA OF SUCCESS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

MR. H. G. WELLS is still low in his mind. He has been that way now for nigh on to a decade. The first sign of what was happening to him came when he was attending the Washington Conference of 1922 and he made his famous remark that we were engaged in a race between education and disaster. Well, he was right to this extent. We have had the disaster and profited thereby to the extent of some education. But the disaster hasn't been as thorough as Mr. Wells would have liked.

PROF. ROGERS

The success of Mussolini roused him to write a novel "Meanwhile," in which he described Fascist atrocities and prophesied that it is perfectly possible that greed and stupidity may offset the best plans of unselfish and scientific intelligence and usher in a new Dark Age, a new period of stagnation. There again he was right—as the man in the street could have told him to his optimistic face years ago.

Boston to Terra del Fuego

Then the Sacco-Vanzetti case led him to write a curious romance called "Mr. Ramsbottom's Island" — or words to that effect, all about a dream of primitive savagery in Terra del Fuego, which to Mr. Wells was a symbol of Massachusetts justice. Then he switched to the deficiencies of the chauvinist nationalists in "The Autocracy of Mr. Parham," the climax of which was the mutual and needless destruction of the British and American grand fleets through political stupidity. So he goes, getting bluer and bluer.

As Percival Knight used to sing:

"I've got a motter, always merry and bright!
Look around and you will find
Every cloud is silver lined.
The stars may shine, although the sky's a gray one;
I've often said to myself, I've said,
Cheer up, Cuthbert, you'll soon be dead.
A short life and a ga-a-a-ay one!"

For Cuthbert, read Herbert George and the analogy is complete. He was not always thus. He used to be a furious optimist, believing in the success of the "open conspiracy," as he called it, of the intellectuals who were working for a socialism of "love and fine thinking."

He believed in a fine scientific civilization run by engineers and biologists, as clean and bare and austere as a Japanese print, with a set of self-denying Samurai at the top (really Plato's Guardians in kimonos); everybody free from fear and jealousy, and living hard, creative lives, until "man shall stand upon this earth as on a footstool and stretch out his hands among the stars."

But listen to him the other day at the Liberal Summer School at Oxford. I quote from the A. P.'s curt summary. "A tottering civilization staggering down to chaotic violence and decadence, in a world for the gangster tribe . . . unless it is rescued by revolutionary liberalism."

Russian Liberalism in Blinders

"Liberalism in the United States has been suppressed for a hundred years. In France and Germany it is inaudible. In Russia it is in blinders. . . . If Liberalism now had a voice and backbone and went out now and proclaimed liberty from old entanglements, Liberalism could conquer seven-eighths of mankind. Otherwise the peoples will turn to Communism."

That is what it is to be 66 years old. Even Shaw at 76 is more hopeful. But Wells, born in 1866, is still talking in terms of the formulas of his youth. And no formula is more vague and inconsistent and contradictory than this same Liberalism.

Is Wells talking about the historic English Liberalism of his youth? I doubt it. For that is precisely what we in America know as conservative capitalistic individualism, which is anathema to Wells and all the younger Americans who call themselves "liberals." He says that Liberalism has been suppressed in America for a hundred years. Now it is just about a hundred years since the rigid aristocracy of John Quincy Adams gave way to the undifferentiated democracy of Andrew Jackson. Yet the spiritual sons of Jackson today believe themselves to be liberals. It is all very puzzling.

Liberalism used to mean the right of every man to make a fortune in his own way without government interference. He could vote and hold office too, of course, but that right was in practice less important than his right to be free from caste and government restriction, and to make money and found a family. That ideal carried to its logical extreme resulted, after a hundred years, in the present concentration of industrial and financial power in a few capable hands. Now the present day Liberals want to undo all that, want to bring back business and finance under the control of the government—and they call that ideal "Liberalism," a term which their grandfathers would not have understood.

The fringes of Liberalism have to do with free speech, free assemblage, free trade, freedom from censorship in mails, publications, plays and films; free love, free beers and light wines, free birth control and companionate marriage. But the crux of the whole question still remains the economic one. Which is the real Liberalism? That which would organize society for the benefit of William Graham Sumner's "forgotten man" who asks only a free field and no favors, the independent, hard-working, self-supporting individualist? Or that which would use all the power of society and government to hamstring the too-strong, too-clever, too-inventive man (whom Wells calls the Buccaneer) for the protection of the man who is clearly unable to meet the competitive requirements of modern life?

Liberal Democracy Failure Says Wells

Mr. Wells does not like the results of liberal democracy as they are to be seen after one hundred years of trial in the United States. He detests Communism. He also detests Fascism. He has no faith in his own government, which is a rather more democratic and flexible system than ours. None of them, apparently, agree with his conception of Liberalism, just as it is impossible to get a reasonable working conception of the word out of any of our American malcontents.

If Liberalism means freedom we have it in the United States. The ambitious and ingenious man is free to succeed; the prohibitionist is free to succeed; the prohibitionist is free to prohibit; the gangster and racketeer are free to be criminals; the fool and the failure are free to use the primaries to get into public office; the chiselers are free to live on the public funds; the cranks are free to put over their notions; the average citizen is free to be perfectly apathetic about it all. The whole system is a riot of liberalism such as would be called merely "anarchism" in any previous age.

What does Mr. Wells want? What do our self-appointed and self-styled American Liberals want? If they have brains and guts enough they can have it—just as every other minority has succeeded in getting what it wants. But nobody is going to help them to it unless they take the trouble to formulate an exact and consistent program containing at least a few elements of the practicable.

20 HOLDUP SUSPECTS IN LINE

FOUR HELD IN BID FOR $50.000 LOOT

Thomas Francis, William Harvey, Joseph Pano and Thomas Patchy with Officer Frank Donovan, following their arrest in connection with burglary at a department store garage in South End where $50,000 in merchandise was stored. Patchy, a night watchman in the garage, was taken into custody after his excuse for being away from garage at time of break was branded as suspicious. Patchy is attempting to shield himself from camera.

VICTIMS VIEW RECORD LOT ARRESTED

Four Taken in $50,000 Robbery Plot; Watchman Held for Being Absent

Holdup and attack victims, as well as police detectives from nearly every city and town in Greater Boston, crowded the detective room at police headquarters today to view 20 suspects taken over the week-end.

The lineup was one of the largest ever held at police headquarters and included men arrested in connection with three major holdups. In the line were four men taken in connection with the attempted robbery of $50,000 at the Albany st. garage of a downtown department store; one, and possibly two men suspected of connection with the $300 armed robbery from the offices of the Howe Dry Cleansing Company in Allston; seven young men taken in the act of entering a second-story apartment on Grayson st., Fields Corner, a man held on suspicion of having stolen a police riot-gun, and two men held in connection with an attack of a 14-year-old New Bedford girl.

Thomas Patchy of 13 Putnam st., Charlestown, watchman at the Albany st. garage, where three men were seen trying to enter a roof ventilator Saturday night, was arrested when it was learned that he was absent from the garage at the time of the attempted break. In connection with the same case police are holding Thomas Francis, Canton st., South End; William Harvey, Morton st., Dorchester, and Joseph Pino, Dorset st., South Boston.

Beatrice Burton's New Story "MARY FAITH"

How a Fascinating Heroine Met Old Problems in a New Way—by the Author of "The Flapper Wife," Etc.

"Mr. Nesbitt," she said, "I want to tell you that I am going to leave at the end of this month. I'm going to be married on the first of October."

MARY FAITH was burning her bridges. For three years, almost four, she had been waiting to burn them. Waiting to give up her room at Mrs. Puckett's family hotel in River st. Waiting to tell Mr. Mark Nesbit, the head of the Nesbit Mercantile Company, that she was planning to give up her position as his private secretary just as soon as she could fill her place. Waiting to let her small world know that she was going to marry Kim Farrell at last.

For three years, almost four, she had been engaged to marry Kim Farrell.

For three years she had worn his modest diamond on the third finger of her left hand and had spent part of every lunch hour embroidering guest towels and table runners for the home that would be Kim's and hers some day.

"If you don't get married pretty soon," Jean Bartlett, the head stenographer at Nesbit's, had said to her less than a week before, "you'll own enough hand embroidered linens to start a shop! I don't believe in these long engagements myself. There should be a law against them. Too many girls find themselves disappointed old maids at the end of them instead of blushing brides!"

Mary Faith had not answered her. She had only looked at her with clear, untroubled eyes and smiled. She had no doubts about Kim Farrell. He loved her just as she loved him. And so she was willing to wait for him.

Kim's Happiness

And then late last night, as if to justify her faith in him, Kim had suddenly turned to her in the lamp lit dimness of Mrs. Puckett's old fashioned parlor and asked her when she would marry him.

"Why—in about two weeks, I think," she had answered him as soon as she could get her breath. "You see, I'll have to tell Mr. Nesbit I'm leaving, and it will take me a few days to break his new secretary in to do my work. . . . Kim, to think of us really getting married in two weeks! Why, I never knew any one could be so happy as I am right this minute!"

Long afterward it came back to her that he said nothing about his own happiness that night.

At breakfast she had told Mrs. Puckett that she was going to be married on the first of October.

At noon she had told the news to Jean Bartlett, who was half expecting to step into her shoes at the office.

It was half past five in the afternoon now, and Mary Faith was standing at the door of Mr. Mark Nesbit's private office.

Lonely at Leaving

She had something for him to sign in one hand and the door knob in the other. It was going to be hard to open that door and walk into the office to tell him she was leaving Nesbit's at the end of the month.

She had worked for him for four years—one year as a stenographer and three years as his private secretary. The place itself was like home to her. She had come to love the big shabby offices with their shaded lights and their high narrow windows that faced the west.

The people who worked in them were her friends—all of them, from

BOSTON COUPLE HURT IN CRASH

A Dorchester woman suffered injuries that may cause death and her husband also was injured early today in Cranston, R. I., when the automobile in which they were returning from New York left the road.

Mrs. Katherine Amundsen, 28, of 25 Upham ave., Dorchester, suffered a compound fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Her husband, Robert, 32, a marble worker, suffered numerous cuts. Both were taken to Rhode Island Hospital.

Woman's Screams Frighten Bandit

Mrs. Elizabeth Lokin, proprietor of a variety store in Buchman st., Everett, frightened away a youthful holdup man last night, when as he commanded her to open the cash drawer she screamed until the youth fled. She described the bandit as about 17 years old.

RAIDERS SPOIL CELLAR PARTY

Federal agents stepped into the cellar of Mrs. Amelia Marcella in Broadway, Chelsea, and ruined what she claimed in Federal court today was nothing more than plans to entertain a small group of friends at a party.

Supplies for the party which were seized by the agents included three gallons of alcohol, 400 quarts of beer, four cases of malt, two bushel bags of hops, four copper fermenters, 12 gross of bottle caps and a capping machine.

The agents testified that when they raided the cellar they found a lone drinker consuming a quart of beer. Mrs. Marcella testified that he was the first of the party to arrive and that her 11 year old nephew sold him the beer without her knowledge.

Congressman John J. Douglass interceded for the woman, telling Commissioner Jenney he was a friend of Atty. William H. Meley, who defended Mrs. Marcella.

Commissioner Jenney held the woman in $1000 on charges of illegal possession and manufacture of liquor.

2-Gun Baker Gets DePaolo, But Lets Him Go

Racing after a motorist whom he clocked at 45 miles an hour in Washington st., Baker waved him to the curb. He took down the car number and then noted the name—Peter DePaolo.

"You're not Pete DePaolo, the auto racer, are you?" Baker asked.

"That's me," said DePaolo.

"Oh, well, I guess 45 isn't too fast for you," said Baker, and let him go.

PASTOR SHARES IN EAGAR WILL

Bequests to a number of Catholic institutions are made in the will of Edward F. Eagar of 168 Marine rd., South Boston, vice-president of the Lewis Roberts Ink Co., Inc., 75 High st., who died August 11.

To Anna J. Mahoney of 194 M st., South Boston, the will, filed for probate today, leaves 100 shares of stock in the company.

The Rev. Mortimer Twomey, pastor of St. Eulalia's Church, South Boston, receives $200, and the following other bequests are made:

Purgatorial Society of the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Roxbury, $300; John J. Handwerk, an employe, $500; Mary E. Kinsella, housekeeper, $1000; Catholic Foreign Missions Society at Maryknoll, Ossining, N. Y., $1000; Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the Catholic Church Extension Society of America in Chicago, $1000 each; LaSalette Missionaries, Hartford, Ct., $500, and to a nephew, Edward Eagar, the gold watch and chain of the deceased.

Readville Girl, 16, and Employer Held

Elizabeth Flanagan, 16, of Readville, was ordered to the care of a welfare society in West Roxbury court today to await a hearing Friday on charges against her and the husband of her employer.

The girl, according to police, disappeared last Wednesday with William P. Reltsma, 30, of West Milton st., Readville. In court today he was placed under bonds of $5000.

Dog Thief Loses Pet and $27 Court Costs

Not only the dog, but $27.01 as court costs were lost today to Charles D. Waggley, 24, of Dennisport, when he was arraigned in Quincy court, charged with larceny of a chow dog by a worthless check for $75. Waggley was given a suspended sentence of a month on condition that he return the dog.

WARN PETTERS TO BEWARE TONIGHT

Plainclothes Officers in Guise of Lovelorn Wait Chance to Seize Giant

If the Bearded Prowler of Petticoat Hill does any prowling among the petters in that section of Winthrop tonight he will get his whiskers caught in the flywheel of romance.

Because the only petters on the hill tonight will be the armed gentry of the law, prepared to [illegible] him with a bludgeon.

The trap was laid today as a result of last night's reappearance of the giant, bewhiskered [illegible] who has been scaring the [illegible] petters on the hill for several weeks. The man, believed to be a deranged [illegible] of Winthrop, fled into the woods last night after W[illegible] Mc[illegible], watchman at ahand [illegible], saw him creeping toward a parked car and fired a shot over his head.

Winthrop police in plainclothes will park on the hill tonight accompanied by ladies, you understand. So, too, will metropolitan police on orders of Capt. John J. Murphy. And soldiers from Fort Banks will bring up a 1-pounder.

Everything is arranged to give the Bearded Prowler of Petticoat Hill a war reception and bona fide petters are warned to do their stuff elsewhere just for tonight.

DUNHAM, FREED, HITS JUSTICE

The thoughts that he turned over and over in his mind as he sat in Salem jail for 21 months were poured out today by Otis Lin[illegible]erson Dunham, former millionaire head of the Page & Shaw Co. on his first day of freedom.

"Starting life all over again," as he expressed it, Dunham at his home in Beverly wrote the following statement of his feelings on his fall from power to comparative poverty:

"It was an interesting experience in many ways. With $6.33 in my pocket, and knowing the truth about myself, I sat for six weeks in the Cambridge court and watched the machinery of justice work.

"I watched the reaction of the judge and jury to the statements of the numerous attorneys and the testimony of the witnesses. Then I looked up and saw the finger of Justice, blind and clothed in the legal fictions of the past.

"I saw the baser attributes of human nature constantly busy about the courtroom, while Truth, starry-eyed, transparent-minded Truth, could only remain a few minutes at a time, as the atmosphere was too uncongenial.

"I learned that in criminal cases, Truth and Justice are not friendly and are barely on speaking terms, as they live such different lives.

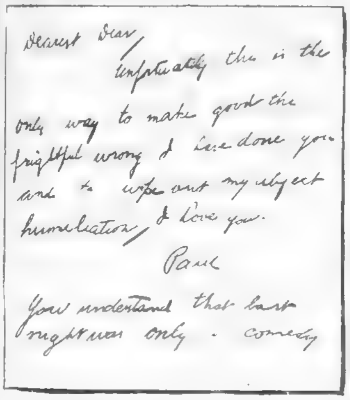
"The truth about the Page & Shaw stock sales has not yet been published. Excitement over the stock market crash found vent in this case. There was no real effort to find where the money went. The entire $2,000,000 can be traced and I'm going to have the fun of doing it."

Grenfell Schooner Back

Portland, Me., Sept. 6—The Grenfell supply schooner [illegible] B. Cluett, arrived here from St. Anthony, N. F., with 21 American college and schoolboys who had spent the summer as volunteer workers in Labrador.

'Comedy' Note Deepens Mystery of Death That Robbed Glamorous Jean Harlow of Husband

Beautiful home in Beverly Hills, Cal., given as wedding present to Jean Harlow by Paul Bern when he married her two months ago. It was in this same home that the motion picture executive shot himself to death. The platinum blonde screen star was at the home of her parents at the time of her husband's suicide. (International News Photos.)



Dearest Dear,
Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation, I love you.
Paul
You understand that last night was only a comedy

Jean Harlow, platinum blonde of the movies, widowed by the shooting of her husband, Paul Bern, movie executive, in Beverly Hills. The couple had been married little more than two months, the wedding coming as a surprise after a casual friendship of about three years.

This picture of marital bliss, taken only a short time ago, has been erased by death for Jean Harlow, platinum blonde movie star. Her husband, Paul Bern, to whom she was married on July 2, was found shot to death in his Beverly Hills home. The case was called a suicide by police, but a probe is under way.

Man Released in Webster Holdup

After a Providence man had been taken from the home of relatives in East Boston to police headquarters for questioning in connection with the $10,000 robbery of the funds of the First National Bank of Webster on June 16, Patrolman Edward J. Merrigan of Webster police, one of those held up at the time, was unable to identify the man and he was immediately released.

THEATER SAFE YIELDS $750

Finding the front door of the Strand Theater on East Broadway, South Boston, open, Patrolman [illegible] O'Donnell of the City Point station walked in. He found the theater safe had been ripped open and the contents taken.

[illegible] communication with the owner of the [illegible] indicated that $750 had been in the safe.

Officer O'Donnell found the safe had been dragged from the office [illegible]. The door had been [illegible] off by use of hammers and [illegible] the marks indicated.

It is believed that whoever was responsible for the robbery must have remained hidden in the theater [illegible] closed for the night and then started to crack the safe.

Year-Old Orphan Crosses Ocean From Africa

[illegible] Anderson, orphaned at the age of one year and 10 months by the death of his parents from [illegible] fever in Africa, was a passenger on the American-West African Line steamer Zarembo on its arrival yesterday from the dark continent.

The baby was brought back to this country, of which he is a citizen, though born in Corakry, West Africa, by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fre[illegible]. He will be given into the custody of his grandparents in a Western city.

The Zarembo was detained at quarantine for fumigation and will come up to her pier in East Boston this afternoon.

GIRL'S SCREAMS TRAP PROWLER

Frightened by the screams of Betsy Lawrence, 14, of Montvale ave., Woburn, who awoke to find him in her room today, a young intruder fled and was captured by police near the house.

In Woburn court the youth, who gave his name as David Turner of Woburn, was arraigned on a charge of breaking and entering. His case was continued for a week for hearing and he was held in $1500.

The youth was found lurking near the house by Sergt. Henry Sweeney, who had been summoned by the girl's parents. He was identified by the girl.

FIRE ROUTS 4 IN MATTAPAN

Four persons were driven to the street early today and several families nearby were aroused, when a fire of mysterious origin broke out in the delicatessen store of Harry Stoak on the first floor of a three-story wooden dwelling at 120 Harvard st., Mattapan. Damage was estimated at $1000.

The blaze raced up through the second and third floors causing Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vidrio and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cohen to flee. The adjoining houses were threatened by sparks.

MEAT CUTTING TO BE SHOWN

Latest facts about meat cuts and merchandising methods will be brought to Boston retailers, housewives, and others interested in a program presented here Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of Massachusetts State College and The National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Prof. V. A. Rice, head of the college animal husbandry department, will conduct the program at Faneuil Hall Market Fruit & Produce Exchange.

Demonstrations of modern methods of fashioning retail cuts of meat, as recently developed by the meat board, will be a special feature. These will be given by Paul A. Goeser, the board's specialist.

Valentine

A Novel of Love's Disillusion

By Hazel Livingston

THE STORY SO FAR

Valentine Macfarlane is the shy, dreamy daughter of Millie Macfarlane, a widow, whose gay, romantic nature is not spoiled by poverty. Millie goes to the Orient, and Val is taken to her Aunt Julia's. The years pass and Val goes to work in an office and meets Lester Sherwood, who pays her marked attention.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

JOE GOT the wrong idea, wrote her an almost congratulatory letter. She tore it into shreds, her cheeks burning miserably. Would she ever stop making believe? Would she always be a fraud?

The next day she met Lester as she was hurrying for a street car home. He held her hand longer than necessary. No mistaking his interest, and she didn't even try to hide hers.

LESTER ELUDES

"I'll be seeing you soon," he said. "I've had a lot of night work and some dates I couldn't get out of. Wish I had my car, I'd drive you home!"

She rode right past her corner, thinking about him. You see! He was still interested! She'd shown him! She forgot how much she had wanted to telephone.

She battled the desire to telephone again. Days slipped by. He didn't come.

She began to build a story, like the stories she used to make up when she was a little girl. It was a story about a young man who fell into a sort of "understood engagement" with a girl whom he thought he loved. Then he met another girl . . . the other girl was Valentine, of course . . .

She wrote to Joe again. "I did not make myself clear in my first letter, and congratulations are not in order at all. There are reasons why he can not come to me. I know in my heart what they are. I am almost sure that he is engaged to the other girl, Joey, and I know that he is far too honorable to break it off, too honorable to come to me again, now that he realizes that we love each other. Oh, Joe, my dear, what a tragedy life can be!"

DELIRIOUSLY HAPPY

She put so much feeling into it that she thoroughly believed it when it was finished. Read it over, blistering it with a tear or two as she read.

She was just beginning to feel happy in a blighted love when Lester came back.

"Can I come over tomorrow night?" he asked.

Just like that. Casually. As if it were the most natural thing in the world.

Val was almost deliriously happy. Aunt Julia grumbled, but she baked a lemon pie and one of her famous devil's food cakes. Lester ate prodigiously, said he hadn't had such a gorgeous evening in weeks.

"You see? What a boy wants is good food. Didn't I tell you he'd enjoy it?" Aunt Julia exulted.

But there was trouble to come.

Lester had a car. He liked to go riding. Lester's idea of a ride was to drive into a quiet spot, park . . . well, if it had been anyone herself and Lester Val would have had to describe it as "pet," with Lester's arms around her, Lester's cheek against hers . . . Different," she told herself, "different."

ENJOYING "VIEW"

There was a little road off the boulevard that wound from East Oakland up the range of hills above Redwood canyon. There, on a grassy knoll near some tall eucalyptus trees they used to park. There was a view. Valentine always pretended that they came to see the view. Lester laughed at her.

Aunt Julia began to worry again. When Val would tiptoe in late at night, hoping to find her asleep, she would be sitting straight up in bed, an old blue cape that had belonged to Val when she was a little girl, over her shoulders, a magazine open on her lap.

"Val, come in. Did you have a good time?"

Her eyes, strained and a little red behind the gold-rimmed glasses, would peer at Val, slide over her neatly combed hair (Val always combed her hair as they drove up to the house), to her mussed skirt, her flaming cheeks.

AUNT SEES ROUGE

There was the night she noticed Val's lip rouge smeared over her cheek in a pale scarlet smudge. She didn't say anything about it. She never admitted, even to herself, that Val had been out, like others, "necking" . . . a cheap, ugly word.

Instead she launched into a long tirade against men and common girls who let men maul them, slobber all over them . . . enough to turn a body's stomach, just reading about it!

"Don't read about it, Aunt Julia!"

"Humph, that's all they write about nowadays. Every day you pick up a paper you read about it . . . Holdup of petting couple on lonely road' . . . Val! I wish you wouldn't go on rides at night . . ."

"I don't stop on lonely—" Val stumbled over the lie.

"I don't suppose you do. Great goodness! Niece of mine!" Aunt Julia stumbled over hers, too. "Should hope not . . . humph, her!"

Val hated it. Why couldn't Aunt Julia go to sleep like other people instead of sitting up, waiting, every night?

It was hard to get through the afternoons in the office. Val would find herself drowsing over the typewriter about 2 o'clock. Dreaming about Lester, neglecting her work.

Jean Bartlett down to Stanley Odeskalki, the office boy. There was not one of them whom she was not going to miss in the new life that lay just ahead of her.

With a keen little sigh she turned the door knob and stepped into Mr. Mark Nesbit's office. He was standing with his back to the room, looking down into the parking space at the side of the building and fidgeting with the window shade.

Like Mary Herself

At the sound of the door closing he swung around and met Mary Faith's eyes. Her deep steady eyes were like Mary Faith herself, somehow. You could not look into them without seeing that you could bank on her always for honesty and goodness.

They were dark blue, fringed with heavy lashes, and they would have given a certain beauty to even a plain woman. But Mary Faith was not plain. Health glowed in her cheeks and lips with a rose-red flame that left the rest of her face to the dusky whitness of her skin, to the blackness of her brows and lashes. Her dark hair swept up from a widow's peak on her forehead and her lips, when she smiled, had the tilt of flying wings.

She was not smiling now. Serious and silent, moving like a breath, she came across the thick carpet of the office and laid her letters down upon Mr. Nesbit's glass-topped desk.

"I can mail these on my way home, Mr. Nesbit," she said quietly as she stood beside his chair, watching him sign his name to them one by one.

Failed to Stir Her

He had nice, clever-looking hands, she thought, watching them move across the papers in front of him. She had always liked his nice, homely face, his dark quick glance, his firm, pleasant way of giving orders.

She knew that he was a bachelor and that he was only 34 years old. She knew too that he was making a tremendous success of the business that had been left to him by his father.

But neither his money nor his attractive bachelorhood had ever had any power to stir Mary Faith. For she had met Kim Farrell just a little while after she began to work at Nesbit's, and since that time there had been only one man in the world for her—Kim.

"Mr. Nesbit," she said when Mr. Nesbit had laid down his fountain pen and was blotting the last of the letters, "Mr. Nesbit, I want to tell you that I am going to leave at the end of this month."

Nesbit Looks Puzzled

"I'm going to be married on the first of October, Mr. Nesbit."

He went on frowning at her a moment or two longer.

"Married," he said finally in a flat, colorless voice. "I see."

"I'm sure Miss Bartlett can do my work, and I think she'd like to have the position," Mary Faith went on. "If you decide to give it to her I'll be glad to show her everything she'll need to know, before I leave."

She waited for him to answer her; but he said nothing. He sat looking at her with a puzzled, curious look in his eyes.

The room was very still. Outside the half past five whistles began to blow. An unseen door somewhere in the building banged twice. In the outer office Stanley Odeskalki began to whistle "The Wedding of the Winds." He had been whistling maddening bits of it all day long.

"I'll be sorry to leave," said Mary Faith with a nervous little catch in her voice. "I've enjoyed working for you, Mr. Nesbit."

Still he said nothing, and there seemed to be nothing more for her to say. She turned to go, and at her sudden movement Mr. Nesbit gave a start as if he were waking from a deep reverie.

"Wait a minute," he said. "I—I suppose I should have been expecting this. But the fact is that it takes me completely by surprise. Somehow or other, I've never connected you with the idea of getting married and going away."

As a Beautiful Woman

He got out of his shining mahogany chair, crossed the office and held the door of it open for her as she went out—a thing he never had done for her before in all the time she had worked for him. A thing that no employer ever does for his secretary or for any other person who works for him, as Mary Faith knew very well.

It was as if he had forgotten all at once that she was his employee and was seeing her for the first time as a young and beautiful woman.

Her own little room opened off his office. Her desk stood against that wall that faced his door. She sat down at it and put the letters he had just signed into their envelopes.

When she raised her head from her work a moment later he was still standing in the doorway looking down at her in that same puzzled frowning way.

"Did I tell you that I'm sorry you're leaving?" he asked. "I meant to, if I didn't. I'm going to miss you, Miss Fenton——"

He seemed to be on the point of saying something else to her; then suddenly he changed his mind apparently, for he shook his head and went back into his own office, shutting the door of it behind him.

Had "Way With Her"

She knew he would miss her when she left Nesbit's. For, in addition to her regular work, she did all sorts of little odd jobs for him. Every year she sent out his Christmas cards. She picked out the presents that he gave to his mother and his two sisters on their birthdays.

When he was too busy to leave the office at noon she always sent Stanley Odeskalki out to buy a bottle of milk and a sandwich for him.

She kept at bay all the people he did not want to see; and by some miracle she did it without hurting their feelings. There was no doubt that Mary Faith had a "way with her" when it came to dealing with people. Almost everybody liked her.

She was more than a secretary to Mr. Mark Nesbit. She was the guardian of his comfort and his peace of mind all day long, six days a week, year in and year out . . . Of course, he would miss her.

Mrs. Puckett's family hotel in River Street was none of your ordinary boarding houses.

Fine Old Place

It had been a fine old place when Mrs. Puckett bought it 20 years before; and it was still a fine old place.

Its walls of red brick were worn smooth by many rains and snows. The bay trees that stood in green tubs on either side of the door were always neatly trimmed. The door was painted white and its brass knob shone like a small sun.

Within there were Oriental rugs faded to soft blue and grays and pinks. There were old mahogany chairs that were the color of port wine. There were bookcases with latticed doors and there was a pair of East Indian vases on the parlor mantel.

DINING ROOM OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

That small sign, with its neat, black lettering on a white background, had been the means of changing the whole course of Mary Faith's life.

How She Met Kim

For on a certain Sunday night in November four years before, Kim Farrell and his mother had seen it in the window as they passed the house; and they had come in to have their supper there.

That was how it happened that Mary Faith had met him. She had fallen in love with him before he left the house that night, and three months later she had promised to marry him.

There was a note from his mother lying on the table in the hall when Mary Faith let herself into Mrs. Puckett's house that night.

She read it on the way upstairs to her room.

Dear Mary Faith:

Kimberley wants me to ask you to have dinner with us tonight. He will stop for you at half past six.

Amelia K. Farrell.

Half past six . . . It was 25 minutes past six that very minute! Mary Faith flew up the two flights of stairs that led to the top floor of the narrow three-story house.

Her room was a large one with three windows that looked out across the housetops and chimney-pots to the distant trees of Haltnorth Park three blocks away.

What was the change? Read tomorrow's chapter and tell your friends about this gripping serial of a young girl's love.

Timely Tips Given in War on Moths

Some Hints on Control of Moths

The following information has been assembled for the purpose of preventing moths, as well as ridding the home of them. In many cases ordinary treatment is not severe enough to absolutely rid moth infested furniture completely. It is my advice that you employ an expert to do this for you.

Upholstery fabrics, such as jacquard velours and tapestries—except wool tapestries—are made from cotton. Moths will not feed on vegetable matter; therefore, such coverings are quite immune from attack. If the piece is stuffed with hair, however, there is a possibility of moth worms finding a way through and feeding on the hair, which is, of course, animal fibre.

MOTHS LIKE MOHAIR

Mohair fabric is woven only from angora wool. Moths will feed upon it. That is why most mohair coverings, during the process of weaving, are treated with moth-proofing solution. These liquids penetrate into the oils of the fibers themselves and make the fabric distasteful to moths.

The small moth-miller may lay her eggs in the darker places on an upholstered piece just the same; but when they hatch, the larvae won't feed on the nap or on the loop of the mohair fibers in the base of the covering.

Clothes moths feed upon wool, fur, hair, feathers and all fabrics manufactured from them. They also relish dried animal matter, such as dead insects, including the dead of their own species, and untreated skins, beef meal, casein, etc.

PREVALENT IN FALL

While moths may be on the wing in steam heated buildings during most any month, they are present in greatest abundance, the country over, from May to July and during September and October. In steam heated houses, moths of the webbing species have been observed as early as late December, January and February.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the value of frequent brushing, beating, sunning, and cleaning of articles subject to clothes-moth attack. The eggs of clothes moths are delicate and can usually be crushed or dislodged by brushing and beating. Pay special attention to cervices, seams, and pockets. Sunning is valuable aid in control work.

In articles laid away moths are much more likely to concentrate upon soiled spots if these have not been removed. Brushing and beating usually remove or kill the larvae or worms.

BRUSHING CLOTHES HELPS

If clothing is thoroughly brushed every two weeks, it is doubtful if moths can affect it seriously. Carpets and rugs cleaned by strong vacuum cleaners and thoroughly brushed on both sides, or electrically cleaned, are freed from infestation if the work is properly done.

Clothing dry-cleaned is also freed from infestation, clothes should be protected, if they are not to be used during the warm season, by being wrapped in paper or placed in tight chests or treated closets.

Furniture covering or clothing that has been stained by fats attract moths and one should be very cautious about stains of this type.

EGGPLANT AND TOMATOES A LA CASSEROLE

ALL INGREDIENTS SHOWN — PREPARING EGGPLANT — SEASONING MIXTURE — MIXTURE IN CASSEROLE

Have you inside information on the deliciousness of the lowly eggplant? Have you tried it sliced dipped in egg and crumbs and slowly fried to tasty tenderness? Or combined with minced lamb as prepared at a famous Boston hotel or just Plain Jane en casserole with tomatoes? Today's recipe divulges the secret of this smacking good combination.

Here tiz:

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 eggplant
- 6 tomatoes
- 1 green pepper
- 2 tsps. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 1-3 cup fat
- 8 medium-sized onions

METHOD:

Pare and slice the eggplant and onions and slice the pepper. Brown in a frying pan in drippings or vegetable fat. Place the browned vegetables in a greased casserole alternating with the tomatoes sliced. Season each layer with salt and pepper and cook in a 400-degrees F. oven for 40 minutes.

Healthful Diet for Child

The problem of what to feed the small child after the first year seems to be increasing to the young mother, especially in the early fall when days are hot but nights and mornings are chilly and tiny tummies are temperamental.

Consulting our baby specialist, I find that following is an approved diet for the average healthy child in the second year. The daily schedule should be about as follows:

6:30 to 7 a. m.—Warm milk, six to nine ounces, given from a cup.

9 a. m.—Fruit juice, two to three ounces.

10 a. m.—Cereal, three good tbsps. cooked and strained. Crisp toast or dried bread with butter. Warm milk, eight to 10 ounces.

2 P. M.—Beef juice, two ounces, and one soft egg; or broth, four ounces; and chicken, rare scraped beefsteak, lamb chop or roast beef one level tbsp. Small baked potato with butter; or two tbsps. rice. Vegetable, one good tbsp. well cooked and strained—peas, string beans, carrots, spinach, celery. Stewed fruit or baked apple, strained, one or two tbsps. Crisp toast or dried bread, one piece, with butter. Water. (No milk.)

6 P. M.—Cereal, as above described, three tbsps. Warm milk, eight or 10 ounces; or bread and milk—stale bread three days old.

Instead of the hours mentioned for the different meals in this diet, it is sometimes more convenient to give the fruit juice at 6:30 a. m., or on waking; the cereal, etc., at 7:30 and the milk at 10:30. Or this milk is omitted entirely and but three feedings given. More milk is then given at breakfast and supper and a small amount at dinner. This arrangement answers quite as well.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation — with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LOVE, THE GREAT QUESTION

One of Most Difficult to Answer

By Beatrice Fairfax

Has Brought Wars, Inspired Men to Valorous Deeds, Women to Unbearable Hardships

"WHAT IS LOVE?" asks Laura B., as casually as if she were not asking the most difficult question in the world to answer. One which has inspired poets to immortal flights and prompted musicians to weave their definition into deathless compositions of love. Love has inspired men to venture across strange continents, to brave the ocean in the frailest craft seeking treasure to lay at the feet of the beloved.

Love has brought about wars and inspired the epics which celebrated them. If it hadn't been for "Helen of the fair hands" we should have had no Trojan war and Homer would not have written the Iliad.

Nor would Marlowe's unsurpassed couplet describing Helen's beauty have been written thousands of years later:

"Is that the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topmost towers of Ilium?"

A LARGE ORDER

So it's a [illegible] definition [illegible] and correspondent is asking me to define [illegible] "Love casteth out fear." Paris, Sept. 3—Many [illegible]

There is much in [illegible] accessories. For ex[illegible]

The Lyolene coat in light blue is shown worn with a hat of the same fabric as the coat, and combined with dark blue street pumps and bag. The coat itself is of an almost colorless variety, and shows an interesting wide-shouldered cut. It fastens at the waistline under the left arm with a single button and buttonhole.

Make the Home Folks Happy

MR. HUSBAND, you may think that the mere fact that you remain at home evenings is all that should be expected of you.

You can see no reason why you should make any effort to entertain others in the home.

You have seen and heard interesting things while at work, but you don't realize that your family might enjoy hearing about them.

What a waste of time it is just to visit with your wife, you think. She should be satisfied that you are home, though you sleep all the evening, read or do something else that you individually enjoy—so you argue.

You know many men who seldom spend an evening at home.

If your wife had such a husband she might have grounds for complaint.

So you pat yourself on the back because you remain at home, and do it because you prefer that to anything else.

Therefore you stay at home for selfish reasons.

Your wife, who has taken care of children all day, would like to speak adult language for a change.

Don't be a dead one when you get home, but make the home folk happy.

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

Dr. Copeland

"MAN IS born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward," said that man of Uz, whose name was Job.

It certainly is the truth that we bring into this life many little defects, some of which may happen to be serious ailments. For example, that common and apparently harmless skin blemish known as a mole may change its nature and become a real menace to its owner.

Usually we are born with the mole. Or it may appear within the early weeks of life.

As a rule moles are harmless. Unfortunately, however, certain forms are dangerous and in rare instances develop into cancer.

When irritated or scratched, there may be rapid changes and a demand for immediate surgical care. There should be no self tampering with moles, warts, tumors and pigmentations of the skin. Certainly they should never be removed unless under the supervision of a physician.

The common harmless form of mole is usually round or flat. Its pigment gives it a brownish color. It may be elevated above the level of the skin, having hairs growing from it.

The mole contains many small blood vessels. These bleed freely if the skin is cut or scratched. Infection with ulceration of the mole is an unpleasant complication. If for any reason a mole begins to increase rapidly in size, immediate removal is indicated. Rapid growth usually means dangerous changes. Nature's warning should not be neglected and surgical attention should be had at once.

Cancerous changes in a mole seldom occur before the 50th year. When this change does take place, it is rapid. If neglected, "metastasis" or spread of cancer to some other part of the body may occur. This is extremely serious.

Some persons unwisely resort to the use of patent medicines for the removal of unsightly and disfiguring moles. This is a dangerous practice. The undesirable discoloration may be removed but the underlying structures may be seriously irritated. This may produce a severe and serious inflammation, leading to serious results.

Answers to Health Queries

M. B. Q.—What causes blood to appear in the phlegm upon arising in the morning?

A.—It would be wise to have an examination.

A. L. K. Q.—Do you advise a tubercular patient to remain at home where the conditions are almost ideal rather than to go to a sanatorium? The patient in question has been ill over three months in bed and his physician has suggested the change in question. Would the other members of the family be apt to contract the disease under the circumstances?

A.—The systematic care and attention given such patients in hospitals and sanatoriums will usually bring about results quicker than home treatment. I would suggest that you be guided by your doctor's advice and judgment. If precautions are taken to avoid coming in actual contact with the sputum, etc., there should be a minimum of danger.

Mrs. E. B. Q.—What would cause my husband to yawn all day long. He does not have to work hard, eats and sleeps well and is apparently healthy? He is 63 years of age.

2. I want to reduce—what would you suggest.

3.—What would cause red spots on the legs below the knees? They are small and round and come and go.

A.—This is probably due to auto-intoxication. He should have lots of outdoor exercise, should eat carefully and keep his system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Restrict the sweets and starches in your diet and keep the digestive tract open. For full particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—This disturbance may be due to a form of hives or to eczema. Watch your diet and elimination. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Daily True Story

In the Rough

CAROL WAS WAITING for Bob at the golf club. Her sun-tanned face, once cheerful and candid, had been, for the past month, the exact reverse. Consequently, all her friends began to avoid her. Many were the theories offered to explain this complete transformation. For the metamorphosis of a perfectly good extrovert into a disagreeble introvert needed some explaining.

Love at first sight was his verdict. He had driven her home from the last country club dance and had witnessed her exuberant happiness which could only be traced to the fact that Mark Sherman, a young man new to the community, had obviously rushed her all evening. Then, when the new chap made no further attempt to see her, naturally she felt scorned.

Perhaps the most bewildered and worried was Carol's coach who was training her for the coming track events. A broken heart certainly did not increase her speed. On the contrary, she seemed almost indifferent to whether or not she won a race. She took the hurdles like an automaton. Her running seemed mechanical and spiritless. She actually lost trial races to inferior contestants.

PLAYS GOLF

"Someone must have told him that I'm a champion runner and scared him away," thought Carol as she sat brooding on the veranda.

Suddenly she was arrested by two men's voices. Glancing over the hedge which screened her from their view, she recognized Mark and an older man. They were walking in the direction of the links.

"Something's got to be done!" the older man was saying. "You've been a wash-out ever since you came here. Moody, disagreeable! Either you've lost interest in the work, or you're in love."

Then they passed out of ear shot. Carol knew that the older man was Judge Townsend, and Mark was his protege. The Judge had even invited him to live in his home for a couple of months while they worked together on a reform measure.

Every morning Mark went to work in a law office. Every evening, he and the Judge discussed the details of their plan for abolition of the third degree. Naturally, Mark had little time for social engagements. At first this had been the excuse Carol had given herself for his neglect of her.

She watched the two men disappear down the road and her eyes began to sparkle in their old mischievous way.

"Hurry, Bob!" she called, seeing him coming slowly towards her, and she sprinted ahead of him in the direction of Mark and Judge Townsend.

"What's the idea? You're not on the track now," shouted Bob.

The Judge and Mark were just about to tee off. Carol pretended surprise at seeing them. When Bob, his round, genial face red as a tomato, finally came steaming up, they agreed to make it a foursome.

MARK HELPS

Carol gave Mark, who was an expert golfer, a terrific battle until the twelfth hole. Then she began to fall behind. Bob looked at her suspiciously, aware that she was deliberately playing badly. On the fifteenth green, she shot her ball into a neighboring meadow and persisted in searching for it. Mark lagged behind to help her.

However, when Bob and the Judge disappeared around a clump of trees, they both instantly quit their search and stared at each other hungrily.

"Why do you hate me?" he asked suddenly, his voice shaking with emotion.

"Why do you despise me?" she retorted.

"I despise you?" he repeated incredulously. "Why, I'm mad about you. I adore you." She laughed abruptly, almost hysterically. "I knew I shouldn't have told you," he muttered, trembling with anger. "It just feeds your vanity. I know you're engaged to Bob Watson and you've been laughing at me the way you're laughing now, all month."

"I'm not engaged to Bob, or anyone," she interrupted quickly.

"Mark, are you afraid of me?" she asked.

"Well," he explained hesitantly. "I tried to kiss you once and you nearly knocked me off my feet, you're amazingly strong!"

ADMITS LOVE

"I couldn't fall into your arms the first time we met!" she argued.

He sat down beside her in the tall grass and said, "But I wanted you to, Atalanta."

He drew close to her. Never had an athlete looked milder. Never did a champion runner seem more approachable. But just as he was about to slip his arms around her, she pushed him away with a violent shove and, leaping up, shouted, "We found it!"

Dazed, he beheld her holding a golf ball and waving wildly at Bob and the Judge who had suddenly reappeared.

"Come on. It's getting late," they cried.

"When did you find that?" asked Mark, laughing and getting to his feet.

"Oh, I never lost it!" she replied, and burst into a run which had it been timed by a stop watch, would have brought cheers from the grandstand.

Easy Exercises to Cure Neck Troubles

NECK TROUBLES—and almost every woman has them after 50—aren't due to relaxed or lazy muscles, but are the direct result of accumulations of adipose tissue or lack of tone in the tissues, that soft padding between the fibers and the skin. Fat can be worn away by massage, a picking up of the flesh, rolling between thumb and fingers, though every woman must understand the imperative need afterwards of ice applications or astringents. The fiddle string neck requires gentle anointments with a heavy cream, cold compresses slapped on afterwards. The only exercise that is likely to bring results is a slow turning of the head from side to side with a strong muscle pull.

Rapid Reducing

RAPID REDUCING, by means of a starvation diet, sweets, starches and fats entirely deleted will bring to the face of the reducer a wan, dispirited hollow-eyed look. Won't do. All wrong. The figure may look better but the face looks worse. Milk added to the diet that is low in fats, will supply nourishment that body needs without adding an ounce to weight. The candidate for the slim shape can partake of lean meats, vegetables that grow above ground, green salads, clear soups and fish. She should substitute toasted rye bread for white bread and butter, take tea and coffee clear.

FANNING

—With GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

The Pesky Blue Jay. "Swe-e-t Adeline."
A Wonderful Party. Then He Spoils It.

"Taste of Your Own Medicine," Says Ma

OF ALL THE SAUCY, impudent, insulting, goat-getting fellows in this world there is none the equal of our American blue jay. He's a handsome fellow with his blue back, the black collar around his neck and his pompadoured crest. We could scarcely spare his presence, a flash of blue, like a bit o' blue heaven dropping from out of the sky. But with him it is a case of "beauty covering a multitude of sins He can find more ways to annoy, pester you, than any other creature we know of. As a farmer boy we grew to think we hated him. At times we really did hate him. We especially hated him when we would stalk silently through the pines, looking for partridge, squirrel, rabbit, only suddenly to have a blue jay discover our presence and tell the whole world about it. 'Whe-e-e-e-e!" he would holler from the top of a birch or chestnut. 'Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e!" After that warning every fur and feathered creature in the forest knew an enemy invaded their domicile and either took cover or were doubly alert The blue jays spoiled many hunts for us, robbed us of many meals of savory partridge, stuffed with chestnuts and strips of bacon laid across their white breasts. Oh—Yum! Yum!—when we think of those boyhood feeds of pa'tridge, cooked only as Granma could cook 'em!

WE'RE AMERICAN and patriotic, but when it comes to jays give us the somber gray Canadian jay to our handsomer blue crested and belted American jay, every time. The Canadian jay is as sociable and comradely as our American jay is as unamiable and villainous. We remember how the Canadian jays used to come and cheer up us lumberjacks out on the Shawanaga cuttings. We used to have our midday meal away from camp and deep in the cuttings. The cook would drive out with the edibles loaded on the onehorse sled and the bull cook and cookee holding things down Those Canadian jays knew the cook's entourage meant eats, and out of the silences they would come, even before the fire was started, to join us Shanty Boys at chow. They would hop all about us in the snow, taking crusts of bread and pieces of pork from right out of our hands

BUT THE AMERICAN blue jay is an altogether different bird. He was born to annoy and pester you. He has the most unmusical scream of any feathered creature Sounds like a cross between a squeaky door hinge and a highly insulted steam calliope How different to the lovely melodious calls of the blue bird of whom Lowell, we think it was, wrote,

The blue jay's shrieks are as harsh and nerve rasping as the blue bird's call is musical and enrapturing And of all the blue jays that ever shrieked, and screamed and squawked, and made a fellow want to reach out and wring its neck, the one that alighted on our casement window and sassed us in seven different languages at sunup yesterday morning was the worst

HE SPOILED OUR party, did this villainous blue jay And what a wonderful party it was. Take a combination of Jack Shannon's tenor notes—Jack has a voice that would charm the very birds from off the bushes—Melody Jack Smith's crooning baritone and soft strumming guitar, and good old Aleck McLean's brown ale, and you need nothing else for a perfectly grand party, the gr-r-r-randest, most gorgeous party of all. The two Jacks dropped in on us Sunday night. So we filled the pitchers with some of Aleck's amber brew and adjourned to the porch for a sangerfest Under the spell of Melody Jack's throbbing guitar and soft baritone, Shannon's silvery tenor and, of course, Aleck's brown ale the hours went swiftly as we sang the good old songs. We all joined in, all the boys, the two Elizabeths, Margaret, Betty, Eileen and even cousin Nellie with the silver in her hair, but all the freshness and buoyancy of youth still in her heart. "The Banks of the Wabash," "My Old New Hampshire Home," "Alabama Moon," "The Sidewalks of New York," "Where the Dear Old Shannon Flows"—our songs took us all over the map We murdered "Sweet Adeline," "Our Wild Irish Rose," "Genevieve," remembered "Dear Louise When We Walked Beneath the Trees," and what a time we had "Seeing Nellie Home." Midnight came and Ma and the girls bade us a decorous good night. But the two Jacks and the boys still were harmonizing on Down Where the Wuertzburger Flows," in the wee small hours.

THREE O CLOCK IN the morning found us putting the lights out and going up stairs to bed still humming "Sweet Adeline and at peace with the world. "This is a great life, after all," we communed with ourself. "It's Labor Day and we don't have to go to the office until evening. We can sleep as late as we choose." Ol Aleck's brown ale must have had us feeling somewhat poetic As we were drifting off in the arms of Morpheus we remember declaiming on "sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care" and praying that "blessings light on him that first invented sleep." We didn't need 'em, but the sighing of the night wind and the soft chirps of the crickets lulled us off. And then that blue jay—that cussed blue jay!

IT MUST HAVE BEEN three hours, for the sun was up, but it seemed three minutes. Anyway we awoke with a start. We didn't know whether it was an Indian war cry or a cross-cut saw. "Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e!" Ogling us from the open casement window, four feet from our sleepy eyes, he gave us hail Columbia for falling off the water wagon and murdering Sweet Adeline and all those lovely gals. "Wh-e-e-e," he shreiked "Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-ee!" We shoohed him away and flopped on the bed. Back in a couple of minutes he came. "Whe-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e!" We cussed him back in his own language. Again he went. Again he returned, bringing a couple more villains with him. They perched on the birch tree and made the morning hideous. "Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e! Whe-e-e-e-e!" Sleep? Even Jack Dempsey couldn't have rocked us to sleep amid that hideous, infernal noise!

AND SO WE GOT up and dressed. That promised long, refreshing morning's sleep blasted by those blankety-blank blue jays. Sympathy? We didn't get even that. "The jays only gave you a taste of your own medicine," declared Ma. "You kept the whole neighborhood awake with that awful singing." And when we exclaimed: "Why Ma, that was harmony, real harmony!" she said "Harmony? — Those blue jays screams were music alongside of your singing." So can you blame us, this sultry morning, for being a bit more sore than ever on blue jays in general and Waban blue jays in particular?

SPORTS

By BILL CORUM

Now "The Late Mayor" In Fact, but He's Still The First Sportsman.

STILL THE FIRST SPORTSMAN

One of Jimmy Walker's favorite gags is, for the time being at least, no longer a gag. Jimmy used to call himself "the late Mayor of New York." And finally he wound up talking himself into it.

But if Jimmy is no longer the first citizen of our town he still is its first sportsman, and that is a title he cannot resign. Sports in America never had a better friend than James J. Walker, and if you think that an inconsiderable claim to fame I point you to the fact that the sports loving nations of the world, such as England, seem to stand it off the best.

It does not come within the province of this column to discuss the legal or political aspects of the long battle between Walker and Samuel Seabury, of the Hofstadter Legislative Committee. Others will take care of that now, and finally history, whose judgment may be less severe and almost as infallible as Mr. Seabury's.

But this column does feel that it is qualified to discuss Walker as a sportsman and a fan, which he essentially is—and a red-hot fan with it. Jimmy loves a fair fight and a clean one and his indignation knows no bounds at anything he considers unfair or shady in the boxing ring or on the playing field.

No longer ago than the Sharkey Schmeling fight he eagerly accepted the opportunity to tell the people of Germany by radio that he thought Max Schmeling had been robbed of his title and that it was a shame, adding sotto voce but loud enough to make sure those near him would hear, that Judge Seabury must have been one of the judges of the fight.

While he was a State Senator, Walker sponsored both the Sunday baseball law and the present boxing law in New York State. His parentage of the latter statute has caused him concern more than once, but by and large, boxing is a better sport and better run here than anywhere else in the world.

As Mayor, Walker insisted on keeping the veteran William Muldoon, a Republican, on the State Boxing Commission, because he argued that Mr. Muldoon stood for a square deal in the eyes of the fans. As, of course, he does.

Jimmy also kept James A. Farley on the boxing board. Once when others were anxious that he resign and at least twice when Farley himself wanted to quit and devote his entire attention to his business. And I think nobody will deny that it was the prominence gained as Chairman of the Boxing Commission that helped bring Farley to his present high position in the councils of the Democratic Party.

That, plus a capacity for hard work and a genius for organization, in which field the gentleman from Haverstraw has few superiors.

When His Boom for Mayor Started:

Walker's original boom for Mayor started at one of the annual dinners of the Baseball Writers' Association, and was led by a then virtually unknown clown whose bigger and better nose was even then pointing to bigger and better things. This Merry Andrew was Jimmy Durante, and his song hit at the time was "Jimmy, the Well Dressed Man."

It was also at one of these baseball dinners that Walker made his famous appeal to Babe Ruth in behalf of "the dirty faced kid in the street." It was a moving talk, done as only one of the master impromptu talkers of our time could have done it, and I believe Ruth claims it struck home. In any event he has been a more sensible, a more staid Bambino ever since.

I recall these more or less unrelated incidents and facts to show the close bond that exists between Walker and the world of sports. When money was needed for the unemployed and unfortunate of the city last Winter it was only natural that Jimmy should turn to his friends in sport, and it was equally natural that they should respond with something like a half million dollars.

Regret His Resignation:

So it will take more than has happened to date to alienate the followers of sport from Jimmy Walker. There may be some fast quitters among his alleged friends—and some of his best friends have been Jimmy's worst enemies—but I think his friends in sport will stand up.

In expressing almost unanimous regret over his resignation the majority of them seemed to feel that nothing whatever had been proved against him and nothing very serious charged. They always have had every reason to think he was all right and they still think so.

As for myself I have no idea on what field it will be fought or when, but it is my conviction that Jimmy will win the last battle. My seat at the fights is in the press box just in front of the Mayor's chair, and before the coming Winter season is over I have a hunch that the Mayor's chair will be occupied by a familiar figure.

And if it's a wrong hunch? . . . Well, I've had wrong hunches before and if I'm wrong I like to be wrong with right guys.

CHAMPS MUST TANGLE WITH FINE DUOS

By BILL GRIMES

With the exception of Francis Ouimet and the seven qualifiers for the National amateur championship, practically all of the leading golfers of this district will participate in the third annual Charles River Country Club member and guest four-ball invitation which begins tomorrow.

Although the two previous member and guests tournaments of the Charles River C. C. attracted fast fields this year's entry is one of the [illegible] in the annals of a four-ball invitation.

Eddie Murphy, the former star [illegible] player and Jack Drake, [illegible] Point Spring, will be on hand to defend their title. Last year Murphy and Drake came from behind to defeat George Sexton and Bobby Hopkins in the finals. Murphy and Drake were four down at the turn but they put on a spurt, squared the match at the 18th and Drake won the decision at the 20th hole.

CRAVEN, DR. KEEFE TEAM

Unfortunately Murphy and Drake are in the same half of the draw as George Sexton and Bobby Hopkins. And incidentally many of the strongest combinations are in the same bracket, including [illegible]

BALDWIN, OGG CAPABLE

Under the line the outstanding [illegible] are Henry S. Pa[illegible] [illegible] Worcester; R. S. and [illegible] Stancel, Belmont Spring; A. Sexton and Leon K. Emerson, Wo[illegible] [illegible] M. Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 6 (INS) [illegible] Field when Aurora and Templeton face each other in the semi-final round of the National Open Polo championship.

Aurora, led by Captain Pat Roark, and Templeton with Winston Guest leading the attack, are expected to furnish a throbbing [illegible] chance to enter the final stake.

Fire-Seared Hand Key to Readville Scene

By RILEY GRANNON

The more sensitive will carry it with them for weeks, perhaps longer, etched in their souls, burned into their brains.

The ultra-sensitive ones will go to bed some night between clean sheets only to wake up [illegible] staring at their night [illegible] breathing hot oil smoke [illegible] for breath [illegible] crying [illegible] for help.

A hand will be reached for [illegible] grasping at that straw that [illegible] men have sought since the beginning of time and never found.

That hand [illegible] to the [illegible]

Reaching far up it will be as though [illegible] straining to reach even far [illegible] nothing. Flames will leap [illegible] will become shriveled and black and crisp and useless.

At last it will drop to the bed and the owner will collapse with [illegible] exhausted.

Or he may wake up and [illegible] a minute before his mind returns to what passes for normal and he gains courage to touch the bed and himself and reach out to turn on the light.

And with the light on he will turn slowly to that hand that was [illegible] into space. His head will [illegible] slowly, eyes pivoting in their [illegible] fear still gripping a racing [illegible]

[illegible] he will see the hand [illegible] not crisp, not black, not shriveled. Not useless.

NIGHTMARE PICTURE

Then, and not till then, he will know it was a dream, a nightmare, a return, according to psychology, of the sharps of a picture that has crossed the brain. How often it will return, these sharps say, depends upon what impression it originally made. This one may return often (to the sensitive). It was that kind of a picture.

It was the 50-mile race for special stock cars. Al Fraser of Ardmore, Pa., was leading. He was a lap in front and coming up on the field to make his lead two laps.

Five cars came out of the turn into the grandstand stretch, throttles wide open, exhausts roaring, tires screeching the perpetual song of speed and more speed.

FRASER AFTER PACK!

Behind them came Fraser. His foot was pressed onto the floor hard as though he would strangle the throttle, if you can by any stretch of the imagination visualize the strangling of a piece of metal.

Here was his chance for that second lap gain. And right in front of the grandstand, too. What a break! He shoved harder on the throttle asking more from his motor. Somehow, he got it. He roared down the stretch. The straining thousands in the stands watched him move up, inch by inch and saw the beginning of a pleased smile of victory start to cross his oil-grimed face.

Suddenly that face set, the smile set . . . Then there was a crash, the wild song of steel on steel and the screeching of skidding rubber.

But officials and experts in the pits reconstruct it this way.

John O'Sullivan, an East Dedham driver was leading the pack of five cars roaring down that grandstand stretch, trying to keep out of the way of Fraser.

He, too, was giving it everything it had, asking that last ounce, perhaps cursing, perhaps praying, but fighting to get into the next turn on top.

Suddenly there was a wild screech. O'Sullivan's car hit a rut, turned broadside. Four cars piled into him. It was too late to pull out. Besides, O'Sullivan's car was so set that it could not be avoided.

Nor was there enough time for the drivers to switch off their ignition. Airplane pilots have that chance, at least.

There was a roar. Then a great burst of flame.

And into this flaming hell came Fraser's car. He must have known what was in store for him. That frozen smile.

FRASER LAST TO CRASH

Fraser's was the last car into that hellish flame . . . And he was the only one who failed to come out.

The others, scorched, burned, bruised, managed to drag themselves close enough to the edge to be pulled away by heroic strangers who rushed from the rail and braved what seemed certain death.

The hand was oil spattered, grimy at first. It was that way for a split second. Then it seemed to realize it was no use. It relaxed, became black, relaxed again and fell back.

SMALL CHANCE TO AID

Though there was small chance of help. The flames, fed by gas and oil, were so hot after the first three or four minutes that even protected firemen would not get near them.

Women wept, men cursed . . . and the flames, after an hour, died down enough to let firemen reach the still form in the wreckage.

So charred that he was unrecognizable he was pulled out. It wasn't until later, after a check of the rescued drivers, that it was decided Frazier was the victim.

So that's the picture that was staged before 15,000 thrill seekers. And that's the picture that will return some night, perhaps . . . Only the hand will not be burned . . . and the flames will not be flames . . . and the wreckage will not be wreckage—only the bed covered in clean, white, cool sheets.

The other five drivers were recovering this morning. One heroic police officer, Sergt. Thomas Ryan, 52, of the Hyde Park station is in City Hospital suffering from second degree burns.

OUIMET READY FOR TITLE DEFENSE

Francis Ouimet, the titlist, will return from Arthur Houghton's camp late this afternoon or tomorrow. Francis, according to reports, is himself again and is completely recovered from the effects of his recent illness and the Walker Cup matches.

Accompanied by Bill Danforth, Ray van Arsdale and Jesse P. Guilford, Ouimet will fly to Baltimore. He plans to leave the Boston Airport Thursday morning and will play his first practice round at Five Farms that afternoon.

Wilfred Crossley, Norfolk, will be one of the early arrivals at Five Farms. He is visiting relatives in New York state and expects to be in the Oriole City by tomorrow. Win Trowbridge, Cohasset, Win Hersey, Wellesley, Bill Blaney, Brae Burn and Johnny Nies, United Shoe, will leave here tomorrow or Thursday.

So What?

So Ad Zachow and Lou Brouillard go Friday night, when the farmer in the dell meets the Frenchman in the Garden.

Zachow is fast enough to be a ten-second-flat man. But that doesn't mean ten seconds flat on the canvas.

MANAGERS GET MOST OF BAER'S EARNINGS

It seems Max Baer was originally managed by one "Ham" Lorimer, who had a fifty-fifty managerial contract with Baer, of which he sold 25 per cent to Hoffman for $20,000, the latter paying $5000 in cash, and the balance out of his end of Baer's earnings.

In the meantime, Baer sold 10 per cent additional interest in himself to a friend in San Francisco for $15,000 cash. That makes the 60 per cent.

COULDN'T BREAK CONTRACT

An attempt was made to break the original contract with Lorimer and Hoffman, but a court in San Francisco recently upheld the validity of the document. The managerial "cut" is after expenses are paid "off the top," as the boys say, which means from the sum total received by the gladiator.

While Lorimer, who brought Baer, and Max are no longer pals, the fighter is friendly with Hoffman, his present director. The fellow who holds the 10 per cent interest in Max is a buddy, and Max pays off the 10 when he can. A considerable amount of Max's earnings is being held in escrow pending claims of indebtedness filed against the fighter by his first manager.

So Max Baer has his troubles. Almost as many troubles in this particular detail as Jack Dempsey at the beginning of his championship career, though Jack was never so incautious as to give away 60 per cent of himself.

H. C. GRID SQUAD OUT TODAY

TERRIERS IN WORKOUT TOMORROW

Capt. John McEwan will help his 1932 Crusader cohorts at Worcester, and four other N. E. colleges start work today for the coming football campaign

New Hampshire, Amherst, Williams and Wesleyan are other colleges which today follow the football example set last week by Boston College and Rhode Island State.

The five colleges named start work today. Boston University will start tomorrow, Dartmouth Thursday and Northeastern will have its first freshman team out Saturday.

At Worcester Capt. McEwan is host to 34 selected candidates.

B. C. Gridmen to Scrimmage Today

Jackson, N. H., Sept. 6—Raring to' go after a three day respite from their gridiron toil, the Boston College football squad swung into its second week of training here this morning under Joe McKenney.

Coach McKenney sent his backfield candidates through passing and kicking drill. Of those who were on the freshmen eleven of last fall the Currans and Ed Skrikus are making the best appearance in the backfield.

The linemen will in all probability be culled from last year's varsity squad for no sophomore has yet made a hit with McKenney, although Paul Donahue may break into a few games at end. Donahue is a converted tackle.

Gillis, Ott, Freitas, Skrikus, the Curran brothers, Kirvan, Chesnulevich and Dougan, all fast backs, will give B. C. a speedy backfield this year.

WHITE SHIRTS MENACE TO YANKEES

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Sept. 6 (INS)—Nobody will admit it, few even will discuss the matter, but it is fact, not fancy, that the New York Yankees are more than a little impressed today with what they hear and know about the so-called "White Shirt" menace that may confront them in Chicago during the impending World Series.

They've been informed by National Leaguers that, if the series is played in weather that is seasonably mild, they can expect to hit against a bleacher background of white shirts that deceives the eye and defies the senses.

They've been told that the Cub staff has been handpicked so that its side arm deliveries will blend and meld with this background to the everlasting regret of all left hand hitters.

They even have been given to understand that Lefty O'Doul wishes the National League to enforce a rule of some kind.

BAN ALL BUT CLERGY

I don't exactly know what Mr. O'Doul has in mind, but doubtless he is working on a constructive idea and may be expected to announce something of an original and creative nature very soon.

Maybe they'll wind up by allowing only clergymen in the centerfield bleachers. Maybe he can prevail upon the people to wear dirty shirts.

Anyhow, it's supposed to be his story, and that of nearly all left hand hitters, that the "white shirt" menace in Chicago is very urgent and very real, it being their not altogether unreasonable contention that you very seldom hit what you do not see.

Mel Ott, of the Giants, is supposed to furnish one of the few exceptions to this rule and, in his case, it is said that he is small enough to be somewhat below the line of confused vision. If that were the case, it also extends some immunity to Joe Sewell, of the Yankees.

RUTH AFFECTED

But practically none at all to Ruth, Gehrig, Combs and Dickey, their remaining left-hand hitters. Stop any three of these and the Yanks, in toto, are more than stopped.

However, Mr. Joe McCarthy of the Yankees doubtless is conversant with the situation, since he helped to create it with practically the same pitchers in Chicago some years back and, besides, while it is possible that he will neglect to take advantage of the same situation the law says he doesn't have to.

Indeed, ball players declare that Ruffing and Allen will literally "mow the hitters down" in Chicago, whereas they assert with equal assurance that Gomez probably won't be used there at all.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

Zachow, 19 years old, has come to the front at an amazing clip. He reached the high spot of his ring career when he knocked out Leo Larivee, of Waterbury.

Zachow tells me he has been schooled in boxing by his father. He has been watching punches since he was in his high chair. This long experience with boxing, plus intelligence of a high order gives Zachow a chance of winning against any man near his own weight.

Incidentally, when Zachow meets Brouillard, he will have a decided advantage in poundage. Ad weighs 153 pounds, while Brouillard's best fighting notch is around 147 pounds. Perhaps this weight advantage will help Zachow overcome Brouillard's greater experience.

In case you don't follow the record books, Brouillard is a former world's welterweight champion. He won the title when only 20 years of age by licking Young Jack Thompson in a gruelling 15-round bout at the Boston Garden. Four months later, Brouillard lost his championship by the decision route to Jackie Fields in Chicago.

Being young, Brouillard didn't worry because he was beaten by Fields. He kept improving as a boxer and only recently conquered Jimmy McLarnin in New York.

Youth laughs at reverses only to plunge forward and reach greater heights.

On to Rockland

I shall journey to Rockland this afternoon to see the Braves in action against the Falmouth club of the South Shore League in a game for the benefit of the local Milk Fund. Of course nobody contends that Falmouth has a team as good as the Braves, but yet I am informed by Jimmy Burke, able sports editor of the Brockton Enterprise, that the big leaguers will not have any cinch winning.

Burke says Falmouth has a fine hitting team, while it has good pitching and fine defensive strength. It has made an exceptionally good record in the South Shore League and would like to tip over the Braves.

The Braves play a game at Rockland each year to aid the local Milk Fund. The South Shore will give Judge Emil Fuchs, Bill McKechnie, Rabbit Maranville and the rest of the gang a royal welcome.

After the game there will be a dinner at Hugo's in Scituate.

Carpentier Is Back

GEORGES CARPENTIER is back in the United States for a New York stage engagement.

Fred Doherty, chewing away at a cigar, dropped in to tell me that the Sharkey-Schmeling fight films are being shown at the Old Howard this week.

Albert L. Brouillard, State detective, knocked off a hole in one at Thorny Lea. He was playing in a foursome with his son, George, Charles Fraher of Whitman and Lieut. Daniel T. Guerin of the Brockton Police Department. The star shot was made at the No. 3 hole, a distance of 160 yards.

AURORA MEET CALLED OFF

Chicago, Sept. 6 (INS)—The Exposition park horse racing track at Aurora was deserted today. After two days of activity the present meeting scheduled for 13 days was abruptly halted by the Aurora Jockey Club directors.

SOUTH BOSTON NINE MEETS WALTHAM

Manager Bill Benson of the South Boston nine is likely to step on the mound tonight when his outfit engages Waltham at the South Boston Stadium in the Boston Twilight League round-robin series.

It will be Southie's first game in its fight to enter the title bracket with Allston, which won both halves of the Twilight League campaign.

Concord, Waltham and South Boston were the runner-up clubs to Allston in both halves and they're now battling to see which will be named to face Allston in the championship series.

South Boston is out to make a sweep of the series and a victory tonight will give them the proper incentive for their journey to Concord tomorrow night.

The City League "little world series" third game will be played tomorrow night at 5:30 at Healy Field, Roslindale. Roslindale leads, locked the series by walloping St. Thomas, 8-6, on the holiday.

Roslindale came up with a new pitcher in Edson "Chippy" Gaw, who worked all season in the Suburban League, and Chippy gave but five blows.

Ted Weafer for St. Thomas and Jim Shea for Roslindale are likely to be the starting pitching announcements.

Malden Athletics and Mt. Carmel H. N. S. clash at American Legion Park, East Boston, tonight in a Suburban Twilight League game. Elmer Rauch will be on the Malden mound and will be opposed by Phineas Tobe, Harvard jayvee hurler.

Newark Wins Title After 19 Years

Newark, Sept. 6 (INS)—It took 19 years, but the Newark Bears finally have what they went after. And that is the International League pennant which they grabbed by setting back the Jersey City Skeeters in both ends of the Labor Day twin bill here. This is the first pennant winning team in Newark since 1913.

Jack Pearl has been signed as regular Thurs. feature of the Magic Carpet hr. Jack'll portray Baron Munchausen, world's greatest liar. That is, "world's greatest liar" until some of these radio sponsors get rambunctious.

Gossip columns as glorified in Paramount-Uptown's attraction, "Blessed Event," will be interpreted by Linus Travers, WAAB, at 8:15 tonight. Proving Travers' versatility; he can even interpret gossip columns.

The Mills Bros. will play a return engagement at the Met in a few wks., just about the same time the Three Keys do a wk. at Loew's Orpheum. Here's hoping the two groups won't get their theaters mixed up because the audience may not be able to tell the difference between them.

Hugo Mariani, NBC maestro, defines a "short covering" as any up-to-the-minute evening gown.

George Frame Brown, Mayor Matt Thompkins of Thompkins Corners, will run for re-election with this campaign slogan: "Beware of the Bull." M. G. M.

A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

BUSINESS

OPERATING ECONOMIES AID CONSTRUCTION

By M. S. RUKEYSER

THE NEW MOTIF in industrial construction is not enlargement of capacity, as was the case before the depression but greater economy in operations.

The argument that sells equipment nowadays is that the expenditure will enable a company to save money in operation.

George T. Ladd, president United Engineering and Foundry Company, Pittsburgh, in a message to this column on this subject, revealed:

"I would advise that our business follows the general pickup in the steel industry; this particularly being the case in our roll department.

"The steel plants are, at the present time, practically denuded of rolls, and any pickup in the industry would immediately reflect itself in our roll department.

Changes for Economic Reasons

"In our machinery department we are figuring on a number of large contemplated changes for the various steel companies; these changes being considered for economic reasons rather than for further expansion. Our machinery department is devoted almost entirely to the manufacture of steel mill equipment. There is no question that the activity in our machinery department is due to obsolescence and economic improvements desired in the manufacture of rolled steel products as well as the recent production of improved rolling methods.

"Requests for appropriations for these improvements have been made by many of the major steel companies, but little work has been released."

Queried concerning whether the pickup in business sentiment had resulted in the release of any engineering projects, H. K. Ferguson, president of the Cleveland engineering firm which bears his name, said:

"Our own experience is that we are having a reasonable amount of inquiries for small work. On the other hand, managers of businesses who have been holding up large projects, are at the moment dubious about the permanency of the present improvement in the security and commodity markets.

Business Ready for Release

"There is a good deal of business ready to release, but a considerable amount of it will probably be held up so long that the owners involved will not be able to take advantage of the low prices for equipment and materials available at this time.

"We and most of our important customers feel that these prices are at a minimum just now and are not likely to go lower. On the other hand, managers of business which are struggling to keep out of red figures at this time do not like to consider tieing up any important amount of capital in new construction or equipment until they are assured of reasonable permanency in improved commodity conditions.

"As a result, there will probably be some who will feel their way into these projects, going ahead with improvements in site and ground conditions and installing railroad tracts, but waiting for further evidence of permanency of improvement before committing themselves to the larger expenditures for structures and equipment."

OFFERS CHANCE FOR SALES TAX ARGUMENTS

By FRANK H. MELOON

New England Council announces today a state-wide conference of local taxpayers' associations and tax committees is to be held at Worcester Sept 23. The announcement was made by John F. Tinsley, prominent Bay State industrialist, as chairman and Massachusetts member of the council's committee on community development. The meeting will be primarily a gathering of Massachusetts business men working through local organization for tax control. Representatives of local taxpayers associations and tax committees in other New England states will be present.

John F. Tinsley

* * *

This meeting will afford a splendid opportunity for the growing number of leaders backing the sales tax movement to explain its advantages to those less well-informed. Unquestionably the sales tax is growing enormously in favor partly because it appears the one logical way not only to spread the burden [illegible] comparatively [illegible] but also because it could do away with the numerous nuisance taxes now handicapping industry and keeping down employment and spending power.

* * *

Drug companies appear to be among the most favored industrial groups. This fact is brought to attention in part by the report today that earnings of McKesson & Robbins Inc. for the six months ended June 30 were more than sufficient to cover total interest charges for the period. The statement shows net sales for the half year of $52,133,228 and gross profit on sales of $6,158,098.

* * *

Consolidated balance sheet as of June 30 1932 showed current assets aggregating $53,206,948 compared with current liabilities of $10,322,128 a ratio of about 5.2 to 1. The McKesson statement also shows that the amount of outstanding 5½ per cent debentures were reduced to $20,848,000 as of June 30 against $21,158,000 as of December 31, 1931.

* * *

Railroad statistics are sent us to show that there has been a decrease in grade crossing accidents this year. It may be due to the fact that there has been decreased travel or even to the exercise of greater care by engineers in approaching grade crossings, something some reckless motorists appear to expect.

Threatens to Pour Milk Into River

Memphis, Tenn, Sept 6 (AP)—Notice was served on Memphis milk plants today by Fred Howard, business manager of the Independent Dairymen's Association, that 40,000 gallons of sweet milk will be poured into the Mississippi river unless satisfactory prices are obtained for it by the producers.

Seat on Exchange $185,000, Unchanged

New York, Sept 6. Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat at $185,000 unchanged from previous transaction.

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the market from now on will insist on factual proof that business is better. No longer will hopes be sufficient excuse for either buying or holding equities. For this reason alone it is logical to expect share prices will soon start to hesitate. They will at least wait for fall business to justify some of the nice things they have said about it. Until exhaustion of the upward move is plainly indicated, quick traders continue to favor specialties.

September Outlook

The paramount feature in the September outlook is, of course, the chance that industrial developments will definitely answer all questions as to whether or not a lasting turn for the better is with us. The real test will come in reports from the so-called capital goods manufacturers.

It is generally admitted that makers of consumer goods are experiencing a marked pickup. If they can hold their own while the heavy industries, such as steel, show signs of shaking off the lethargy of recent years the hope of better times will have some basis in fact.

The report from U. S. Steel, on the tenth of September, will throw much light on this phase of the situation. Another event, which the markets are likely to be coaxed into receiving graciously, is the government financing set for the fifteenth. A strong share market is considered an assurance of success.

Odds and Ends

The world economic conference which many observers had set so much store by, is apparently doomed to failure. England is determined to have it so, if war debts and tariffs are not discussed according to dispatches from the other side.

R. H. Macy, recommended here for investment some 25 points under current levels and for trading purposes 15 points down, has had a remarkable move. In a few weeks the open market valuation of the company has increased $50,000,000. This is half the total asset figure shown in the balance sheet.

A broker's letter throws some light on the prospects for the steel trade. It says that steel men are most sanguine about the near term outlook, expecting that the industry as a whole will be at 30 per cent of capacity by the first week of November.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

HIGHER prices for commodities furnished the major inspiration for the bulls in Wall Street today, although the after Labor Day plant reopenings in the steel districts and notably in Toledo were also important factors. That the shares market did not respond more vehemently was undoubtedly due to the fact that much of the genuine good news had been previously anticipated.

Steel Operations Seen as Past Low

Now the campaign is turning to business. Normally the heavy industries like steel, start to pick up in August with the other industries following in September and October. This year business has been allowed to drag through the summer and over the week-end steel operations probably set a new low for the depression according to bullish belief in Wall Street.

Big Drug Chain Is Operated in Black

McKesson & Robbins, Inc., reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $45,979 including $44,547 excess provision for federal taxes of prior periods less current provision for federal and foreign income taxes and after depreciation, interest, subsidiary dividends, provision for federal and foreign etc. This is equivalent to 10 cents a share on $438,045 shares (par $50) of 7 per cent convertible preference stock excluding shares held in treasury and compares with net income in first half of 1931 of $1,300,380 equal after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preference stock to 51 cents a share on 1,074,734 no par shares of common excluding treasury shares.

Youngstown Steel Operations Are Up

From Youngstown came word that operations of the Carnegie Steel Co. in that district are being stepped up to nearly 40 per cent this week against slightly more than 20 per cent in the previous week. Almost half the company's open-hearth furnaces in that district are operating today.

Stronger Demand for Beef Is Held Back

U. S. Department of Agriculture says:

"Any business recovery during the remainder of the year is not likely to be reflected in a stronger demand for beef and veal until the first part of 1933 because of the lag which normally prevails between changes in housing conditions and changes in demands for meats."

Although the total number of cattle in the United States is larger than a year ago the number on feed is smaller.

Waterbury Clock's Orders Substantial

Stockholders of Waterbury Clock Co. will vote Wednesday on proposal of James R. Sheldon of Waterbury, Conn., to purchase $500,000 preferred stock on conditions demanding general reorganization. Company is in temporary receivership while efforts are being made to finance numerous large orders. Sheldon demands resignation of directors and election of new board by preferred stockholders. Plan calls for dissolution of common stock voting trust, reduction of authorized capital from $4,000,000 to $1,000,000 by lowering par value of common stock from $100 to $25 and then increasing capital by $500,000 of preferred stock of $25 par and by $750,000 of common stock of $25 par. Company has substantial orders from Sears Roebuck, S. S. Kresge and others.

New England Telephone and Telegraph Company
189th Dividend

A dividend of two dollars ($2.00) per share will be paid on Friday, September 30, 1932 to stockholders of record at the close of business on Saturday, September 10, 1932.

O. I. IVES, Treasurer.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The stock market enters a new week today with its best foot forward.

The run-up at the close of last week should normally make for considerable hesitation. To offset this is the fact that the big business push is ready to start.

Expected Gains

Expected gains in the heavy industries like steel and motors with expanding power production are likely to give the speculative community the justification it has been seeking in its present exuberant state of mind.

The rails have already given a contribution, a gain of more than 19,000 cars last week. The carriers should be generally in the black.

Here and There

Despite the Auburn dividend action this column strongly advises staying away from the short side of the stock. In the first place there are plenty of shorts in it already. Then, too, it is pretty well known that the company's earnings report for the nine months will be sour.

Even if there is a dividend change, look at Case paying nothing and far from as comfortably off as Auburn financially . . . The reversal in Canadian Pacific's earnings down trend at the end of August is interesting in view of reports the stock will do things this week . . . Baltimore & Ohio preferred seems far out of line with the common.

STOCKS MOSTLY HIGHER IN BOSTON

Share prices were mostly higher in today's active dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. A fresh upward spurt at the opening was quickly overshadowed by profit-taking and the market began to sag only to turn about and resume the rise in late trading.

United Carr Fastener and Aviation Securities each sold in new high territory on gains of around a point. Anaconda Copper was strong and recorded a gain of well over a point.

Rail shares softened with Boston & Maine prior preferred and A stamped showing losses of 3 points while the D stamped soared 5 points. Boston & Albany was down 2 points and New Haven and Pennsylvania sold at slightly lower levels.

Maine Central moved against the general trend and recorded an advance of 2 points. Atchison added a minor fraction. United Shoe and Swift & Co. were at higher levels. American Telephone lowered over a point and Gillette eased slightly.

The omission of the Eastern Steamship common dividend brought out scattered offerings with the stock easing to 6. This, however, is a point above the low for the year. While American Woolen preferred advanced into new high ground for the year other textile shares showed minor losses.

Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., reports for July net income of $334,575 after all charges, against net income of $447,841 after all charges in July, 1931.

For the seven months to July 31 there was a surplus of $15,567 after all charges against a surplus of $445,092 after all charges in the first seven months of 1931.

BUSINESS HAS BRIGHT SPOTS

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—Further bright spots on the economic horizon appeared in the last half of August, according to reports from editors of 115 trade and industrial publications throughout the United States.

The consensus, as recorded by the Associated Business Papers Inc., of New York, was that business for the last half of August averaged a shade better than in the preceding fortnight.

The editors reported building construction for the last two weeks of August showed a number of large public enterprises starting, but private building has not yet responded to the encouragement of easier financing and low costs.

In the steel industry it was said inquiry and sales of raw materials were active but that interest in finished products lagged, thus reversing the sequence that followed the 1921 depression.

Oil refineries had heavy orders for domestic fuel oils, stocks were lower and prices higher and gasoline consumption almost equalled that of 1931.

Sales of automobiles in some instances were declared to be ahead of those in July; prices of lead, copper and zinc were steadily strengthening.

BURROUGHS HAS $403,148 NET

Burroughs Adding Machine Co. for the six months ended June 30 reports net income after depreciation, taxes and charges of $403,148 compared to $2,502,220 in the 1931 period. On 5,000,000 capital shares net income is equal to eight cents a share against 50 cents the year before. Surplus June 30 stood at $6,029,836. During the six months' period, the company drew $1,543,532 from surplus for payment of two 20-cent dividends aggregating $1,946,680.

Current assets, June 30, of $27,-461,952 compared with current liabilities of $1,090,811, a ratio of 25 to 1. Cash totaled $3,569,117 and government securities $12,399,787, the combined items showing a decrease of $813,892 from the year end. Inventories of $8,888,416 declined $402,627 from Dec. 31, 1931.

President Backus, at the time of declaration of the third quarter dividend, July 26, stated that current earnings were not sufficient for dividend requirements, and that unless a substantial increase in sales and earnings should take place within the next 90 days shareholders might expect a change in dividend policy. Up to the present time, Mr. Backus states, no such substantial increases are apparent, although a more optimistic feeling is reported from many quarters.

Japanese Spinning Output Curtailed

Washington, Sept. 6—Japanese spinners are curtailing output to 36.4 per cent, effective October to December, Department of Commerce was cabled from Kobe.

Production is believed to have shown reduction for August and September as result of poor domestic demand. Yarn stocks continue to rise. Exports of cloth in July were unusually heavy. While there have been increased losses in Chinese market, these have been more than offset by heavy purchases from South Africa, Near East and other Oriental markets. Low value of the yen is an important factor in heavy exports.

LEADERS SELL OFF IN LATE DEALINGS

New York, Sept. 6—Important shares sold off in late dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today. The market quickly spent its strength in an early upturn today, and slid back rather sharply in late trading. Extreme gains of 1 or more than 3 points were sharply reduced or lost, and final prices disclosed several losses of like extent.

The late tone was heavy. Transfers approximate 4,400,000 shares.

SOME GAINS HELD

Gains of 1 to 2 points in such issues as Anaconda, American Smelting, Kennecott, and International Telephone were partially retained, but a 3-point rise in United Aircraft was mostly lost, and such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, New York Central and Union Pacific ran to net losses of around 1 to 3 points.

Considerable irregularity was shown in the afternoon. The bulls kept the rise going at times by rotating leadership, which turned from the oils to the motors.

A drive on Auburn Auto featured one period. The shares had risen about 5 points on declaration of the usual liberal dividends, but the sudden selling brought the shares below Saturday's close. Other motors shares were firm on speeding up of the industry in Toledo. The early highs were in several instances new tops for the summer recovery.

With Labor Day past the time has arrived when the seasonal upswing in business may be expected rapidly to take definite form, and traders in shares were naturally inclined to proceed slowly until the vague outline becomes more clearly delineated.

Steels, coppers, oils and industrial specialties were whirled up rather vigorously during the morning, but the rails were sluggish from the start, and turned weak after midday, causing recession from the best in other groups.

COMMODITIES STRONG

Continued strength in commodities remained the principal bull talking point in the share market, and domestically, zinc and silver were helped by the farm board's announcement that it would hold its supplies off the markets during the current season. Copper, however, was still substantially under the average domestic production cost.

Most Wall Street analyses described the upswing in the market of the past two months as chiefly reflecting a reaction from panic psychology, and several felt that henceforth there would be a growing tendency to turn to corporate earnings for guidance.

It was acknowledged, however, that despite the fact that the third quarter statements, due in October, could scarcely be expected to show much in the way of restored earning power, quickened operations in steel and other basic lines should do much to sustain the improvement in sentiment.

Steel production in some sections has already turned upward, after the Labor Day holiday, with Carnegie, one of U. S. Steel's chief subsidiaries, increasing its output. Ford Motor Co. and some other automotive concerns have resumed operations after vacation shutdowns of three weeks or so.

As yet, however, there has been little to suggest anything more than the usual seasonal upturn, outside of textiles and possibly some other lines.

Weekly survey of current business, issued by the Department of Commerce, spoke of seasonal pickup in the movement of agricultural commodities and in lighter manufacturing lines, with no important change in the composite industrial picture.

The next four or five weeks should bring the seasonal upswing in industry to its climax, unless reconstruction loans and other factors tend to provide more enduring stimulus than is usually experienced in the autumn season.

LITERARY NOTE

"An Analysis of Domestic Relations in the Modern World" is the title of a snappy reference book just written by Professor McThumbtack Doakes. The professor advances the theory that too many domestic relations shine their shoes with the guest towel, and too many bridegrooms cut up the marriage certificate for shaving paper.

JUST CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK!

Today we print for the first time a picture of Emil Frisby, upstanding son of Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby. Emil has just reached man's estate and expects to vote for his father next Fall. Note that he is wearing the Frisby Backbone Supporter, which causes him to stand erect rather than slump forward in a lazy, spineless manner as though his vertebrae were strung on spaghetti. "I am proud of Emil," says Congressman Frisby, "and unless I miss my guess, he will soon occupy a post in the government service. He is slated for the prohibition enforcement service, and also shoots a good game of pool."

CHILDREN PLAY ON HUTCHINSON OCEAN FLIGHT

By MRS. B. HUTCHINSON

(Copyright, 1932.)

By International News Service

Godthaab, Greenland, Sept. 6—One of the most interesting results of our flight so far is that our children, Kathryn and Janet Lee, have acquired rosy cheeks.

One can hardly believe that these girls have flown the North Atlantic and experienced thrills on thrills.

The officers and crew of the British warship Challenger, which was anchored in Hopedale harbor, Labrador, aided us materially by supplying us with weather reports. Commander Wyatt presented a letter which he asked me to deliver to his wife in London.

WEATHER HAMPERS HOP

Friday, aided by Eskimos, we started loading and refuelling our plane. Then we were delayed by unfavorable weather.

Our crew of four was concerned over the fact that we were carrying 11,880 pounds, but I was not worried. This Sikorsky plane of ours could have carried 1000 pounds more.

We finally rose from the water at 10:15 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time.) The water was calm. After a run of 28 seconds, the plane went into the air and headed southwest. Then we headed northeast and after getting our bearings we headed for Godthaab, a distance of 670 miles, with five-mile an hour tail wind.

CHILDREN PLAY

The first hour passed quickly. The sky became overcast. Our radio operator made contact with the Hopedale radio station, and also the Challenger. Weather reports were received from both sources. While I wrote in my diary, the children amused themselves by playing with their dolls. They did not appear to be the least concerned over the fact that we were making a perilous voyage.

During the second hour we encountered a thick fog which compelled us to rise to 4000 feet, then higher, and finally we soared to 8000 feet. At times we were compelled to fly blind. Fortunately our gyro compass was working perfectly.

Woman Loses $38 to Bag Snatcher

Returning to her home from a party early today, Mrs. Francis McGrath, of Hyde Park ave., Jamaica Plain, was struck in the face by an unidentified youth at Center and Wyman sts., and was robbed of her handbag containing $38.

Mrs. McGrath had left a trolley car at Jackson sq. when the youth approached. She described him as about 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds, wearing a light suit and hat.

Bolivia Moves for War on Paraguay

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 6 (AP)—Steps toward far awoke anew the temporarily dormant Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay today.

Eyebrows Expose the Age of Women

York, Eng., Sept. 6 (AP)—The woman who is trying to conceal her age should keep an eye on her eyebrows. They tend to give the secret away. Prof. V. Suk told the British Association for the Advancement of Science that eyebrows change position with advancing age. They sink below the upper margin of the eye socket.

Cross Erected to Honor Mail Fliers

Chicago, Sept. 6 (AP)—A cross was selected for erection today in Grant Park in memory of the men who blazed the trail when the United States mail service winged its way westward—and the pilots who have died following that trail.

The spot picked was the place where Sept. 6, 1918, the wheels of the first mail plane to fly here from New York made its landing.

Former Kaiser and Family on Vacation

Doorn, Holland, Sept. 6 (AP)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II left here today with Princess Hermine and her two daughters for a seaside resort at Zandvoort.

The party travelled in open motor cars and was accompanied by Major Van Houten of the military police.

Fishermen to Scour Sea Bottom for Hake

Fleetwood, England, Sept. 6 (AP)—Hake, like still water, run deep. The stea mtrawler, Margaret Rose, sailing in search of New Hake fishing grounds off the Eastern United States, carried equipment to fish at 350 fathoms, or 2100 feet.

The Story of an Old Man Who Tried to Make Good

It is inconceivable that a 72-year-old man shall be forced to serve the rest of his life in prison for the theft of a pair of shoes.

Frank Howard, when a young man, was sentenced to Charlestown State Prison for life for armed robbery.

The Boston Evening American dug up his story and told it to the world. Freedom now is possible, fortunately, as a result of this publicity.

Howard's conduct was so exemplary in prison and his atonement so complete that when the slow-moving State of Massachusetts got around to it, he was liberated on a parole, after he had served seventeen years.

That was eighteen years ago. He married and settled down. He had changed his name in order that his wife and such children as might come to them might not suffer from prison's stigma. He worked industriously and his family (a daughter came) took a humble but respected station in their community.

Frank Howard is now 72 years old. Men of that age can't keep their post in the workshop or factory in competition with younger and stronger men, especially in a time of general unemployment. He lost his job, and for twenty months has sought without avail to find himself another.

The savings of eighteen years vanished. He and his family were destitute. He took a pair of shoes in a store with which to buy food for his family. He was arrested. The store people, learning of his plight and sympathizing with him, had no desire to prosecute him, but he has gone back to prison, not for taking the pair of shoes but for the violation of the terms of the parole granted him eighteen years ago after he had served seventeen years in Charlestown.

The State of Massachusetts, which had taken seventeen years out of his life for his early offense, now puts him back into prison. Not to serve a day, a week, a month or a year again, but to serve "the remainder of his natural life."

Governor Ely and State parole officials have promised to save this man from spending the last few years of his life span in prison.

Citizenship Is Unaffected

Welfare Aid Doesn't Forfeit Rights

A woman in a city near Boston writes the following letter to the Boston Evening American:

> "I wonder if you could tell me where I could get food for my boy eleven years old without forfeiting my citizenship by accepting public welfare.
>
> "I am in a destitute condition through no fault of mine, and am unable to get food or clothing for my boy, and so decided to get into touch with you for I know the wonderful work you do."

A representative from this newspaper will have visited this good lady in the hope of alleviating her material condition before this is published.

The question she raises (whether the acceptance of public welfare automatically forfeits the rights of citizenship, including the right to vote) no doubt has been raised in the minds of our many thousand people who have been forced by the pressure of circumstances the past three years to apply for public aid.

The answer is "No." Citizenship, or any of its rights and obligations, is not forfeited.

The Legislature (we are glad to praise it for its foresight in this matter) contemplated the stress of the times and the questions that might be raised. Accordingly, it provided by Chapter 206 of the Acts of 1932 that the destitution or poverty of a man should not be regarded, in any degree, as a condition for the destruction of his rights. It is the criminal act, not the misfortune of hard times, that alone deprives the citizen of his standing.

Help Ease Traffic Snarl

By All Means Try Out New Route

The Traffic Commission has at last decided to attempt to relieve the enormous and irritating congestion in the Charles Street circle.

Inbound traffic will be enabled to flow through Embankment Road.

The extraordinarily heavy outbound traffic in the late afternoon and early evening from Boston to Cambridge, Somerville and the North Shore will be moved across the West Boston bridge route.

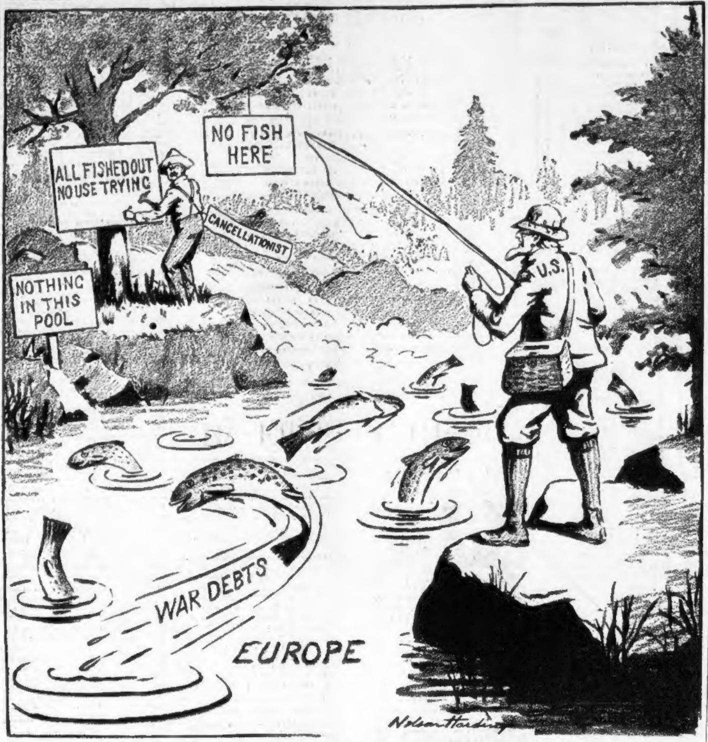
At least, this new arrangement seems to have the advantage of establishing one-way routes over highways which have been blocked, congested and glutted by competing streams of motorists.

The experiment is worth trying. Better anything than that the thousands of motorists, every weekday night of their lives, should waste valuable time and suffer all the irritations and annoyances of the terrific congestion.

The Traffic Commission says this is "an important problem." Of course it is. Otherwise the Boston Evening American would not have been pressing for a solution of it.

What Do You Mean, No Fish?

By Nelson Harding



The man is tacking notices
Upon the trees that say:
"There is no use in fishing here—
"There are no fish today."

But we cannot believe in signs
All posted there to fool
The patient fisherman who sees
Big trout jump in the pool.

New York Day by Day

A Real Old-Timer

New York, Sept. 6—Not far fram Avenue A is an old-timer corner saloon as pristine as a canopied surrey. Karl Kitchen, a shark at excavating metropolitan antiquities, took me there. Nothing has changed in the 52 years of its existence. A grandson of its founder now tends bar.

A cat naps on a window ledge. The mirror is frescoed with soapy curlicues suggesting a four-master breasting a wave. Salty pretzels and blobs of cheese fill a bowl and a pewter container holds cloves, cinnamon and coffee. There is a ceiling-high ice box, gas jet chandeliers and a yeasty odor.

The present owner and bartending son live upstairs with their families. Old men, in pipe-smoking silence, play pinochle at a corner table. Now and then a spindly-legged child stretches an arm upward to the bar with a tin bucket—reviving the ancient custom of "rushing the growler."

A cheerful, bandy-legged fellow is a combination porter, back-room waiter and runner of inglorious errands. Every saloon had one of these humbler heroes. Now and then a jetsam madam sits alone in gloomy reflection or a swell plus-fours and leading a wire-hair drops in from Sutton Place for a beer.

Beer, incidentally, is the only beverage. Perhaps the only modern touch is the radio piannissimo. There is no speak-easy peephole scrutiny. The "Family Entrance" is open at 7 a. m. and closes promptly at 1. There was no denying the mellowness and fascination of its types.

* * *

The saloon was an abominable institution and should never stage a come-back. Yet, I could not help but compare this relic of other days with the murderous speak-easies that honeycomb every block. Crude as the old saloon was, it had none of the viciousness of the modern speak.

The passing of Budd's may mean little to an oncoming generation. But to elders it recalls a deluxe haberdashery, known from coast to coast. A Budd shirt or tie was a symbol of swank. A high-priced shop, it could not stand the prolonged depression. So creditors took it over.

* * *

There was a clerk at the Budd's just below Fulton, I shall ever remember. In a julep of abandon that comes with the weekly pay and Saturday half day, I walked around from a newspaper office to gaze into Budd's windows. A glorious blue tie with incarnadine stripes fired my fancy. I stepped in to inquire the price. It was $7. In a lunatic seizure of self-consciousness, I had it sent c. o. d. to a suddenly thought-up name at the old Waldorf. Then I backed out. My deception worried me so I dropped a postcard explaining my trick was an outcropping of sudden embarrassment over the price. A few days later in a noonday walk on Dey st., I ran into the clerk. He stopped, shook hands and wangled my name and address. That night the tie had been delivered with his compliments.

Passing through his dining room, a patron stopped Frank Case to inquire if his hotel put garlic in the salad. He said it didn't, and added as an afterthought: "Maybe that's the hotel business you smell."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Why "The Mollygrubs"?

THIS IS one of the days when I don't want to do anything.

I've had a nice, long sleep. I've enjoyed a good breakfast. There are no particular troubles on my mind—yet I can't work up a spark of enthusiasm about a single subject.

Elsie Robinson

No, it isn't laziness. It's something deeper than laziness. For no sensible reason, I'd like to throw up the job of living . . . walk out on this whole daggoned business of civilization—

Queer. All my life I've had spells like this. Even as a little kid. Most of the time I'd be as excited as the other youngsters. Then suddenly, without cause, I'd want to go off by myself. Get as far away from them as I could.

"HAVING THE MOLLY-GRUB"—wasn't that what we called it, back in school days?

I thought there must be something wrong with me, to feel like that. Then, as I grew older and more conceited, I decided that I felt like that because I was Different. Other people might go along, cheerfully, doing each day's tasks with an equal amount of zest, but I couldn't because I wasn't made that way. I was Too Sensitive . . . too High Strung. I couldn't be expected to function like coarser, common spirits.

Yep—I kidded myself like that. But life in time took that out of me. Made me see that I wasn't different—that the common souls had the mollygrubs just as often as I did, and suffered just as badly from them.

But why shouldn't this be? Why couldn't healthy human beings feel a steady, continuous flow of enthusiasm and ambition? Why must we waste so much precious time and energy by these unreasonable slumps? Slowly, I found the answer—

WE SLUMP BECAUSE WE AREN'T AS YET REALLY A "GOING BUSINESS" . . . WE AREN'T THOROUGHLY CIVILIZED.

The "mollygrubs" isn't a spell of sickness . . . nor an accident . . . nor a display of temperament. It's a natural condition. It's our original, natural condition. We're still about seven-tenths savage—and savages are mollygrubby most of the time. They lie around like lazy animals. Doing nothing. Desiring nothing.

IT IS ONLY WHEN SAVAGES TRY TO BECOME CIVILIZED THAT THEY ATTEMPT TO KEEP THEIR INTEREST AWAKE AT ALL TIMES.

And that's bound to be a difficult—almost an impossible task. For there's all that weight of sluggish, savage inertia tugging against the feeble effort toward purpose and achievement.

No wonder we get the mollygrubs and feel as if "we'd like to walk out on the whole daggoned business of civilization." For that is exactly what our semi-savage bodies and minds are trying to do. They're trying to escape from the irksome discipline of civilized steadiness.

Just Folks

A Hot Day

If Fame should come to me and say:
"Arise, the laurel wreath awaits!
Go forth and wrestle with the fates,
For victory shall crown the day!"
I'd answer as I mopped my brow:
"Fame does not interest me now."

Should Fortune come with luring smile
And whisper this: "Success is sure,
Go brave this torrid temperature
And struggle for a little while."
I'd answer: "I would rather not.

Should Opportunity appear
With waving flag and trumpet loud
To beckon me from all the crowd,
I'd fail to see and fail to hear.
Or recognizing it I'd say:
"Come back some cool October day."

For when the sun is blazing down
And garments cling unto my skin
I find I've no desire to win
Fair Fortune's gold or Fame's renown.
If ever to the heights I climb,
It must be done in winter time.

A Bombardment of Falsehood

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE CAMPAIGN has progressed sufficiently to show that, so far as the Hoover High Command is concerned, it is to be fought on a very low level. This low level fighting appears to be inseparable from Mr. Hoover's idea of politics in a democracy. America reached its very lowest level in campaigns four years ago. Mr. Hoover's campaign was fought with misrepresentations, appeals to racial and religious prejudices, with inuendoes, and the whispering of the most scandalous falsehoods ever set afloat since the establishment of the Republic. Happily for the purposes of history, the almost incredible pamphlets and cartoons sent out, reeking with the basest falsehoods and the most unthinkable personal abuse of Al Smith, have been carefully preserved and are placed where they will be available to the historian of tomorrow.

The character of that campaign, wicked as it was, was known to Mr. Hoover, who, historically, must bear a heavy responsibility for giving it his sanction.

But it worked!

It probably did more to discredit the processes of democracy in elections than anything we have ever known—but it worked.

Now we are entering upon another campaign of Mr. Hoover's which is going to be pitched upon the same low level. Perhaps it also may work. It depends on whether the electorate is capable of increasing its intelligence with experience.

* * *

Whispering Campaign Again in Action

The whispering campaign is again in full swing. It is part of the strategy of the same Best Minds that came in with Mr. Harding. It is aimed at both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner. And along with this we find in the Hoover speakers in the field a determination, if possible, to divert attention from the real vital issues of the campaign by injecting frivolities, by attacks on men and measures that are shamelessly misrepresented, by appealing again to prejudices. Having gone into office and wrecked the business fabric of the country by a wholesale blackguarding of a great group of Americans because of their religion, it is now planned to work the other side of the street and mobilize, as far as possible, the victims of that campaign of villification behind the chief beneficiary of the disgraceful plot. There must be loud laughter among the gods looking down upon the stupidities of men. And also at Rapidan, where there are no gods.

* * *

Roosevelt Attack Met Half-Heartedly

When Mr. Roosevelt at Columbus courageously put his finger on the unpardonable failures of the Hoover Administration to protect the American people against fleecing by the unscrupulous and the greedy he touched a sore spot. The enemy is howling still. He showed by quotations from the highest Administration quarters that the Government was brazenly used to misrepresent conditions to the ruin of innocent investors during the market madness.

Millions of Americans are broke today because they believed these false statements issued to encourage the continuation of the market frenzy, and every Democratic speaker should read these amazing assurances from the Administration to every audience addressed.

This is met weakly, and with the attempt to persuade the victims to "laugh it off." And by dishonest and false statements regarding the powers of the Governor of one State in dealing with a market situation affecting every little town in this vast nation.

And by the crooked statement that the Administration in Washington has no constitutional power to protect the people against the pirates of the market, or to warn them with facts in its possession against the flooding of the country with worthless foreign securities.

* * *

Can Expect Nothing From Hoover Regime

Senator Moses, author of that characterization of the Western Senators as "sons of the wild jackass," tries to blot out Roosevelt's Columbus program and speech by calling him "the Boy Scout." This is not very impressive.

He follows other Administration speakers like Mr. Snell insisting that there is nothing government can do to protect the investing public against practices that are treated as criminal in other nations; and thereby serves notice that nothing can be expected from Mr. Hoover.

And he reaches the climax of effrontery in saying nice things about Al Smith; effrontery, for this reason: When many of us were fighting for Al Smith's election four years ago, Senator Moses was caught redhanded in playing his part in the undercover campaign to mobilize the lowest of prejudices against this same Al Smith. We remember so well, for we discussed it editorially at the time.

Having delivered himself of this statesman-like tirade, Moses hurried to the millionaire colony at Newport to be lionized as the hero of the phrase "sons of the wild jackass."

* * *

Socialism Bugaboo Brought Into Play

And in this very dignified and lofty campaign of the Hoover High Command Mr. Roosevelt's reminder of the "forgotten man" is to be treated as "socialism"; and Mr. Garner, a conservative, is to be treated as a "Socialist" because of his relief measure. Thus Henry J. Allen, repudiated by the people of Kansas, makes the brazen statement that Garner's bill was intended to give everyone "the money they need out of the public treasury."

Mr. Allen knew this to be false. Business men furnishing adequate security and able to show that they need money to fill orders already in, were to be loaned money—to help put men to work. They were to be given nothing. They were to give better security than has been given under the Administration plan to loan money to powerful corporations. One of these loans, amounting to the stupendous sum of $80,000,000, went to a political favorite of the Administration who resigned from the Administration to get it. And it is estimated now that the Government will lose a billion dollars on the loans made—because of inadequate security.

There are matters that should be left out of the campaign because of the conditions, but if the Allens and the Moses continue their line of attack on the "forgotten man" and on Garner's relief measure it will not be surprising if there should be some plain, blunt speech on these delicate subjects. Let the people have all the facts; only with all the facts can they render an intelligent verdict at the polls.

* * *

Too Much Ruin for "Wise-Cracking"

There have been campaigns where the issues have been so vague and unimportant that there was little left to the orators beyond such wise-cracking as that of Moses. But this is not such a campaign. There is too much ruin all about; too many hungry children; too many millions of jobless men. There are real issues dividing the parties—prohibition, the tariff, farm relief and reforms for the protection of the people against the fleecing of the high placed in finance. Debt transfer may also enter in.

These can be debated on a high plane, and thoughtful citizens expect it. But if the low plane established by the Hoover High Command is to be the height of the campaign, we are afraid it will not be occupied by the Hurleys alone. And that will not make for the good of the country.
